Pentagon admits use of hymn was mistake

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon admits that including a controversial modern hymn in an armed services hymnal was a mistake, but it does not intend to tear the verse out of the half-million books in print.

The Pentagon also said Thursday that it would not immediately order a new edition of the hymnal, which has cost more than $1 million to print since it was first published in late 1974.

Some congressmen and church groups have charged that the hymn, a Good Friday verse called "It Was On A Friday Morning," is blasphemous. Protests began to trickle in last November and reached a crescendo recently.

The words in the hymn, written by Sydney Carter, are uttered by one of the thieves crucified alongside Jesus Christ. The objections center on a line that reads, "It's God they ought to crucify instead of you and me."

The latest objection came Thursday from the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which sent President Ford a telegram demanding that the offending hymn be stricken from the armed forces Book of Worship.

Several weeks ago, Veterans Administration Chief of Chaplains James Rogers ordered the hymn torn out of the VA's 15,000 copies of the 815-page hymnal.

A Pentagon spokesman said that "it is clear that including the hymn ... was a mistake," but he said no order would be given to excise the hymn.

However, he added that "we are conducting a search for a replacement hymn to appear in subsequent versions of the hymnal."

That could be a long way off. Prior to 1974, the hymnal had not been revised in more than a decade.

The hymn also has its defenders. Officials of the United Church of Christ and the American Baptist Churches have protested Chaplain Rogers' decision to tear the hymn from the VA's books.

The Pentagon spokesman said the hymn "was not included to be blasphemous or to destroy faith, but to provide the vehicle for dealing deeply and thoughtfully with the death of Christ in order to encourage and strengthen faith in God."

The Pentagon said the hymnal was the product of "four years of labor by many chaplains and respected civilian churchmen."

Right-to-death bill approved

May be first law of its kind in the U.S.; Brown uncommitted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate, like the Assembly, has narrowly passed a "right-to-death" bill to allow doctors to remove life support systems from patients who have authorized it in advance.

The bill, which could lead to the first law of its kind in the United States, would apply only in cases of incurable injury, disease or illness certified to be terminal by two physicians, when death is imminent with or without life-sustaining procedures.

The 22-14 vote of the 40-seat Senate, after a long emotional debate Thursday, sent the bill back to the Assembly for action on minor amendments.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. hasn't committed himself.

Introduced by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, the bill was prompted in part by the case of Karen Quinlan of New Jersey, who lay in a coma while her parents sought the right to let her die.

Sen. Peter Behr, R-Tiburon, who carried the bill, said patients are now "denied the right to die a natural death with dignity."

Said Behr, whose brother recently died: "The ultimate horror is not death, but being passed into limbo by artificial means...."

Behr said his brother was "in such pain that morphine didn't catch it.... I would have been proud to pull the plug...."

But an opponent, Sen. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, said he sympathized with Karen Quinlan type cases. But he warned the bill would lead to "horror stories" from the other side of the coin.

"We're going to hear about deaths of persons who really didn't want to die, and whose families didn't want them to die," he said.

The bill spells out a standard "directive to physicians" that persons may sign before two unrelated witnesses. The directive remains valid for five years, unless revoked by "a verbal expression" or other means.

Behr said there are ample safeguards for patients and physicians.

The opponents, mostly the California Pro-Life Council and allies, call it an euthanasia bill. The same groups have also fought legalized abortion.

Behr said the California Conference of Catholic Bishops first opposed the bill, but later withdrew its opposition.

Opponent James Wedworth, D-Hawthorne, said he could see the bill generating a mass of law suits.

"This is the biggest lawyer bill that ever came through this house," Wedworth said.

Proponent Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, said the ancient Greeks were taught to both live and die with grace. Of the opponents, he said, "You want to salve your consciences by imposing an enormous amount of pain and suffering on me."

Supporters say perhaps a million directives, which they call "living wills," have been signed but are generally deemed unenforceable without legislation.

Opponents have argued that the bill favors death over life, and permits a physician to ignore the wishes of the patient's family.

It is AB 3060.

Susan Murphy arrested in Portland

Miss Murphy, 34, and Diane Louise Ellis, 33, were taken into custody Thursday evening, the FBI said. The women, who escaped 13 days ago from a Los Angeles-area federal prison, were arrested without incident by two FBI agents, a spokesman said.

Officials said agents patrolled the downtown area on foot and in cars Thurday afternoon and evening because of information the women might be found there. The FBI declined to say what that information was or where it came from.

The FBI reported earlier Thursday that the women were believed to be driving through Oregon en route to Canada.

Miss Murphy and Miss Ellis overpowered a female guard at the Terminal Island federal prison on Aug. 14, taking the guard's car and later flying to San Francisco.

Miss Murphy was serving a five-year sentence for conspiring with Manson cultist Sandra Good to mail threatening letters to businessmen they said were polluting the environment. Both women were friends of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who is serving a life sentence for the attempted assassination of President Ford.

Miss Ellis was imprisoned on parole violations following a bank robbery conviction.

FBI agents had raided an apartment in San Jose, Calif., on Wednesday looking for the fugitives. They failed to find the women but arrested the occupant, Pamela J. Bailey, 27, and charged her with harboring Miss Ellis.

Neighbors identified Miss Ellis as one of two women seen at the apartment as late as last Sunday. The second woman was not positively identified.

Miss Murphy, nicknamed Heather, lived in Sacramento, Calif., with Miss Good and Miss Fromme.

Manson is serving a life term for the 1969 slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six other people during a two-night murder spree.

Arms cache near Ford retreat

GRAND VALLEY, Colo. (AP) — Seventy rifles and pistols, including a loaded submachine gun, 150 sticks of dynamite and "thousands of rounds of ammunition" have been found in a house here, the county sheriff's office said.

President Ford's vacation retreat at Vail is about 120 miles east of where the weapons were found. A Secret Service spokesman in Washington said the agency was not investigating the discovery of the weapons because of the distance between Grand Valley and Vail.

Garfield County Undersheriff Robert Hart said a Secret Service agent did phone Sheriff Ed Hogue to learn of details of the discovery.

Secret Service spokesmen in Vail and Denver refused comment. Hogue was not available for comment.

The dynamite and weapons were found Wednesday night when sheriff's deputies and Grand Valley police officers investigating an office equipment burglary entered the home of Gary D. Wray, 25, Hart said.

They found the submachine gun in the front room, he said. The 70 rifles and pistols, some of them automatics, along with the dynamite, three cartons of primer cord, electric detonator caps and "thousands of rounds of ammunition" were found elsewhere in the house, he said.

10-ton marijuana ring broken; ten indicted

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Federal narcotics agents have reported that ten men have been indicted for allegedly smuggling 10 tons of Mexican marijuana into the United States within the past six months.

Those indicted include four Californians, a Canadian, the manager of a Scottsdale, Ariz. restaurant and three Mexican nationals.

Following a two-year investigation of what authorities believe is a major marijuana smuggling ring here, Phillip Jordan, agent-in-charge of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration here, said the indictments were returned Aug. 12.

Information on the case was withheld because authorities were seeking those indicted, he said.

Jordan said Victor Sharp, 35, of San Francisco, and Andrew Quaill, 32, of Novato, Calif. were found Thursday in the Culiacan, Sinaloa, Mexico jail. They had been arrested under false names Aug. 1 for possession of marijuana by Mexican authorities, who seized a 36-foot diesel boat from California during the arrest, Jordan said.

Arrested after the indictments were returned were: Robert E. Donegan, 23, of Scottsdale, Ariz., manager of the Nantucket Lobster Trap; Gary Losk, 25, of San Jose, Calif.; Gary Garibaldi, 28, of Santa Cruz, Calif.; and Richard Maiava, 29, of Canada. The latter three were arrested in Tucson, Ariz.

Kidnaped mother of 3 still missing

LONG BEACH (AP) — A mother of three who was kidnaped along with her children was the object of a massive search by authorities today.

The children were safely recovered by Orange County sheriff's deputies shortly after the Wednesday night kidnaping, but deputies said Thursday that they had found no sign of their mother, 43-year-old Johann Seigman.

Deputies said they were searching for an older-model car in which Mrs. Seigman was last seen, and that her husband, a supermarket manager from Rossmoor, was awaiting a phone call from kidnapers instructing him what to do with $7,000 ransom.

The Seigmans' three children, Cathy, 19, John, 16, and Paul, 11, were discovered late Wednesday night, tied up but unharmed in the family's van parked in Long Beach.

Two armed abductors forced their way into the family's home Wednesday night and ordered Seigman to drive to his market in Long Beach for money, authorities said.

They said Seigman phoned police from the store and then waited three hours in a telephone booth for instructions.

During bus drivers' strike

Open lanes on S.B. Freeway for car pools

Because of a strike by bus drivers, state officials will open Monday to carpools a seven-mile stretch of bus lanes on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Vehicles having three or more occupants will be allowed to use these separated lanes between Santa Anita Avenue in El Monte and the Long Beach Freeway in both directions.

Traffic, however, will be limited to between 6 and 10 a.m. and 3 and 7 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Westbound motorists using these lanes must enter from the median lane just past Santa Anita Avenue or at Del Mar Avenue and must merge back onto the regular freeway just past the Long Beach Freeway.

Eastbound motorists can enter only at a special ramp from the median lane just before the Long Beach Freeway and either exit at Del Mar or merge back onto the main freeway at Santa Anita Avenue.

Buses other than those operated by the Southern California Rapid Transit District still use these special lanes, and motorists should exercise caution, said state highway officials.

"We would have opened the lanes sooner, but we needed the time since the announcement of the strike to make the appropriate signs and order changes in lane stripping," said Adriana Giaturco, state transportation director.

State officials have sought transit district approval to open the bus lanes to carpools in late September. An agreement establishing the bus lanes called for joint use in May 1977.

Coastal bill amendments get Senate OK

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The compromise amendments that paved the way for passage of the coastal conservation bill have passed the state Senate, but not without some heated debate.

The coastal bill, a landmark measure designed to curb development along California's 1,100-mile coastline, won Senate approval Monday and was sent to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The amendments were engineered by Brown and accepted by labor and the bill's backers. They were put into a measure by Assemblyman Gary Hart, D-Santa Barbara.

Thursday's 25-9 Senate vote sent the Hart measure to the Assembly.

The coastal bill would require local coastal governments to follow a series of guidelines designed to — among other things — curb urban sprawl along the shoreline and insure public access to beach areas.

It would also set up a permanent statewide coastal commission to enforce the act.

Major provisions in the Hart bill would give regional coastal commissions a two-year instead of a four-year life.

Also, the regional commissions would be activated only when the state commission felt there was enough work to warrant their existance.

The Hart bill would also make the coastal commission's designation of sensative coastal areas subject to legislative ratification. Proposed development in a sensative coastal area would be closely scrutinized by the state commission.

Environmentalists said the Hart bill did not weaken the coastal bill, and opponents of the coastal measure agreed.

"I don't think by adopting these amendments that we ought to sucker in any more legislators into thinking that they are going to make a good bill out of the bill that was passed a couple of days ago," said Sen. Ralph Dills, D-Gardena.

"The same thing, the same idea, the same Sierra Club philosophy is going to prevail," he added. "If you think by adopting this you are going to interfere at all with that you are not being realistic."

Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, said there was nothing in the Hart bill that "is going to provide additional jobs...that is going to make it possible for persons whose land is reclassified and reduced in its value from getting compensation.

"There is absolutely nothing in these amendments that answer the major objections to this (coastal) bill."

But Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, said the legislature had produced a reasonably good coastal bill and should enact the Hart amendments.

"I suggest we have a problem that we are never going to be able to solve to the satisfaction of everybody," he said. "We have worked to achieve a reasonable compromise. Let's get going with it."

The Hart bill is AB 2948.

RTD talks still in a deadlock, strike continues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Negotiations between the Rapid Transit District and striking mechanics have reached a standstill, with no new meetings between the two sides scheduled, a spokesman for the district says.

Talks between RTD and striking bus drivers had completely broken off earlier.

To further complicate matters, management said Thursday that strikers will not get their paychecks today, due for work performed before the strike was called.

"Further meetings with the striking union will be called by the state conciliation service," said RTD spokesman Mike Barnes late Thursday.

"We're willing to meet and negotiate anytime, 24 hours a day," said Barnes. "But I can't say the other guys are willing."

RISE plan gains final approval of legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A high school reform plan described by state schools chief Wilson Riles as the state's most important in a half century has won final legislative approval.

Without debate, the Senate agreed 21-11 Thursday to Assembly changes in the plan, called "RISE" after the initial letters of Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education.

However, its fate in Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s hands is in doubt. Brown's Finance Department has opposed it in hearings, calling it too expensive.

Riles said the program will cost $3.6 million in its first year and rise to $141 million in its seventh year, when all junior and senior high schools would be included.

But Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post put the seventh-year cost at over $200 million.

The bill, based on recommendations of a commission appointed by Riles, would give students course credit for proficiency rather than time spent in the classroom.

Credit would be given for work experience and community projects as well as academic study, and students could even take a year off to work on a project.

Parents and students would be more involved in school planning, and an adviser for each student would try to plan a "personalized" learning experience.

The bill is SB 1737.

CIRCUS WEDDING

Sandor Rasky and his bride, the former Elisabeth Ritter, a pair of 40-inch tall Hungarian circus performers, cut their wedding cake after they were married in the Oakland Coliseum arena.

World's tiniest couple married

OAKLAND (AP) — Before a backdrop of sequined elephants and a sober throng of moist-eyed circus folk, the world's tiniest bride and groom were united in the main ring of the Oakland Coliseum.

Peeking lovingly at Elisabeth Ritter, his 34-pound bride, 40-inch-tall Sandor "Tom Thumb" Rasky repeated in the language of them both, Hungarian, the Episcopal wedding vow:

"I give you this ring as a symbol of my vow and with all that I am and all that I have, I honor you, in the name of God..."

Tears of joy welled Thursday in the eyes of the 39-year-old bride as the Rev. Wells Newell Graham, the chaplain of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, pronounced them man and wife.

Ron Severini, a tall clown who works with the 31-year-old Rasky, wished the couple "lots of laughs" and the traditional sentiment, "May all your troubles be little ones."

But the new Mrs. Rasky, gowned in a white Bianchi original with an Empire bodice and a neckline of pearls, confided that the couple didn't expect to have children.

The circus is no place to raise children, she said before joining her husband in a first waltz performed by the Big Top band.

The Raskys grew up in the small Hungarian town of Salsoors. She was formerly a ringmistress with several European circuses while he did a gymnastic routine with shows in Sweden, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Ed Ray

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — Ed Ray, the bus driver kidnaped with 26 Chowchilla school children last month, found an overtime parking ticket on his car after he told the grand jury about his experience.

Ray won't have to pay the fine — but not because he is considered a local hero for his part in rescuing the children from an underground prison.

Madera Justice Court Judge Alec Brown said the ticket issued Monday will be waived because it is common practice to dismiss parking violations received by court witnesses or jurors.

Mills wants Hwy. Commissioners to quit posts

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Senate President pro tem James Mills says he will request today that some members of the state Highway Commission resign because they favor freeways at the expense of mass transit.

Mills, a San Diego Democrat, issued a short statement Thursday, but declined to say which of the seven commissioners he had in mind.

The commission chairman, William Leonard of San Bernardino, said in an interview Thursday that Mills' intentions to make such a request is a surprise, but "I'll have an appropriate remark when I've heard it."

He said Mills is scheduled to be "the lead-off person" at today's commission meeting in Sacramento.

Mills, a proponent of mass transit, said he was "deeply concerned with the commissioners' freeway fixation after reading the transcript of the commission's recent Eureka meeting."

At that meeting, the commission approved some highway projects over the objections of Adriana Gianturco, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s Transportation Department director.

Mills' statement said the law requires a budget that meets the balanced needs of the state.

"Any commissioner unable to obey the state law and the will of the people should resign," he said.

The commission's executive secretary, L.R. Gillis, said Mills was referring to the six-year budget plan presented by Ms. Gianturco. He said it is a $5.5-billion plan, $900 million a year that includes $350 million to $400 million for major highway construction.

"I think that the way the department presented the plan to the commission caused concern it was balanced the other way (toward mass transit)," Gillis said.

The commission isn't expected to adopt the plan before September, but Gillis said "the general feeling — not just the commission's — of the many appearances before them in July and August, is the majority says, 'Let's balance this and build some really needed (highway) projects'."

Gillis said "real strong" presentations had been made in favor of improvements on Highway 101 between San Jose and Morgan Hills where there are many accidents, and freeway work in southern Fresno.

But he said neither of these projects was in the department's six year plan.

Food freezing plants on strike in NorCal area

SALINAS (AP) — Some 3,000 Teamsters have struck food freezing plants at Modesto, Salinas and Santa Maria in a contract dispute that was expected to spread to other plants throughout Northern California.

At the same time Thursday at Salinas, federal mediator Jerry Finley announced that Teamsters Union farm drivers and loaders have ratified a contract raising their base pay between 33 and 42 per cent over three years.

Their $5.35 hourly base pay will hike to $6.10 immediately, with 50-cent additions in each of the next two years. The contract covers drivers and crews who work corporate farms south to El Centro and Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado.

The freezing plant strike reportedly will spread to include another 8,000 workers at 15 plants.

Navy intensifies night air drills

Squadrons of carrier-based F14 Tomcats, F4 Phantom jets and radar warning planes are flying simulated night missions until 1:30 a.m. and will continue to do so until Sept. 21, a base spokesman said.

The spokesman denied that the stepped-up night training was a result of current tensions in Korea.

Cory questions PG-E payment for natural gas

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State Controller Ken Cory, who is head of the State Lands Commission, has locked horns with a vice president of the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. over the price of natural gas.

A decision was expected at the commission's meeting Thursday. But it was postponed until at least next month after Cory said Californians should not suffer higher gas rates because of what he called bad PG&E contracts.

The commission's staff had reported that the $1.20 per thousand cubic feet proposed by PG&E for gas from state-owned land at Rio Vista was not a fair market price.

The staff said a contested contract upheld by a San Diego County Superior Court set a $1.34 per thousand cubic feet price on gas PG&E would buy from Occidental Petroleum.

But John Sproul, PG&E vice president for gas supply, told the commission that PG&E would have to increase its payments under other gas contracts if it has to pay the same $1.34 price for the Rio Vista gas from Standard Oil of California, which holds a state production lease.

He said the consumer would have to pay the difference. But Cory said Californians should't suffer because of PG&E's previous contracts.

'IUN Rio Vista," Sproul said in an interview, "we have five producers to deal with. If we pay Standard $1.34, obviously we'd have to pay that price to others in the field.

"The net effect is going to be rather short-term and rather small in financial benefit to the state, and 2.5 million Northern California consumers are going to have to foot a gas bill increase measured in the millions of dollars."

RECALLS FLIGHT

Jim McNamara, back to camera, is shown interviewing Howard Hughes in pilot's compartment of the Spruce Goose when it made its only flight in 1947. He gave running commentary.

Reporter recalls flight in Hughes' Spruce Goose

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim McNamara flew by the seat of Howard Hughes' pants on the day in 1947 when the Spruce Goose made its only flight.

McNamara, then a 34-year-old radio station reporter, stood behind the pilot's seat and spoke into a microphone as the plane taxied back and forth across Long Beach Harbor.

Next to him a stylus etched the voice of Hughes on a revolving wax disc. In the background the eight engines on the plywood flying boat were heard roaring.

"It's fairly rough but I think it will be okay," the billionaire said of the choppy harbor surface.

It was a crisp, sunny November Sunday. The waves were capped with white foam. Thousands of people lined the shore to watch as the giant plane crisscrossed the harbor twice.

On a third pass, without warning, the huge craft gained speed, McNamara recalled in an interview Thursday. How fast were they going?

"Ninety," Hughes said matter-of-factly. But McNamara said Hughes emphasized he would not fly the machine. "I've got too much untested equipment in this thing to take the risk," he said. And he said he wouldn't run it up to 90 miles an hour again, either.

"Thank goodness," McNamara said into the microphone. "Once is enough."

That's when Howard Hughes stepped on the gas, heading the 325-foot wingspan into the wind.

"We were going 75, 80, 85," McNamara recalled. "All he said was, 'Hang on.' I clung to the back of his seat. The engines reverberated in the plywood wing. The thrust was spectacular.

"Then all of a sudden it was quiet."

McNamara said he was stunned. "Something is happening," he told his radio listeners. "I think we're airborne."

McNamara, who now handles public relations for the City of Los Angeles Department of Animal Regulation, said Hughes made only a brief, low-level pass over part of the harbor before setting the craft gently back on the choppy surface.

"He just glided back onto the sea. He flew it like a master. No jolt. I've felt more of a jolt on an elevator stopping at a floor," he said.

Senate vote needed on supervisor budget

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A compromise bill to allow Los Angeles County supervisors to reopen their budget has won approval of both houses of the legislature — but another Senate vote is scheduled for today.

The measure won a 40-0 vote Thursday when the presiding officer asked if there was any objection to substituting the previous rollcall, which was 40-0. Hearing no objection, he headed the bill toward Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s office and went on with other business.

But Sen. Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, wasn't in the room at the time. Dills returned to the floor and asked for permission to reconsider the vote today. The permission was granted.

He said there are things in the bill that other lawmakers should know about.

Substitution of roll calls is common on noncontroversial bills.

The Assembly had approved the bill 72-0.

The rollcalls were on a compromise version of the bill produced by a two-house conference committee.

The supervisors of Los Angeles County say they want to be able to cut enough out of their current budget to cut the county's property tax rate by 3 cents.

Rowland broker must answer to charges

Insurance broker Samuel H. Brooks has been ordered into Van Nuys Superior Court to answer charges of murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the hired killing Feb. 14 of a Calabasas private detective.

Brooks, 47, was arrested by sheriff's deputies July 13 at his office at 18415 Colima Road in Rowland Heights after Arthur Rohwedder, 40, of Indio, pleaded guilty to murdering the victim and named Brooks as the man who paid him to do it.

The victim, Michael Kenney, 38, was shot to death from ambush when he returned to his home that night. Homicide detectives charged later that Brooks had loaned Kenney money, that Kenney had refused to pay it back and that Brooks held a $100,000 life insurance policy on his life at the time he was slain.

Brooks was bound over at his preliminary hearing in Van Nuys Municipal Court. Judge James E. Statt scheduled his arraignment for Sept. 7.

Rohwedder is scheduled for probation hearing and sentencing Sept. 1.

BUT CAN HE VOTE?

Ford plans

By The Associated Press

President Ford holds another in his series of campaign strategy sessions today, and one campaign offical said the first item on the agenda in Ford's talks with vice presidential running mate Bob Dole will be the role of Dole's wife in the campaign.

Elizabeth Dole is a member of the Federal Trade Commission. Although she could retain the post during the campaign, Ford's advisers have decided that legally she could not combine her duties with a full round of campaign appearances for her husband and the President.

Ford and Dole plan to confer on whether she should resign. The Doles joined the vacationing Ford in Vail, Colo., Thursday night.

In Plains, Ga., Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter told reporters he was not surprised by polls that show a sharp drop in his lead over Ford.

"I've never expected an easy time," said Carter, who said his lead was still "substantial."

The latest Gallup Poll, released Thursday and based on interviews with 1,016 registered voters last weekend, concluded that 49 per cent of the electorate supported Carter and 39 per cent supported Ford. Prior to the GOP convention last week, Ford trailed Carter 56 to 33.

Carter on rock

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Jimmy Carter says he is aware that some of the rock musicians whom he knows and who have supported him "undoubtedly use drugs," but adds he doesn't consider his acquaintance with them a "subject of shame."

Carter is friendly with a number of rock groups, including Gregg Allman and the Allman Brothers Band, which performed at several fund-raising concerts for him in the primaries.

He was asked at a press conference Thursday if he was concerned about his association with rock musicians who reportedly were associated with durgs.

"I don't believe my association with rock musicians has encouraged them to use drugs," Carter replied. "I have never seen any evidence of drugs ...

"I know some of them undoubtedly use drugs. But I don't consider my association with them to be a subject of shame ... or that it has besmirched my character.

"I would hope their involvement in public affairs and their knowledge of public officials would, in the long run, induce them to be more careful and reticent about violating the law in any degree."

Dole's wife

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford and running mate Bob Dole are mulling over whether Dole's wife should resign as a Federal Trade Commissioner to allow her to actively campaign for the Republican ticket.

A campaign official said the future plans of Elizabeth Dole was "the first item on the agenda" at today's private talks between Ford and her husband, the Kansas senator.

The Doles arrived here Thursday night within minutes of Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally. The three men joined the President and campaign strategists for a working dinner. They held more talks today.

Mondale

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — After a trip through crowded Spanish and Italian food markets on the humid streets of New York City, Sen. Walter F. Mondale told a gathering of security analysts in an air conditioned room high above Wall Street to consider the less fortunate.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate flew here later Thursday and was to start campaigning at dawn today to catch assembly line employes going to work at a Chrysler auto plant.

Also on his schedule were a speech to a local Democratic group and another factory visit. He was to fly to Wisconsin late today to continue his nine-day campaign swing.

Legion action

SEATTLE (AP) — The American Legion has countered Jimmy Carter's proposed blanket pardon for Vietnam-era draft evaders by adopting a resolution urging prosecution "of all persons charged with evading the military draft."

The resolution, adopted unanimously Thursday on the last day of the legion's convention, was the official reaction to Carter's proposal. The unofficial reaction, jeers and boos and shouts of "No! No!" filled the convention hall Tuesday when Carter voiced the proposal in a speech to the more than 3,000 delegates.

Howe ouster?

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah's Democratic leadership has voted to ask Rep. Allan T. Howe, convicted on appeal this week of soliciting sex acts for pay, to drop his bid for re-election.

The party's order came after a closed door executive committee meeting with Howe. He said the committee did not ask him face-to-face to withdraw. Democratic State Chairman Justin Stewart said later that the committee would let Howe hear about its decision "in the media."

Howe said he told the executive committee only that he would be reassessing the political implications of his conviction. He had said earlier he would announce his decision on staying in the race by Sept. 3.

Stewart said the committee also voted to call a meeting of the 265-member Democratic state central committee on Sept. 18 if Howe declines to withdraw. Stewart said the full committee would then "take whatever action is appropriate for the matter."

Nickel tests 'inconclusive'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — City and federal health officials have termed "inconclusive" and "a long-shot possibility" a report that poisonous nickel carbonyl gas might have caused the mysterious legionnaires' disease.

Dr. F. William Sunderman Jr., who headed a research team at the University of Connecticut, suggested the highly toxic gas as a possible cause when he reported finding potentially fatal levels of nickel in tissue samples taken from five victims of the disease.

Dr. Lewis Polk, acting city health commissioner, Thursday called it an "interesting theory," but only a "long-shot possibility at best."

"If it was nickel carbonyl gas in the air as the Connecticut study postulates, then why didn't all the thousands of other persons in the city at that time get sick?" asked Dr. Polk. "They all breathed the same air."

Spotlight on area crime

Many charges against speedster

A 16-year-old POMONA boy, pursued Tuesday by several police agencies before being nabbed in Chino, has been confined to the Los Angeles County Juvenile Hall while law officers prepare a variety of charges against him.

The youth was caught in a car stolen Saturday from 1111 S. Reservoir St. in Pomona owned by Gerald Griffith of that address.

The pursuit began in Ontario when police said the teen-ager committed a minor traffic violation. He was chased onto San Bernardino Freeway where highway patrolmen joined the chase. The teen-ager left the freeway at Indian Hill Boulevard where Claremont police joined in and as he sped into Montclair, police there took up the pursuit. The chase, at speeds up to 90 miles an hour, continued to Ramona Avenue and Philadelphia Street where Chino police blocked the intersection. The youth stopped there and was arrested.

Pomona police have filed an auto theft charge against the northside youngster while highway patrolmen and Ontario police prepare a variety of traffic violation counts against him. Pomona police said the boy had two minor scrapes with the law before — both during 1971. One was for malicious mischief and the other as a runaway.

The youth, who has not been identified by authorities because of his age, faces prosecution in Juvenile Court, Pomona Detective Michael Berry said today.

Faces court

A POMONA man faces court arraignment on burglary charges and three Pomona juveniles were in custody of juvenile authorities in connection with the Wednesday burglary of an UPLAND home at 1664 N. First Ave.

Upland police said the four were arrested in Claremont Wednesday afternoon after Mrs. Beverly Amlid reported two men had run out the back door of her home and jumped over a fence when she returned home.

A neighbor saw the two men jump Mrs. Amlid's backyard fence and followed the pair to a car containing two other men. The neighbor managed to get a license number of the vehicle traced by police to a Gregory Francis Foster, 22, of 2880 Santez Drive, Pomona.

Meanwhile, officers at the Amlid home found that burglars had removed a screen to the back door and broke a window. The burglars had taken some change and a stop watch, before piling up a television set, accessories, and other items for removal on a bed.

Claremont police, alerted by Upland officers, spotted Foster's car in Claremont near Mountain Avenue and Foothill Boulevard. Foster and the three youths were inside.

The four were arrested and turned over to Upland Police.

Garage burglars

Two San Bernardino men were booked in the West End Jail Thursday after an UPLAND police officer checking a van parked in an alley behind 396 Austin Way found evidence of two garage burglaries.

Arrested for investigation of burglary by Officer Frank Stratton about 2 a.m. were Randy Cliffton Kling, 21, and Bradley Wells Bysegger, 18, both of San Bernardino.

Stratton said he was on patrol in the area when he spotted a van with its lights out parked in the alley. Checking the van, he found a gasoline lawnmower protruding from the vehicles side door. In questioning the two occupants of the van the officer discovered the lock missing from one garage and a lock from another garage damaged. The lawnmower in the van was identified by one of the garage owners as hers, and the men were arrested.

Knocked out

An ONTARIO resident who returned to his home after visiting friends was knocked unconscious by a burglar hiding in his back yard at 638 E. E St. early this morning.

D. Hastings Butler told police that he and his wife returned to their home after visiting a neighbors and found that someone had entered their unlocked rear door and ransacked the living room. Butler said he could find nothing missing and went outside to the back yard. After stepping outside he told officers he was struck in the head and knocked out by someone he could not see.

Police said the burglar had ransacked the bathroom and a drawer in a coffee table, but found nothing of value.

Youth shot

ONTARIO police this morning continued an investigation into the shooting of a Cucamonga youth early Thursday morning.

Wounded in the incident was Joe Angiana, 18. Police said Angiana suffered two minor pellet wounds of the leg and arm but did not require hospitalization. Four other youths in a car Angiana was riding in were not injured.

Police said that Ontario officers and West End sheriff's deputies were called to the area of Eighth Street and Baker Avenue by a woman who reported hearing someone yell, "My God, its a gun," and the sound of a gunshot.

When Ontario officers arrived in the area they found seven male and female juveniles walking down Baker Avenue. One of the youths carried a shotgun with one round expended and another in its chamber. The youths told officers that they were the victims of a shooting but their assailants had missed and threw the shotgun out of a car.

West End sheriff's deputies, meanwhile stopped the car containing the wounded Angiana in Cucamonga. Police and sheriff's deputies said the youths in the car, and those stopped on the street were very uncooperative.

Ontario police, as a result of the incident arrested two of the youths on the street for violation of curfew and turned them over to their parents. None of the youths in the car were arrested, pending further investigation.

Forged check

A 28-year-old Los Angeles man was arrested by UPLAND police Thursday after he allegedly attempted to pass a forged check at First National Bank at Second Avenue and Foothill Boulevard.

Donald Arthur Garven, according to police, entered the bank about 12:30 p.m. wearing a black wig and glasses. He attempted to cash a check from a bank customer the teller knew. The check looked similar to another check the teller had seen last week and found it was forged.

The teller alerted other bank employes who called police. The suspect fled from the bank but was stopped and arrested minutes later by police officers in an alley on Second Avenue south of 11th Street.

Gang war

One youth was wounded and four arrested in another outbreak of gang violence in the VALINDA area Thursday afternoon, sheriff's deputies said.

The wounded youth, whom they declined to identify because of possible retaliation, was injured so slightly that he required only treatment by Fire Department paramedics. He was struck on the left shoulder by a bullet which barely broke the skin, Sgt. Herb Longshore said.

The victim was one of several youths riding in a car which was fired upon at Rath and Maryland streets shortly after 2 p.m. Deputies later arrested Antonio Williams, 19, Ricky Harper, 18, Fred Colber Jr., 19, and a 15-year-old companion in connection with the shooting. They were seized as the result of descriptions given deputies by the victims.

Fight's back

A man's attempt to rob the Alpine Restaurant in ONTARIO Wednesday was thwarted when a bartender struck the robber with a beer bottle.

Police said the incident was reported by part time bartender Joseph Gray of the restaurant, 927 W. Holt Blvd. about 4:15 p.m. Wednesday. Gray said that a man in his 20s came around the back of his bar and pulled a knife demanding money. Gray, who had a beer bottle in his hand, hit the robbers arm. The robber fled but Gray could not hang onto him, police said.

Kidnaped

POMONA police reported Thursday night that a retarded, 33-year-old woman was kidnaped, driven to Puddingstone Lake in San Dimas and raped by two men who released her later.

The victim was taken from a doughnut shop on W. Holt Avenue, driven to the lake and attacked. Later she was taken to a house in Pomona where she was held for a time before being released. She was in the custody of the men for about two hours and a missing person report had been filed in connection with her disappearance when she was located in a grocery store, again on W. Holt Avenue.

News briefs

Robbin' hood nabbed in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Musso, a visitor here from Denver, awoke when he heard a voice through the open window of his first-floor motel room.

At the window, a youngster stood pointing a bow and arrow at Musso. The man told the boy he had no money, so the lad took Musso's watch, according to police.

As the youthful archer fled, Musso called for help. The motel manager came running and had started chasing the youth when suddenly the boy stopped and spun around. He fired two steel-tipped arrows that missed narrowly, then escaped.

An hour later police received a report of three men shot with arrows not far from Musso's motel. None was injured seriously enough to require medical attention, though when one of the men was hit in the cheek by the arrow, it knocked his dentures from his mouth.

Police said they learned about 15 minutes later that a man walking along a street was struck in the back by four arrows, two of which pierced his skin. He did not accept medical aid.

Shortly afterward, police spotted the youth walking down a street. He was unarmed but police stopped him, and they say they later found eight arrows and the four-foot-long bow hidden in nearby bushes.

Because the youngster is under 16, he was not identified. He was put in the custody of the Bronx Family Court.

Coincidence

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Diane Marie Stumpf arrived on the Indiana University campus and reported to the dormitory room she had been assigned to share with another student — Diane Marie Stumpf.

A computer error had assigned two freshmen with the same name to the same room at Wright Quadrangle.

Despite the inevitable confusion in telephone calls and mail, Diane Marie Stumpf of Indianapolis and Diane Marie Stumpf of Pittsburgh say they like the arrangement.

"I love it," laughed Diane from Indianapolis. "When I was told, I just burst out laughing."

And Diane from Pittsburgh just "couldn't stop thinking about it. I went all through high school writing my name and not thinking about it except that it belonged to me. I was kind of shocked to find out that someone else had it, too."

Big Ben back

LONDON (AP) — The chimes of Big Ben rang out at noon today after a 22-day silence, the longest in their 117-year history.

They were restarted by clock expert John Vernon, who climbed the 365 steps to the clock chamber and gave a mighty heave on a pendulum.

He then adjusted the clock to its normal accuracy of one-fifth of a second variance per hour by carefully placing a collection of old pennies, some dating to the 1890s, on top of the pendulum. Each coin alters the timing by 0.4 of a second.

The clock in the Houses of Parliament's bell tower stopped at 3:45 p.m. Aug. 5, when a shaft in the mechanism shattered and sent chunks of metal hurtling round the bell chamber.

Rubber strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — More than half the 70,000 rubber workers who have been on strike for four months are expected back to work by next week, but the new contract bringing them back will be costly to consumers.

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. reached tentative agreement Thursday with the United Rubber Workers. The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. reached agreement Tuesday. Together, they employ 38,000 workers.

"Consumers should expect tire price increases as the direct result of this settlement because it is clearly expensive and unavoidably inflationary," said Mario A. DiFederico, Firestone executive vice president.

Industry sources have predicted price hikes on tires ranging from 12 to 17 per cent because of the contract settlement. The strike wiped out the summer production of winter tires, and a shortage of snow tires is also expected.

THEY MAKE A TOMATO SMELL

These tiny organs were photographed on the underside of a tomato leaf using the University of Michigan's powerful electron microscope. Two-cell stems and four-cell heads secrete a juice which gives tomato plants their characteristic smell.

DR. J.A. McCANNE

Dr. J. A. McCanne

Dr. J. Art McCanne, a widely known Pomona physician, died in a Pomona hospital Wednesday following a chronic illness.

He was born in Pomona on Dec. 17, 1906. He attended Pomona schools were he was known as an outstanding athlete. He was a news carrier for The Pomona Bulletin before its merger with The Progress. On Nov. 9, 1924, he married Helen L. Bonham. They celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago.

He attended USC on a scholarship and was graduated with a bachelor's degree in architecture. In 1934 he joined the Pomona city school system where he taught math, science and art. He became superintendent of art, a position he held until 1943.

Relatively late in life he returned to school to pursue a career in medicine.

His wife, Helen, became a sales woman in order to support him and their four children through several years of schooling. He received his M.D. degree from the California College of Medicine (now UC Irvine.) He served an internship and residency at Los Angeles County General Hospital.

In 1950 he established general practice in Pomona. This eventually became McCanne Medical Group, a partnership between Dr. McCanne and his three physician sons with four offices in Pomona, San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano. Since 1972 he has been associated with Family Health Medical Group.

He was a member of the American Medical Association and Sigma Sigma Phi, a medical scholarship fraternity. He published several articles in various medical journals.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by three sons, Dr. Monte O. McCanne of San Juan Capistrano; Don R. McCanne of San Clemente and Dr. Lon R. McCanne, of Bloomington; a daughter, Jo-Anne McCanne of Pomona; and 13 grandchildren.

A private memorial will be officiated by his grandson, Terry McCanne. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Opera star Lottie Lehmann dies at 88

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Internationally famed opera singer Lotte Lehmann, once banned by Hitler from singing in her homeland but vaulted to acclaim in the United States, has died after a long illness.

The 88-year-old German-born artist died in her sleep Thursday.

Her creativity had spanned the realms of music, theater, literature and painting, bringing her recognition in Europe between the world wars and fame on this side of the Atlantic since 1930.

Shortly after the Nazis came to power in Germany, she was offered the position of prima donna assoluta on the condition that she perform only in her homeland. When she refused, the government forbade her to sing in Germany. She renounced her nation and settled in Austria, then fleeing it when it fell to the Germans.

She moved to the United States in 1938 where she was acclaimed as one of the greatest singers of all time. The dramatic soprano was especially identified with such roles as the Marschallin in Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier," Leonore in Beethoven's "Fidelio" and Sieglinde in Wagner's "Die Walkuere."

"Her approach to music and the arts was a completely humane one, emphasizing the deepest impulses of both composer and performer," said conductor Maurice Abravnel who had conducted her performances at the Metropolitian Opera.

Born Feb. 27, 1888, in Perleberg, Germany, the daughter of Carl and Maria Lehmann, she studied at the Berlin Royal Academy of Music under Matilda Mallinger.

She made her operatic debut with the Hamburg Opera in 1910 in the role of Freia in Wagner's "Das Rheingold." Her fame spread quickly, and in 1914 she was invited as a guest performer at the Vienna Opera and was retained there on a permanent basis.

Grimsley-Ranck vows repeated

MRS. LARRY GRIMSLEY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ranck of Claremont was the setting for the marriage of Deborah Kay Hamm and Larry Paul Grimsley. The couple was wed by the Rev. Keith Korstjens in a garden ceremony followed by a reception at the Ranck home. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ranck of Claremont. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Grimsley of Lincoln, Ill.

Miss Susie Hamm of Claremont was honor attendant and best man was William Comstock of Cucamonga. Other attendants were Miss Becky Hamm of Claremont and Larry Martin of Laguna Beach.

MR. AND MRS. LAWRENCE BARDING

Bardings mark 50th anniversary

At an open house Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Barding of Ontario will observe their golden wedding anniversary.

Hosts for the event will be their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn L. Barding of Pomona, and son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Keith D. Barding of Indianapolis, Ind.

The event, for approximately 75 guests, will be held in the Fellowship Hall of First Church of God, Pomona.

Among the guests attending will be Mrs. Florence Allen of Westminster, sister of Mrs. Barding who had attended the couple's wedding 50 years ago.

In addition to their two sons they have two grandchildren.

The Bardings were married Sept. 1, 1926 in Decatur, Ill. They resided in Indianapolis, Ind., before coming to this area 17 years ago. Mr. Barding is retired from General Motors in Indianapolis and from Avery Adhesive Label Co., Monrovia, where he was employed for six years.

The Bardings are active members of First Church of God and of the Missionary Society of the church.

Good and bad

That compost pile which is going to do your garden so much good may also do it great damage if it becomes the home of earwigs, billbugs and other insects. An occasional spray of an insecticide will control them nicely.

Lamaze classes scheduled

Mrs. Jill Chestnut, registered nurse, will conduct classes in the Lamaze method of childbirth beginning in September in cooperation with the Upland Recreation Department.

The classes will be held Tuesdays, beginning Sept. 7, from 7:30 to 10 p.m.; Wednesdays, beginning Sept. 8, from 7:30 to 10 p.m.; and Thursdays, beginning Sept. 9, from 10 a.m. to noon. All classes are held in The Cellar, 123 E. D St., Upland.

Information discussed includes breathing techniques, discomforts of pregnancy, labor-delivery room procedures, medications, anesthetics and duties for dads.

There will be a fee for the six-week class and fees are due prior to the first class and are to be paid at the Upland Recreation Department, 404 N. 2nd Ave., Upland. No registration fees will be accepted at the class.

Coaches must accompany all pregnant mothers.

If Present Social Trends Continue, Democracy "Is Bound to Collapse"

By Clare Boothe Luce, Former Congresswoman Ambassador

Despite the 4.4 billions that the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration has spent to combat crime, the U.S. crime rate is still rising. Meanwhile, the rate of convictions has been falling. The proportion of crimes that result in prison sentences is estimated at 1 per cent of the total number of actual crimes committed. Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark doubts that we "achieve one conviction for every 50 serious crimes."

The '60s and '70s have also been marked by a large increase in alcoholism and drug taking, especially among the young. Drunken or drugged drivers accounted for a large proportion of the 55,000 fatal traffic accidents in 1975.

In the last decade, the legal dissemination of hard-core "porn" and the organized sale of sexual services have become a multibillion-dollar business. The rate of reported rape is several hundred per cent higher in the U.S. than in Great Britain and Japan.

Assuming that the present growth rate of crime, alcoholism drug taking and commercialized sex persists into 1996, America by then will be the most drunken, drug-soaked, sex-ridden and criminal society on earth.

To what can we now look to prevent this self-destructive process from ending — as it otherwise must end — an anarchy?

Laws on the books are not self-enforcing. In the final analysis, they are enforced by public "respect for the law." Moral behavior is not instinctive; it is learned behavior.

The three institutions on which our society, up to now, has depended to teach observance of the law and of traditional moral codes are religion, the family and education.

The formation of inner restraints .. the inculcation in the individual of law-abiding habits and moral attitudes .. has historically been the work of the churches, the family and the schools.

Under the impact of science, religion has lost its social authority. Under the impact of technology, family life has disintegrated. The automobile, the radio, TV, etc. have destroyed parental control over the young. The process, which has taken more than a century, would seem to be irreversible.

Our educational system has long since abandoned the teaching of morals, or what is now called in academe "value judgments."

Today, ever-growing numbers of individuals feel fewer and fewer inner restraints or inhibitions against disobeying any law or moral code that interferes with their private desires or impulses. As the social stigmas that once attached to law breaking and deviation from the traditional morals grow weaker, the distinction between liberty and license becomes more and more blurred in the mind of the individual. Pleasure and profit become the only guides to personal conduct. "The law" is seen as an enemy to be destroyed or outwitted. In the end, the only "sin" is "getting caught".

All of which leaves the ever-growing problem of maintaining a stable social order almost entirely in the lap of government. If our democratic form of government continues for another two decades to fail in the discharge of this responsibility, it is bound to collapse, and our people are bound to turn to some other form of government that offers the promise of restoring order.

The form of government we will turn to is almost certain to be fascism, national socialism or Communism. These are the modern forms of government associated with the restoration of order to disintegrating and unstable societies. They are also the very systems we fought so long and so hard against in the '40s and '50s, and precisely because they restored order at the price of justice and liberty.

This is the American tragedy I foresee: Our democracy, having grown too soft on crime and corruption, will be forced to avoid anarchy by yielding to a system that will be brutally hard on justice and liberty.

Planners say 'no' to K-Mart in Chino

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Planners said "no" to a shopping center proposal Thursday night, much to the delight of Chino area residents seeking to preserve a rural atmosphere.

San Bernardino County planning commissioners — facing a throng of 300 concerned citizens — voted unanimously to deny a zone change to allow a shopping center, including a K-Mart store, at Riverside Drive and Pipeline Avenue.

Applicant Jeffrey H. Tamkin, representing K-Mart, had requested changes from various agricultural and commercial zones to C1 (neighborhood business district).

But Commissioner Philip Harrison obviously had listened carefully to the many residents who spoke in opposition to the store during the lengthy meeting at the Chino Community Building.

"It's unconscionable to me — in view of opposition to it — that K-Mart would even want to build on this site," said Harrison.

Commissioner Lewis Aukeman, moving to deny the request, said, "It's my opinion the community isn't ready to accept K-Mart or any development of this size."

A number of the residents who live near the site of the proposed center have been fighting to stop the development for several months. They showed up in force for a demonstration at the corner on Aug. 16.

Dr. David Gaeble, vice president of the West End Homeowners Association, asked commissioners for a "complete denial" of the Tamkin proposal. "We want all rezoning to agricultural on Riverside, and zoning should benefit the entire neighborhood."

Anne Leslie, another homeowner, charged the center would be a "subregional shopping center." She challenged the commission to resist "overzealous Realtors and greedy developers."

Other residents, including Donna Gaeble, said large shopping centers belong in a "central downtown core," not in "rural areas."

Tamkin, meanwhile, claimed at least 5,000 new homes are being planned near the site, which would support the stores. "K-Mart is not a cause. We're not out to ruin someone's neighborhood. The store has made a market study and decided it could be built there."

He offered to cut down the proposed site from 8½ acres to 7 acres, and donate excess space for a park. "We would drop the market and build a 71,000-square-foot K-Mart plus a garden shop."

He said 295 signatures on petitions opposing the development were "not much." (The Planning Department said it received 16 letters, four telegrams, 295 opposing signatures and three letters supporting the zone change.)

Bill Kramer, real estate agent, spoke for Mr. and Mrs. George Fritz who own property on the site that would be sold for the K-Mart. The couple strongly favors the development, he said.

Neighboring residents would "deprive the city of an attractive shopping convenience," noted Kramer. He charged City of Chino opposes the plan because it wants K-Mart to build a store in a proposed shopping center at Central Avenue and the Pomona Freeway.

Mrs. Eva Weiszbrod, former Chino school board president who owns property on the site, said she favors the K-Mart but "homeowners have turned against us and tried to impose their will on us."

She said, "We've been harassed by shotgun blasts at our property and things have been taken when we weren't home."

Commercial development is needed in the area she said, to keep Chino from becoming strictly a bedroom community.

Dennis Chinaeff, Chino's director of community development, told the commission that the city opposes the K-Mart.

"According to our general plan, the city wanted it in a commercial core on Central Avenue. It should not be in a rural area."

Claremont School District resumes talks with CSEA

The on-again, off-again negotiations between the Claremont Unified School District and Chapter 200 of the California School Employes Association resumed today.

Association negotiators, representing the district's 215 classified employes, except confidential workers, agreed to resume negotiations today in spite of the advice of CSEA field representative John Hamilton that negotiations be postponed until Sept. 2.

CSEA negotiator Elizabeth Smith, Chapter 200 secretary, explained that the district in wanting to sign a short contract for the first year under the Rodda Act had wanted to exclude certain district policies from the contract.

"Upon advice from Hamilton," Mrs. Smith said, "We decided that CSEA will present a counterproposal to that issued by the District Aug. 5.

"It was our understanding that the contract would include such items as salaries, health and welfare, and vacations. But we would like to keep the status quo as to district policies to protect our workers."

Although the Chapter 200 negotiators agreed that negotiations would be open to the public and press July 20 on the first day of talks, they changed their minds this past Monday when the second set of negotiations got underway after a month-long delay because of conferences and vacations.

"At our conference in Sacramento," Mrs. Smith explained, "it was the concensus that in a closed session we would operate in a more relaxed give-and-take between the groups involved."

"We must do some rethinking because the board says some district policies are outside the scope of the contract such as recruitment and selection, probation, retirement, suspension and dismissals, and layoffs."

Both sides agreed this week that after a contract is signed for this school year, negotiations will start March 1, 1977 on a contract to go into effect July 1, 1977.

The Chapter 200 counterproposal will be the fifth piece of material to go to the negotiators since the association submitted a memo of understanding to the school board late in June.

The district offered its initial proposal or counterproposal.

The association then bogged down negotiations with a 30-article proposed master contract which delayed talks until this past Monday.

The district followed that with a counterproposal Aug. 5.

With a short contract in mind, the negotiators Monday began working with the two initial proposals.

Board representatives stressed that the Rodda Act deems mandatory for negotiations such items as health and welfare benefits, leave and transfer policies, safety conditions, class size, and procedures for employe evaluation.

They said that certain district policies are outside the scope of negotiations, but Chapter 200 negotiators want the district to keep all policies status quo.

McVittie bill calls for halt to 'ticket quotas' by police

Police officers won't have to worry about "ticket quotas" if a measure introduced by Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., is signed into law.

The bill was recently passed by the state Senate and has been sent to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. for his signature.

"Members of the public and police profession have long detested the notion that a cop must write a predetermined number of tickets or be in hot water with his administrators," said the Upland legislator.

"Nobody denies that traffice citations provide substantial revenues for local communities, but to link proficiency in handing out citations to an officer's professional competence is poor public policy and counterproductive to the image of law enforcement."

The proposed legislation makes it an unlawful employment practice for a state or local agency employing peace officers to use the number of arrests or citations as the sole criteria for promotion, demotion, dismissal or earnings of benefits.

Pomona man ordered to appear in Superior Court to face charges

A Pomona man, recently paroled from prison, has been ordered into Pomona Superior Court to answer charges of murder, rape and burglary in the slaying July 1 in Claremont of 88-year-old Grace Ella Parent.

The action was at the preliminary hearing of the charges against Albert Erving Jr., 26. Erving was released on parole June 22 after having served less than six years for burglary, rape, sodomy and robbbery in an attack on a 67-year-old woman in her home in Pomona.

Miss Parent was found murdered in her bed at 660 W. Bonita Ave. where she lived with her sister Lillian P. Pixley. Mrs. Pixley slept through the slaying in an adjoining room and found her sister stabbed to death that morning.

Erving was bound over at the close of the hearing by Judge Thomas Perrington, a visiting judge from Tulare County. Perrington is substituting for vacationing Judge Robert C. Gustaveson.

Carter nephew

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — The jailed nephew of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter says he set up his own assault in an attempt to get a transfer out of the California prison system.

In a letter published in the Oakland Tribune recently, 29-year-old William Carter Spann wrote:

"The assault was a setup. I arranged for a guy to stab me. I am so paranoid about my situation and the probability of a serious assault on me that I wanted to use the press to get some action in leaving this state."

Authorities at the California Medical Facility, where Spann is serving a 10-years-to-life term for two San Francisco armed robberies, said he was treated for superficial puncture wounds after the Aug. 8 stabbing.

Jimmy Carter

SEATTLE (AP) — When he was virtually unknown in national politics, Jimmy Carter says he took to telling audiences what he would do "when" he became president.

Now the Democratic presidential nominee says he sees a reasonable chance of capturing the White House, and so has changed the "when" to "if."

Carter commented during a news conference Tuesday when a reporter reminded him that many respondents to a recent California public opinion poll said they consider the former Georgia governor "egotistical" and believe he is overconfident.

Carter said his use of "when" was an attention-getting device that worked well. "The surer I became I would be elected president, the more I've shifted from 'when' to 'if,'" he said in responding.

Bald eagle may soon be put on endangered list

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bald eagle, which overcame the slanders of Benjamin Franklin to become the national symbol of the wild, new United States of America, may soon be listed as an endangered species in the 48 contiguous states.

Interior Department officials are proposing that the bald eagle be listed as endangered in 43 states and as "threatened" in the other five.

The eagles have been shot, poisoned and chased from their traditional nesting grounds by the bulldozing progress of modern America.

Ontarian hurt in crash; swerved to avoid dog

A 19-year-old Ontario man was injured Thursday when his car went out of control and crashed after he swerved to avoid hitting a dog crossing Hellman Avenue north of Fourth Street.

Douglas Dean Chantry of 1694 E. Fifth St., Ontario, was rushed to San Antonio Community Hospital shortly after the accident. Chantry was listed in good condition this morning at the Upland hospital with multiple injuries.

Chantry told officers that he hit his brakes in an attempt to miss the dog. The brakes failed and he lost control of the vehicle. The car went off the road and crashed.

County planners offer advisory help

Tri-Community group discusses plans

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Leaders of a group of citizens who propose the incorporation of areas including Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda have called on residents to help form a planning and zoning body for the area.

At its Thursday night meeting attended by over 50 persons, the Tri-Community Incorporation Committee (TCIC) devoted its time to a discussion of planning and zoning problems.

Representatives from the San Bernardino County Planning Commission presented an informational program that described some of the planning problems the area faced.

Diane Guzman, a senior planner for the county, said that the county did not intend to get into the issue of whether to incorporate the area but instead would serve in an advisory capacity to any interested groups.

"Please don't ask us to get into the issue of incorporation because that should not be our function," the planner said.

Ron Hanway, another planner for the county, reported on some of the problems posed by the rapid development of the area.

"In Alta Loma alone since the beginning of this year 4,280 new residential lots have been recorded," he said.

Hanway pointed out that such phenomenal growth can and already has led to serious planning problems for the area.

"As I understand it this area is already experiencing overcrowded schools. If the proposed developments now recorded were to be built quickly it would lead to a very serious situation," he said.

Bob Highley, finance director for the TCIC, presented a comparison study of the costs involved in the setting up of a municipal government for the area. Using statistics compiled by a rival incorporation group, the Citizens for Incorporation of Alta Loma (CIAL) and figures determined by the TCIC, Highley compared the two.

He tried to convince those present that the incorporation of the three cities together would derive more economic benefits than the "go it alone idea."

This was disputed by some.

Mary Barlow, chairman for the CIAL, described Highley's presentation as "a one sided view . . . We must be aware that it (TCIC study) does show a biased viewpoint."

Highley responded, "All I want is a fiscally sound community."

A pension plan for homemakers

It isn't true that Congress never does anything for the little guy.

Thanks to the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) act passed by Congress in 1974, an estimated 30 million workers are eligible to set up their own private "tax shelter."

Under IRA, a working person not covered by a company pension plan can put aside $1,500 or 15 per cent of total annual income (whichever is lower) in a bank account and pay no taxes on the money until he or she retires and begins withdrawing it, at which time he or she will in most cases be in a lower tax bracket.

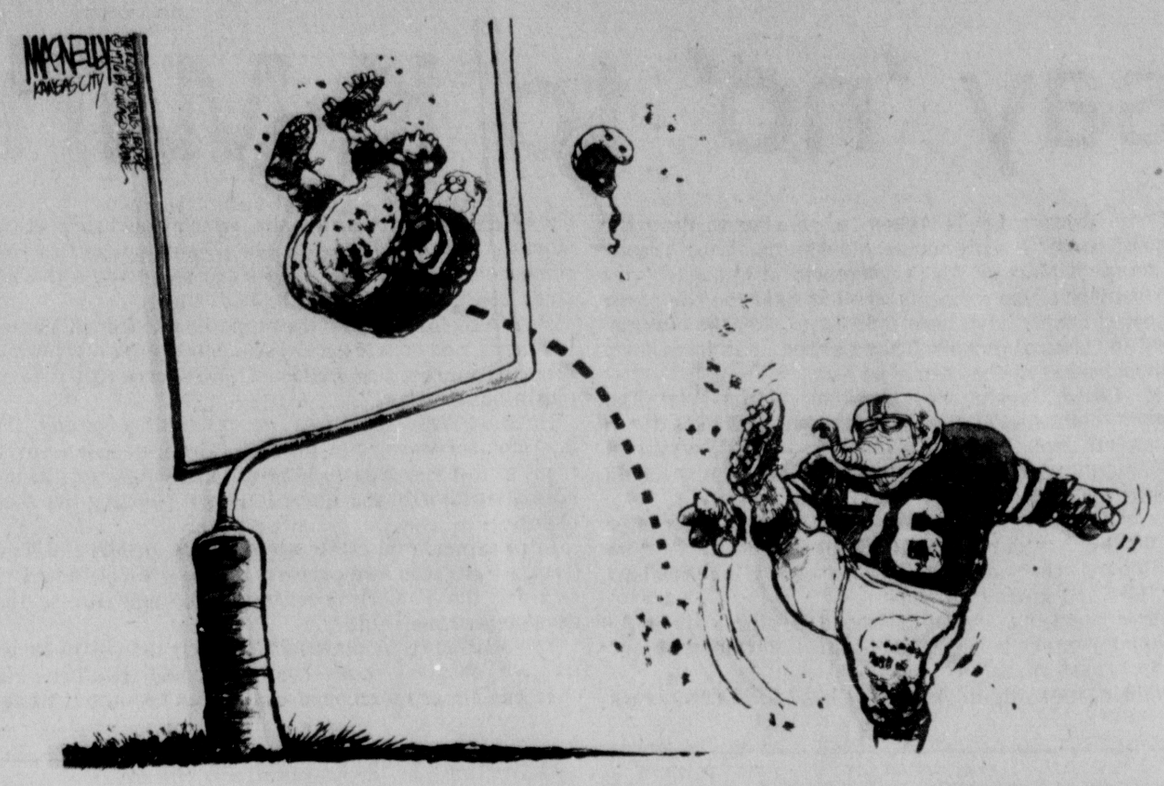

The author of IRA, Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., now wants to extend the plan to include non-working spouses. He has proposed an amendment that would allow a couple to set up either two tax-deferred retirement accounts of $1,000 each or one joint account of $2,000 to cover both husband and wife.

Supporters of the amendment point out that although more and more women are working outside the home, more than half of all wives in the United States are still fulltime homemakers. Yet they are not eligible for any type of pension plan.

Nor does the Social Security system adequately cover homemakers, they say. A wife can't draw any Social Security benefits until age 62, even if her husband dies before she reaches 62.

Under Roth's new bill, however, the nonworking wife could begin to draw out her share of IRA funds at age 59.5, regardless of whether or not her husband was still alive.

Brutocao's questionnaire

Dear Editor:

Louis Brutocao, Republican nominee for 35th District Congress is at it again! Again he has distributed a piece of campaign "literature," a purported "questionnaire" designed to elicit a negative response with reference to incumbent Congressmen in general and in particular to his opponent Jim Lloyd.

Hopefully, those who receive this in the mail will read it thoroughly, realize how absurd it is, and not be taken in by it.

For example, it is my understanding that a very important part of the job of a member of Congress is to maintain contact with his constituency so that he may better represent his district. It is difficult — impossible — to do this if the Congressman is three thousand miles away. Consequently the laws provide for, as Mr. Brutocao puts it, "free travel to and from his district." This "free travel" is not unlimited, by the way. Mr. Brutocao lumps that very important item together with such things as "free swimming facilities" and expects his respondents to choose between continuing or discontinuing all those listed "privileges." That is impossible to do and still make sense.

So far, I have read thoroughly all Mr. Brutocao's campaign "literature" which has come my way. So far, from such "literature," I know nothing about any qualifications he might have to serve in the U.S. Congress. Maybe he has none. I would know nothing of his position on issues if it were not for information in the media. Based on such information I intend to work for and vote for Jim Lloyd's re-election in November, 1976.

Just in jest

In the days of my youth it was known as "going calling," — and more often than not it was a custom that took place on a Sunday afternoon, at which time energetic, socially minded individuals could crowd in three or four visitations in a matter of a few hours.

Being a very proper undertaking, no one would think of setting out on such a tour without first making sure that he or she had a plentiful supply of calling cards in hand, one of which would be carefully left in a little tray on a table in the vestibule of each home visited. That way there was visual evidence that a duty had been performed and also a gentle reminder that, "now it's your turn to return the compliment."

Life was like that in the olden, golden days. Without calling cards you were a social misfit — almost as gauche as the lady who didn't carry smelling salts and an ivory handled back scratcher or the gentleman who didn't have a gold toothpick dangling from a chain draped across the front of his vest.

Sometimes the calling cards in the trays on the little tables in the vestibules of the homes of the town's leading citizens would be three and four layers thick. Like the fifty cent pieces and silver dollars that hat check girls and cocktail waitresses leave prominently displayed on their saucers and trays as tip come-ons, those cards were irrefutable evidence that here, indeed, lived people of more than ordinary importance and popularity.

As I think back, there's just no doubt about it. Next to attending weddings and funerals, "going calling" was one of the finest of the social graces around the start of the Twentieth Century. Once I remember hearing my parents proudly bragging they had made six calls that afternoon. —"And we could have made a couple more if we hadn't run out of calling cards," my mother added ruefully.

It's equal, but is it sports?

The Ohio High School Athletic Association seems to have the ridiculous notion that there are physical differences between boys and girls.

It has a rule, anyway, that forbids girls to play on boys' teams in contact sports, such as football and basketball. Schools belonging to the association, which includes all of the public high schools and most of the junior high schools in the state, as well as the majority of private secondary schools, have to abide by it if they want to compete in sanctioned interscholastic games.

The superintendent and board of education of the Yellow Springs, Ohio, school system have taken the matter to U.S. District Court in Dayton and are suing to have the rule declared unconstitutional. They contend that for forcing them to discriminate in sports on the basis of sex, the rule puts them in violation of guidelines set by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

What the plaintiffs are apparently most concerned about, however, is not the question of an equal break for girls but the possibility that the violation could cause them to lose thousands of dollars in federal aid they now receive.

The Ohio High School Athletic Association counters that the rule was actually designed to insure girls an opportunity to play sports. Possessed as it is with the idea that girls are not, on the average, as big and strong and fast as boys, it argues that few girls would qualify for boys' teams, but more girls would be able to play sports if all-girl teams were available.

It also suggests that this sexual equality thing can work two ways.

"What happens," asks association commissioner Harold A. Meyer, "if seven or eight boys cut from the boys' basketball team decide they want to be on the girls' team? You laugh, but in Illinois in 1965, the Dixon High School bowling team came to the girls' statewide tournament with four boys and one girl and proceeded to win the tournament."

We aren't laughing. Believe us, we aren't laughing.

Grisly murder of John Roselli

WASHINGTON — It was a grisly end for John Roselli, the dapper, debonair mobster about town, who had been a familiar figure in the glittering nightspots of Hollywood, Las Vegas and Havana.

His killers shot or stabbed him in the stomach. The autopsy indicates they may have shot him and then dug out the bullet with a knife. Then they brutally hacked off his legs. It is possible that he was still alive when they stuffed his body into a 55-gallon drum.

They wrapped chains around the drum to weight it down and tossed it into Biscayne Bay. The autopsy suggests he may have died of asphyxiation inside the drum before it hit the water. The gases from the decomposing body floated the heavy container to the surface. It was discovered, with its nightmarish contents, 10 days after Roselli had disappeared from his sister's home in Plantation, Fla.

The police withheld the gruesome details of his death while they searched for his killers. We began our own investigation, meanwhile, after an appeal from his associates.

We first encountered Johnny Roselli more than five years ago. We were investigating his role in the Central Intelligence Agency's plot to assassinate Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The CIA case officer, William Harvey, told us that Roselli had been the hero of the abortive adventure. Harvey broke his oath of secrecy because he thought it might help Roselli, who was in trouble with the law. The CIA agent had nothing but praise for Roselli's daring.

In the strictest of confidence, Roselli himself confirmed that he had directed six assassination attempts against Castro. We protected his confidence, so he came to trust us. We were the only newsmen he would talk to.

So when he vanished last month his associates came to us for help. We were suspicious, of course, that his disappearance was linked to the Castro caper. But our investigation has now produced evidence to the contrary.

We have learned, for example, that Roselli was not the amiable, retired old duffer he pretended to be. He began in the big time as a bookkeeper for Chicago's notorious Al Capone and became a specialist in white-collar crimes. It's a profession, apparently, that he never gave up.

Competent sources say that, between rounds on the Florida golf courses, Roselli was involved in stolen securities and financial swindles. His operations reportedly were resented by Santo Trafficante, who has been identified in Senate testimony as the Mafia chief in Florida.

Roselli came to Florida from Las Vegas, where he allegedly represented the Chicago mob. Our sources say that he handled millions in illegal gambling money, which he forwarded to the Chicago underworld. There are reports that Chicago crime lord Tony Accardo felt he had been short-changed by Roselli.

Still earlier, Roselli spent time in the slammer; first, for extortion and, later, for a card swindle. Those who know him say he had developed a taste for the good life. He dressed in the latest styles, dined at the best restaurants and dated beautiful women. The thought of going back to prison, friends say, horrified him.

To avoid prison, Roselli began to talk to the government as early as 1970. He gave information, according to our sources, which resulted in a grand jury confrontation for Tony Accardo. The surly mobster took the fifth. But Accardo grumbled to associates that he would pay back Roselli some day.

Roselli was also blamed for passing information to the government, which led to the conviction of Detroit mobster Anthony Zerilli. He is now serving a four-year sentence at Sandstone federal penitentiary for racketeering.

Perhaps the last straw was Roselli's testimony in the Castro case. He identified two mobsters, the late Sam Giancana and Santo Trafficante, as being involved in the assassination attempts. It's no secret in the underworld that Trafficante detests publicity.

Our sources believe that the Mafia bosses finally became fed up with Roselli. His execution would have required the approval of the top leaders, our sources say, because it was almost certain to bring the federal government into the case.

Who were the vicious killers? The only clue is a smudge spot on the window of Roselli's car. One of his assailants probably had used a greasy hair pomade.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Contrary to press speculation, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller does not want to be Secretary of State. If the Republicans win in November, he will not seek Henry Kissinger's job. Rockefeller told us categorically that he doesn't intend to serve in the next administration.

—Sen. William Scott, R.-Va., has told us he's "ready to retire" at the end of his term in 1979. Not unless he is absolutely needed to stop a Democrat from capturing his Senate seat, he said, would he run again. Scott once called a press conference to deny that he was the "dumbest man in the Senate." He also denies a report that, during a discussion with a Soviet official in Moscow, he angrily accused the Soviet of being a Communist.

Ways to get around voter

By EARL G. WATERS

Public employes, reacting to increasing complaints that their salaries and retirement programs are pushing local governments to the brink of fiscal disaster, are fighting back. They are contending that the loose assumption of indebtedness by local governmental agencies is the real threat to the solvency.

An August 15 bulletin of the California Taxpayers Association would tend to support, at least partially, that contention although the salaries paid local officials are not to be discounted for their contributions to the rapid weakening of their financial positions. Nor should the dangerous imbalances of many local pensions funds be shunted aside.

But the apparent trend of government to taking the easy way out by going into debt seems to call for more than just some "concern" as CalTax suggests. It should be cause for great alarm.

Until recent years bonded indebtedness could only be incurred by government through voter approval. Even so, state and local governments, especially the school districts, have been floating bonds right and left for the past two decades building up a staggering total. Since state bonds are a general obligation upon all taxpayers the effect has not been nearly so devastating as those issued by local governments which fall upon the property owners.

Because of that there developed a growing resistance to local bond issues. So much so that local government officials began searching for ways around the requirements for voter approval. One way was to reduce the necessary approval vote from a two-thirds to a simple majority. In many instances the bond proponents couldn't even get that.

Other ways were developed to bypass the voters. Among these were revenue bonds, lease purchase agreements, and ultimately the authority for joint powers agreements. This latter method, whereby through agreement, by local governing bodies an overlapping agency can be created which can issue bonds without reference to the voters, has resulted in a boom in bonded indebtedness.

According to CalTax the total bonds issued by joint powers agencies in the 1973-74 fiscal year was more than $500 million. Added to this was another recent vintage vehicle, the non-profit corporation created by public bodies, which issued another $250 million. That along with the authority held by redevelopment and housing renewal agencies to issue bonds, together with the use of lease purchase agreements, made the grand total near $1 billion for the year. Interest alone will require the property owners to pony up $40 million annually. This does not count what is paid in interest for indebtedness incurred prior to or since that year. Nor does it include the interest paid on bond issues approved by the taxpayers.

CalTax says a large share of the total load can be attributed to the debts run up by the multitude of special districts which have grown in numbers by one third in just ten years. It notes particularly the growth of the non-profit corporations which sprung from zero in 1971 to 83 by 1974 and the joint powers agencies which multiplied from 35 in 1968 to 190 by 1974.

Through such devices the local officials are circumventing the specific constitutional provision which prohibits any city, county or school district, from obligating any debts greater than current income without voter approval.

Think on these things

If we feel guilty long enough we are sure to find a way to punish ourselves. We have the unique ability to actually get sick from not being able to forgive something we have done, or believe that someone else could forgive us.

The mind is a powerful instrument and it subconsciously does what we tell it to without our realizing we have even said anything. We do it by thinking, speaking and acting negatively at every turn. It is so much easier to complain and seek sympathy than to weed out the bad that is taking up space. Very often the best healing comes from close examination of what we are thinking and of the words we speak. Our words and our thoughts are like sand that sifts easily through the tiniest hole. We need to stop the flow until we know where it is going.

The culprit was under-production

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — We talk about unemployment and inflation in a most curious way, as if we must suffer high unemployment to combat inflation. Or that to have "full" employment we must have intolerable inflation.

The reverse, however, may be true. Much of our inflation today is the result of under-production in the past. We could have had greater production, of course, if we had invested more capital and put more men to work in those areas of critical shortages — usually certain raw materials such as petroleum and metals, and in a variety of industrial materials.

Again, this would not have led to boom and bust, and need not in the future if employment is high enough. Also if the return in capital and labor is great enough to absorb expanding production and provide capital for the investment. Money is sorely needed for research and purchase of improved machinery — the key both to increased returns and increasing wages.

The answer here is not more government jobs. At best, these are temporary, which leaves us with the problem. Increased government jobs increase government red tape and inefficiencies and put a strain in the economy, leading to more unemployment.

Now men and women need jobs and there's no gainsaying this.

But unless we want the smothering social governments in so many countries, these jobs must be found in private industry. All presidential candidates — Mr. Ford, Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter agree on that thesis, though Carter waffles at times.

The problem is that no one knows how to create more jobs in private industry. A score of government stimulants have been attempted, some with temporary success but overall they've scarcely scratched the surface. So we are left with theories.

My own guess is that business doesn't need more tax breaks, or even a continuation of some breaks already given industry. Some of these, perhaps all, tend to distort investment. Certainly business does not need the protective hand of the Defense Department, overly anxious to make certain none of its major suppliers goes broke, however inefficient and bumbling the firms may be.

What business needs is freedom from 60 per cent of the red tape and contradictory regulations which make efficient operations impossible to operate in too many instances.

Businessmen complain they must deal with 20, 30, 40 and 50 bureaus and offices in crucial problems. In some cases, one agency will insist on certain practices and procedures. Another will insist on other contradictory methods. Companies find it impossible, of course, to satisfy both.

A friend, president of a small business firm, complains that filling out forms, attending meetings and conferences held by regulatory agencies and securing interpretations of complex rulings takes so many of his days, and those of his senior officers, it is impossible to devote the necessary time to run the business at a profit.

Even so, the regulations are so all encompassing and vague that it is, more often than not, impossible for a businessman to determine whether or not he is in violation of some law. It is likely that if he calls the government for assistance, and the answering official discovers a violation, the businessman will be fined without a chance to voluntarily come into compliance.

Tax laws are no exception. A research company president tells me it is more profitable to hire an additional tax lawyer than to take on another scientist — and science is what the firm is all about.

Another story about shocking assesment

I beleive the method used by the Los Angeles County assessor to determine the market value of my home is unfair.

When I purchased my home in April 1959, the price was $5,500. In 1975 the market value was $7,500. Now it is placed at $16,000.

I haven't improved it, so don't understand why it should be assessed so highly.

The house is 29 years old. Recently I asked a real estate salesman to see what he could get for it. He said I would be lucky to get $10,00 to $12,000 out of it and it would be best for me to sell it myself.

Then I showed him my new tax assessment statement. He said I should protest such an increase, that no way would anyone give me $16,000 for it.

Other houses in my block are assessed at $12,000, $14,000 and $11,000.

When I phone the assessor's regional office in West Covina, I was told I would have to file a protest and the people at the office would show me on paper how they arrived at the $16,000 figure.

They said they could not send a man to every house. How can they set an honest value without seeing the house?

Maybe you can help me. — E. F., San Dimas.

We wrote to the main office. You decided to play safe by filing an appeal at the regional office, 1517 W. Garey Ave. North, West Covina.

We got no answer from the main office. You sent us a copy of the procedure for filing for a hearing with the County of Los Angeles Assessment Appeals Boards.

You red-penciled two statements which appeared to you contradictory.

One read: "Comparing your assessment with the assessed values of comparable properties will not establish the fair market value of your property and is therefore not permissible."

The other listed "comparable sales with knowledge of age, condition and size" as one type of evidence that would be received to establish the fair market value of property.

The deadline for filing an appeal, incidentally, is Sept. 15.

I'm going abroad by air for the first time this fall. As a reader of Action Line, I have observed that many air travelers have problems. How can I reduce mine to the minimum? I'm not going by charter plane. — A. F., Montclair

Here is advice offered by the federal Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration:

Ask about discount fares. Most of these have restrictions as to length of stay, accommodations included, travel on certain days of the week.

Pay attention to the restrictions. If you don't, the fare goes back to the regular costs.

You have to pay the fare in effect on the date your trip begins. If the fare increases after your reservations are made, or after you get your tickets, you'll be charged the addtional amount.

Be sure you check your tickets as soon as you get them. Have any error corrected right away.

Check-in time can vary from airport to airport. Be sure to ask the airlines or your travel agent for the check-in time on your flights.

Failing to check in on time can result in cancellation of your reservation.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, Aug. 28, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This will be a pleasant and harmonious day for you if you take a middle-of-the-road attitude and let destiny run its course.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do something out of doors today that requires you to be active both in the mental and physical sense. It doesn't have to be strenuous.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Involve yourself in activities where you can relax and enjoy yourself. Don't take life too seriously today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions will follow your example today. If you're calm and at peace with yourself it will put them at ease.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to find yourself a bit restless today and may require a change of scenery. Go somewhere different. Be sure it's a quiet spot.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may rub shoulders socially today with one who could later be an asset to you businesswise. Be alert for tips.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let the management of matters that are personally important slip from your hands today. Stay on top of things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If at all possible today, avoid crowds or noisy groups. You need to be alone with your very special someone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll find you'll be in a rather gregarious mood again today. Plan something that takes you where the acton is.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can do your image a lot of good today by not taking yourself too seriously. Let others see you're a very easy guy to get along with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Judge others as you'd like them to judge you and you'll end up winning new friends today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone is looking out for your interests today, though you may not know it immediately. It's regarding something quite important.

Your Birthday Aug. 28, 1976

Your material lot should improve considerably this year, if you manage your resources wisely. Opportunities for accumulation could come through allies.

Ann Landers

A matter of interpretation

Dear Ann Landers: You gave a Jewish answer to a Christian lady. Small wonder you goofed. You told "One of the Millions": "A place in heaven is not for sale. And neither is peace of mind. There are no short cuts or free passes to the pearly gates."

According to Jesus, a seat in heaven CAN be bought. In Matthew, Chapter 25, verses 31 to 36 and 40, while answering Peter's, Andrew's, John's and James' questions about the Second Coming, Jesus said, "When the son of man shall come in his glory and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall separate them one from another, the sheeps from the goats, then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, 'I was ahungered and ye gave me meat and drink. I was a stranger and ye took me in. Naked, and ye clothed me. I was sick and ye visited me. I was in prison and ye came unto me.' And the king shall answer and say unto them, verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

I hope you get the picture. — Unemployed College Grad In Flint

Dear Grad: I checked your answer with someone who was sure to give me a Christian answer. This is what Father Theodore Hesburgh, President of the University of Notre Dame, had to say:

"Your answer to 'One Of The Millions' was completely correct. The reader who was critical put a different interpretation on the word 'buying.'

"Buying generally means money, and this is what you were rejecting. Your reader was making reference to the fact that we can 'earn' our way to heaven by loving God and our neighbor with a whole heart. Jesus identified Himself with the poor, the hungry, the weak and those in prison. He told us that in helping them, we are helping Him."

(P.S. I hope you and all those other unemployed college grads find work soon.)

Dear Ann Landers: I can't stand this problem anymore. My parents were divorced 15 years ago, after 35 years of marriage. Dad married a younger woman and they have a very good life. She treats him swell and they mind their own business.

My sister and I had nothing to do with Dad for 12 years. Sis decided three years ago to let bygones be bygones. In the meantime, Mom has turned into a self-pitying, vindictive shrew. Her main interest in life is to find out if we are seeing Dad and his new wife. Mom has alienated all her friends. She does nothing but smoke cigarettes, complain about her health and bum-rap Dad.

I'm getting all the heat now, because my sister and her husband refuse to listen. What I want to know is how much I owe my mother. Sis and I are in our 40s. Dad is over 70. Must I ignore him for the rest of my life just to please my mother? — Tortured In Salem

Dear Tort: What a waste of 15 years! Your sister, on the other hand, wasted 12, but at least she came to her senses.

The divorced parent who forces a child to "choose me or him" deserves to be the one who is excluded.

CONFIDENTIAL to Lower Than Low: It's not all bad. According to the top authorities in the field of mental health, a person who cannot suffer and never becomes depressed lacks some vital dimensions in his personality. He is incapable of developing deep or durable relationships with others.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Hostess with the mostest

"A gracious hostess" is a phrase that appears in the society columns of all newspapers with the frequency of the weather report. And it's just about as accurate.

There is no such thing as a gracious hostess. The woman at the dinner party who is charming, at ease, as relaxed as a sprung girdle is a guest, never the hostess.

The hostess, by definition, is hurried, harried, harassed and unhappy, worrying about a thousand details, scurrying hither and yon, talking with bright urgency to everyone at once, shooting warning glances at her husband over everything from his ribald stories to the shortage of ice. While ceaselessly wondering if "everyone is having a good time," she is absolutely miserable.

Planning a dinner party, like devising the invasion of Normandy starts long in advance, and the results are frequently the same. Sitting down to write invitations to people she "owes," the soon-to-be hostess is very close to gracious. Her notes are witty and informal, with gay references to "taking potluck with us." The mood prevails until the moment she drops the letters in the postbox. That's her last cheerful moment for two weeks. From then on it's doom and disaster gathering steam.

First comes the List Period — lists of groceries, liquor, chores, things to get, things to ask Jim to be sure to pick up, arrangements for the children and waxing the floor and could Matilda come an extra afternoon that week, and do the Forsythes eat meat, etc.

Somehow the house is shining and lovely on the evening of the party. The potluck (pressed duck, pommes de terre Anatole and crepe Suzette) is in good shape, and the guests arrive pretty much on time. Now for the gracious hostess.

Every ring of the doorbell goes through her like a knife; every clatter from the kitchen brings up her head like a startled fawn. She notices a corner the dust rag missed; the little spot on the carpet grows larger in her imagination with each passing moment.

The hostess talks and laughs and laughs and talks with her mind in the kitchen and her nerves taut as a tennis racket. She hears a child's voice and has palpitations; the maid hisses at her from the kitchen and she dies.

It may be the best party of the season, but to the hostess it is a debacle from start to finish. The guests are enjoying themselves (They don't seem to be mixing, she thinks); her husband is a jovial host (Has he had too much to drink?); the food is exquisite (I wonder if there's enough to go around, if it is cooked properly, if people will like it).

With dinner out of the way (They SAID they liked it, but DID they?) and the roof not yet fallen, there is, for the hostess, a reprise of postprandial tortures and agonies. Will the evening never end? she wonders. Will people never leave? And when they finally do she is broken-hearted. They didn't have a good time. "It was a wonderful party," everyone says, but she knows they're lying, knows they're talking about her on the way home.

Lying in bed at night she goes over the party from start to finish a thousand times. Should she have done this, or did that go well? And always, "I wonder if they had a good time."

Show me the girl who is relaxed and happy, and I'll show you one who isn't giving a dinner party tonight.

Dr. Lamb

Hemorrhoids are common woe

DEAR DR. LAMB — Hemorrhoids! Doctors' columns and volumes have been written about the care and treatment of hemorrhoids, but despite being such a common problem nothing I have read instructs me in how to prevent them from getting any worse or even curing them short of surgery.

At 51 I am active, play tennis and golf and am in good physical condition except for what my doctor calls a moderate case of hemorrhoids — bleeding after an elimination several times in succession every two weeks.

I avoid heavy lifting. My office job involves sitting, but I move about intentionally and exercise daily. Diet has never triggered or affected this condition. I have always eaten plenty of roughage, nuts and salads except on those specific occasions after an examination when my doctor would specifically recommend a bland diet. It was questionable whether it actually helped or hindered.

I know this condition is probably progressing toward the inevitable surgery someday. Why? The medical profession has done less about this condition through the years than about the common cold. The percentage of people who experience some sort of elimination problem because of hemorrhoids after age 40 would probably astound the world. Active or inactive, bland or roughage, to bleed or not to bleed, to cut or not to cut. What do we do now, doctor?

DEAR READER — If you don't like what the medical profession has to offer for hemorrhoids today you could use one of the ancient treatments. The patient was held down while a red hot poker was applied to the hemorrhoids. Perhaps with this treatment in mind you will retract your statement that the doctors have made little progress in this area.

Seriously, hemorrhoids are varicose veins of the rectal area. And you are right they are very common. Anyone who gets so much mail as I do from people everywhere is acutely aware of how common this problem is.

The veins become overstretched and dilated which is all a hemorrhoid is. The best that can be offered in prevention is to avoid anything that overstretches the veins in this area.

Being upright, two-footed creatures, gravity plays a role in causing hemorrhoids just as it does in varicose veins. You don't normally have overdilated varicose veins of the arms or head area because these areas drain down to the heart. Similarly, four-footed animals seldom have hemorrhoids because the heart is in the chest below the rectal area.

The best aid in preventing distention of the rectal veins is to avoid straining during elimination. That means you need to avoid constipation and bowel problems. Sometimes a stool softener is helpful if needed. Usually the diets that contain adequate amounts of cereal fiber to provide adequate bulk and "softage" will help avoid this problem.

If you will follow a program along the lines of that suggested in The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation, which I am sending you, that may help. Others who want this information on bowel management can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Jacoby's bridge

Safety play sinks Titanic

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In looking over our collection of hands we find one from the Bridge World of May, 1940. It is from an article by J. C. Stablein entitled, "Precaution."

The author does not give the bidding or the East-West hands, but comments that they probably used precaution in only getting to five spades.

The queen of diamonds is opened and South ducks in dummy. The precaution was necessary to guard against finding West with all six diamonds.

We have taken the liberty of making up our own East-West hands. We put the same cautious declarer in the South seat. He ducks the first diamond and now look what happens to him.

	NORTH (D) 27 ♠ A Q 7 ♥ A 10 ♦ A K 9 7 5 ♣ A J 5
WEST ♠ 4 3 ♥ J 8 7 6 4 2 ♦ Q J 10 3 2 ♣ —		EAST ♠ 5 2 ♥ Q 9 3 ♦ 6 ♣ K Q 10 9 8 6 2
	SOUTH ♠ K J 10 9 8 6 ♥ K 5 ♦ 8 4 ♣ 7 4 3 Both vulnerable

West	North	East	South
	3 N.T.	Pass	5 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — Q ♦

West continues with the deuce of diamonds. East ruffs that lead. He had started with exactly one diamond. Then East leads a club. West ruffs and South's safety play has become an unsafety play.

Ask the Jacobys

A Vermont reader wants to know what we bid with:

♠ x x ♥ x x x x ♦ A K x x ♣ A K x

after our right-hand opponents open one heart?

This is an easy one. We pass irrespective of vulnerability. This may turn out to be losing action, but a double or a two-diamond overcall may land us in really bad trouble. Remember that the fact that a hand is worth an opening bid does not mean that it is worth an overcall.

June nuptials most lasting

The shell of a hen's egg has long been described as the most perfect container in nature. But it's still not good enough, evidently. Now the bright minds in the egg industry have come up with a technique whereby they can separate the yolks from the whites, hard-boil and quick-freeze them in eight-inch-long molds, and deliver to the marketplace lengthy eggs from which of each for your next big salad you can get 40 fancy slices. Replacing the old most perfect container in nature are new egg shells made of plastic film.

Please add to those never-die one-liners: "Old postal workers never die, they just lose their zip." "Old refrigerators never die, they just lose their cool." "Old motormen never die, they just lose their grip."

LOVE AND WAR

Q. "Ask your Love and War man to explain why June marriages have the lowest divorce rate."

A. He can only guess that a relatively large number of couples who marry in June do so after lengthy engagements while awaiting graduation. It is the lengthy engagement which deserves the credit, possibly. Why couples who marry in January, February and March have the highest divorce rate remains a mystery, he says.

Q. "Isn't it possible for people to collect on phony insurance claims by pretending they've lost their hearing?"

A. Not anymore. Investigators now require them to talk into microphones. Their voices are played back to them through earphones with a delay of two or three tenths of a second. If they're truly deaf, they can go on talking. If not, the sound of their own words, bouncing back to them, confuses them, and they stammer, and then stop.

PAROLE?

Remember Richard Speck, convicted in the murders of eight Chicago nurses? Recall Charles Manson, convicted in the murders of seven souls in Southern California? Both of these fellows will be eligible for parole in November or thereabouts. Eligible doesn't mean they'll get out, sure enough. But it's an excruciating word, eligible, in these cases, isn't it?

Still another candidate for membership in the Proper Job Club is Ms. Eide (pronounced ID) who's an identification clerk with the police in Seattle, Wash.

What does the word "teen" mean to you? In Scotland, it's a synonym for "grief."

Nor has our Language man had any luck so far in tracking down the origin of the expression: "Since Hector was a pup."

It's at every sixth stride that the running jackrabbit leaps a little higher to take a look around the landscape.

ADDS VIEW — Owner-built desk extending over sloping yard adds outdoor dining area to take advantage of valley view. Decking of 2x4-inch Douglas fir on edge rests on 2x8-inch fir joists and 4x4-inch treated fir posts. Hole in deck retains existing tree to provide shade.

Small deck adds big view

Small additions can make huge differences in the livability of a house, as many homeowners have realized after completing a remodeling or renovating job.

In one instance, it was just a small deck, added adjacent to an existing concrete patio, but it provided gracious outdoor dining space, projected over a sloping lot to open up a beautiful valley view through trees on the adjoining property.

The owner, with some design help from a landscape architect, built the deck himself although he was inexperienced with a hammer and saw.

Lead to view

The decking of slightly spaced western wood 2x4s, set on edge, extends from the existing patio out to the curved railing, and leads the eye to that part of the deck with the best view.

The railing is constructed of paired 1x4 boards, nailed to opposite sides of 4x4 posts with galvanized nails to avoid rust stains.

The boards were curved by sawing kerfs a third of the thickness of the boards, spaced an inch apart the length of the boards. Height and other details of railings are covered by local codes, so it is best to check these before construction.

Posts take care

Posts of 4x4-inch Douglas fir and 2x8-inch joists support the decking of 2x4s. The posts can be set into the ground or on concrete piers, but the bottoms of the posts should be preservative-treated when they are in continued contact with moisture.

Lifting the deck out of the ordinary was accomplished by cutting the 2x4 decking on a curve around the perimeter, and by leaving a square hole near the center around an existing tree, so that it shades the picnic table and benches.

The deck and railing were left unfinished so they would weather to a natural gray and blend in with the landscaping of the yard.

Crape Myrtles in the summer

Drive through a valley town on summer's hottest day and look for the freshest thing in sight. You'll probably find that it's one of the many fine Crape Myrtles. Truly, these shrubs have a spring-fresh look about them in shades of pink, red, white and lavender. You won't see Crape Myrtles in most coastal climates, for they resent moist ocean air. In the interior areas, they're tops for hot weather color.

Here's the answer

Q. — There are several shingles on my asphalt roof which were damaged during a recent storm. I have some extra shingles which I can use to replace the old ones. The one thing that puzzles me is how to remove the nails that are hidden. Is there some knack to this?

A. — It isn't a knack so much as it is the use of the correct tool. Go to a building supply dealer and buy a nail puller. Explain what it is to be used for and ask exactly how it is used. With most nail pullers, one is slipped under a shingle so that it will cut off the head of the nail when its outward end is struck with a hammer. However, get the instructions, since there are some types that are used a bit differently.

Q.—We want to buy those outside shutters that are kept permanently in place. How large should they be in relation to the windows?

A.—They should be the same height as the windows. Each shutter should be half the width of the window, so that if the shutters were closed, as they often were years ago, they would completely cover the window.

Gardener's checklist

Now is the time to plant Winter Sweet Peas for color during the holiday season.

For fall color, now is the time to put in bedding plants. Your nurseryman has a fine selection.

Use a weed control on your lawn this month, and fertilize and water heavily to encourage true lawn grasses.

Stake and tie chrysanthemums to prevent drooping and breaking. Disbud if you want show-type blooms.

Golden Gate Park: squatters delight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tourists who visit Golden Gate Park seldom dig deep enough into shrubbery to meet the park's only fulltime human inhabitants — about 50 hard drinking, panhandling young squatters.

"We're like a family," says 20-year-old Ron. "Every time I buy a bottle, I pay a tax on it. And that tax pays my rent."

Police do not see the freelance campers quite that way, but they find it difficult to enforce the city's misdemeanor law against sleeping in the 1,017-acre park. "The problem is finding 'em," one policeman says. "I imagine they're secreted pretty good."

The park dwellers, mostly in their 20s, occasionally stroll nearby Haight Street panhandling money for junk food and liquor. Their sleeping quarters, often within a bottle's toss of busy streets, range from hidden latticework to tree roots to simple clearings in dense undergrowth. Some have sleeping bags or blankets, but many use newspapers or cardboard to ward off the chill.

Jose, a 24-year-old New Jersey high school dropout, says he has lived in the park for five years. "I like sleeping under the sky and smelling the green," he comments starting his day with Thunderbird wine and a beer. "I'd rather be doing this than hanging around some grungy apartment."

But the park campers have their own garbage collection service. Gardener Ramon Gonzales, 25, pushes his wheelbarrow into the bushes and tells the squatters to put their garbage into it.

Gonzales estimates that there are about 50 park residents this summer, the largest number in his six years on the job. "I tolerate them," he says. "They're part of the park. And it's better to have them here than in front of my house."

The regulars have a cavalier attitude towards alcohol, drifters and violence.

"We're definitely alcoholics," admits Ron, whose constant companion is a cat named Wharf Rat. And Jose adds, "We're young and strong and we're breaking our bodies down. But we can take it."

Ron says young people passing through don't bother him much. "You're gonna get your tourist turkeys wherever you go."

Not many of the park dwellers heard about the death of one passer-through, an 18-year-old from New Jersey who was bludgeoned in his sleeping bag on June 27. But they recalled that one drunken fight ended with a 20-year-old woman's face cut so badly from a broken beer bottle and a plank that she required plastic surgery.

"We live in the park," Jose remarked. "It's our way. We got to do it right."

Discipline allegations are denied

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Monterey Park couple has denied charges by the state attorney general's office that improper forms of discipline are used at their preschool.

The allegations against Philip and Rose Marie Alterio, owners of Children's Village Day School, included reported incidents of striking, shaking, screaming at and splashing water in the faces of students 2 to 5 years old.

A decision on whether the school will continue to operate is forthcoming in 15 days, said an attorney general's spokesman.

"The allegations . . . are categorically denied by my husband and myself," Mrs. Alterio said..

Locates sister

Stamatis, who had not seen Mrs. Berbeles since she left Greece 57 years ago, wrote a letter addressed to the "Honorable Mayor of Ohio," seeking information on his sister's whereabouts.

The letter landed in the office of Cincinnati Mayor Bobbie Sterne. He noted that Canton was mentioned in the address and forwarded the letter to Canton Mayor Stanley Cmich.

Cmich passed the letter on to his receptionist Helen Christ, who knew Mrs. Berbeles from St. Haralambos Greek Orthodox Church.

Mrs. Berbeles said she wrote back to her brother immediately.

Almanac

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, American troops began landing in Japan at the end of World War II. It was the first foreign occupation of the country in modern times.

On this date —

In 1859, the first oil well in the United States was drilled near Titusville, Pa.

In 1862, the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, was seized as he was on his way to capture Rome.

In 1928, the Kellogg-Brian pact to outlaw war was signed in Paris.

In 1939, Nazi Germany demanded Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

In 1967, 16 American skydivers were killed when they plunged into Lake Erie off Huron, Ohio.

In 1969, An Israeli commando force penetrated deep into Egyptian territory to stage a mortar attack on a regional military headquarters in the Nile valley of upper Egypt.

Ten years ago: French President Charles de Gaulle arrived in Ethiopia from Somaliland, where his visit had been marred by bloody rioting.

Five years ago: A coup was attempted in the African country of Chad failed, and the government accused Egypt of playing a role in the attempt and broke diplomatic relations.

One year ago: Deposed Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia died in his palace at the age of 83.

Today's birthday: Economist Walter Heller is 61 years old.

Thought for today: Save a boyfriend for a rainy day and another in case it doesn't rain — May West, born 1892.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British rapidly overwhelmed American forces in the Battle of Long Island, with 1,500 American troops killed, wounded and captured and English and Hessian losses at about about 400.

Surrounded

Lesotho, the former British dependency of Basutoland which became independent in 1966, is about the size of the state of Maryland and completely surrounded by the Union of South Africa.

Takasugi off ballot

The name of former Pomona Superior Court Judge Robert Takasugi has been removed from the November ballot as the result of special legislation signed during the weekend by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Two opponents he outpolled in the June primary will run for the office.

Takasugi, now a U.S. District Court judge, planned to run for his county judgeship before he was appointed to the federal court just prior to the primary election. His name remained on the primary ballot and he outpolled his opponents, but did not win a majority. Thus, his name was placed on the November ballot for a runoff.

When the problem became apparent, state and county officials pointed out that it was impossible leagally for the judge's name to be removed from the ballot in spite of the fact that by then he was a federal judge and no longer sought the county office. As a result, special legislation was prepared in Sacramento making it possible to remove Takasugi's name.

As a result the names of the runners-up, Los Angeles Municipal Court Judges David J. Aisenson and Nathan Axel, will appear on the ballot for Takasugi's former post, Office No. 40.

Wayward bus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Municipal Railway's No. 8 trolley coach rolled down Market Street, and rolled and rolled and rolled as its irate driver refused to let his passengers off and reportedly even challenged some to fistfights.

"The whole thing was absolute hysteria," recalled Toni Stone, one of those who finally managed to squeeze through a door kicked open by a frustrated rider during the hair-raising trip Wednesday in downtown San Francisco.

As described later by some of the captive passengers, the trouble apparently began when several impatient commuters tried to crowd at once on board the electric-powered bus.

Chapman said the driver, identified later by the Municipal Railway as Maurice James, of San Francisco, was asked by one passenger to instruct other riders to move to the back of the coach.

"Why don't you tell them yourself?" Chapman said the driver snapped, and things reportedly went downhill from there.

"At about Haight Street, we all began to realize that the driver wasn't letting anyone off. The buzzer was going like crazy," said Miss Stone, public service director for radio station KABL.

The coach continued to make its way down busy Market Street without halting at bus stops, the passengers said. The appearance of a transit inspector at a red light was to no avail.

"We had to stop again at Third," said Miss Stone, "and one of the men just inside the front door began kicking it until it opened. A lot of us got out then."

"We got about ten calls from passengers complaining about it," said Carl Barton, superintendent of transportation. Barton said James was relieved of his duties "pending completion of our investigation of the incident."

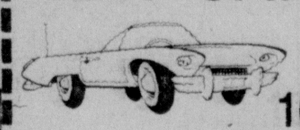

Nature show

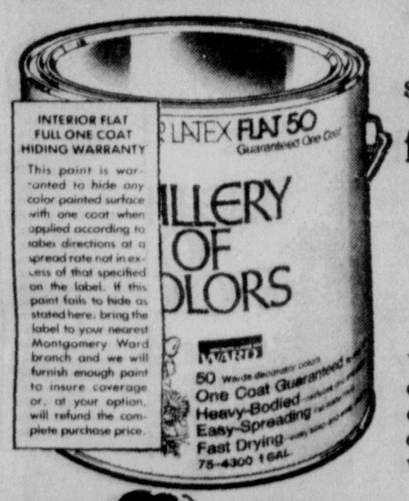

"Yosemite in the Four Seasons" and "Fascinating Desert," a slide show, will be presented by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peterson on Wednesday at 2 p.m. in the multipurpose room of the Upland Public Library.

Mrs. Peterson, a retired high school English teacher, compiled and narrated the tape for the show. Mr. Peterson is a five-star exhibitor in the Photographic Society of America. His work is on exhibit at the Los Angeles County Fair each year.

The public is welcome to the free program.

The Kellogg Foundation: aid to Latin America

$30 million or more for agriculture

The Kellogg Foundation probably will allocate between $30 and $40 million for programs in agriculture, health and education in Latin America in the next 10 years, according to Cal Poly Pomona President Robert C. Kramer who just returned from a five-month trip on behalf of the foundation.

Kramer has submitted a 240-page report of evaluation and recommendations to the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich., based upon his assignment to South and Central America.

He assessed the agricultural and educational programs in Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Columbia, Brazil and the Dominican Republic. During the 22 weeks, Kramer traveled 50,000 miles by air and 5,000 miles on the roads of the seven countries.

To write the report, Kramer matched his perceptions of the agricultural and educational needs of the countries as he saw them with his appraisal of existing programs and projects which he visited and studied.

The report will serve as one of the guidelines for the foundation's appropriation of those funds, Kramer said.

Kramer added he would not disclose the exact content of the report since the information is confidential for the use of the Battle Creek organization.

But, he said, suggestions include the funding of new projects, the continuation of selected current projects and the expansion of certain other ongoing projects.

"I was shocked at the condition of rural education," Kramer said in an informal discussion of the report.

"The national policy of most of the countries is to educate young people to the age of 16. But, in reality, rural children are getting three years or less education.

"Financial support for education in rural areas is pathetically lacking."

Kramer also admits to being appalled by the condition of the urban poor.

"Agricultural mechanization and other conditions have made it impossible for many rural families to eke out a living from farming anymore. They drift into the cities — into urban slums with no water, no electricity and little hope of finding jobs."

Kramer makes it clear that he believes the small-farmer must be helped.

"In the past, the emphasis of agricultural aid to those countries," he said, "has been on large scale farming and technology. The labor saving machinery caused the farm laborers to lose their jobs."

Kramer added that only the wealthy landowner could buy costly machines and the rural poor lost out.

"Now aid must be channeled to the small farmer," the college president said.

Because of widespread illiteracy, the rural poor must be informed through other than the written word. Kramer sees the rural radio as filling this need.

"Everybody in Latin America, no matter how poor, has a transistor radio," Kramer reported. "The workers in the cane fields have transistors hanging from the nearest stalk. They can't read or write, but they can be reached."

The rural radio stations already sandwich educational information in between local "gossip" and music, he said.

Although some aspects of life in Latin America surprised Kramer, such as the extent of urbanization, the development of bridges and buildings and transportation systems, he was well prepared for what he saw.

Prior to his departure, Kramer visited universities in Nebraska and Michigan to talk with faculty members who had been involved with similar projects. He also visited the Rockefeller and Ford foundation offices in New York City and international agencies in Washington, D.C., to be briefed.

Basing himself, and his family who accompanied him, in Cali, Colombia, Kramer spent 11 of his 22 weeks in Latin America traveling. He visited national and private research institutes, universities, manufacturing firms, big, small and experimental farms and communication centers.

According to Kramer, W.K. Kellogg launched the Kellogg Foundation in 1930 when he was 55 and had accumulated $90 million from his cornflake sales.

The program's emphasis was then, and is now, helping in the fields of agriculture, education and health.

Although it has always been the policy of the foundation to spend three-quarters of its total funding in North America, the Kellogg Foundation expanded its area of service to include Latin America in 1942 and has continued to broaden its assistance there since that time.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "HOW IS STRING MADE?"

BRUCE GRIBBLE
NORFOLK, VA

A. STRING IS MADE BY TWISTING COTTON OR OTHER VEGETABLE FIBERS TOGETHER INTO ONE LONG STRAND.

String is a small cord that is useful for tying packages, flying kites and many other purposes.

Still other machines and people, comb, straighten and press the cotton fibers into long, soft ribbons.

The ribbons then go to spinning machines which twist the fibers into long threadlike strands.

Twisting the fibers makes them cling together tightly and gives the string strength.

Several strands are twisted together to form the finished string.

As the string is being made, other machines wind it onto big spools or bobbins.

Finally the string is given a smooth finish by passing it through rollers which coat it with starch.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
NO. EAC-22080
SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

In the Matter of the Application of DAVID ANTHONY BURDGE aka DAVID ANTHONY KAUWE For Change of Name

WHEREAS, DAVID ANTHONY BURDGE, aka DAVID ANTHONY KAUWE, petitioner, has filed a petition with the Clerk of this Court for an order changing petitioner's name from DAVID ANTHONY BURDGE to DAVID ANTHONY KAUWE;

IT IS ORDERED that all persons interested in the above-entitled matter appear before this Court on October 12, 1976 at 9:00 A.M., in the courtroom of EAST "A", 400 Civic Center Plaza, City of Pomona, County of Los Angeles, State of California, and show cause, if any, why the petition for change of name should not be granted.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this order to show cause be published in the Progress Bulletin, a newspaper of general circulation printed in Pomona, County of Los Angeles, State of California, once a week for four successive weeks prior to the date set for hearing on the petition.

Man's auto rear-ended at 100 mph

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Torrance man was killed when his car was slammed from behind by a speeding vehicle, the California Highway Patrol said. The car driven by Covialeski Thomas, 26, was going more than 100 mph when it struck the victim's vehicle, the CHP said. The man has not been identified pending notification of relatives. A passenger, Margaret L. Verry, 28; Thomas, and his passenger, Marva Thomas, 26, were all treated for injuries. Thomas was booked for investigation of felony drunk driving and manslaughter.

The village of "Ninety-Six" was an important trading center and seat of justice for South Carolina during the colonial period and was predominantly Tory in sentiment as the Revolution arrived. Patriot and Tory forces clashed for three days in November, 1775, but in December the Tories were defeated and dispersed. Ninety-six got its name in the belief that the town was 96 miles from the frontier post of Fort Prince George, which was actually only 65 miles away, The World almanac relates.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS CALLING FOR BIDS

Manufacture and Installation of Relocatable Buildings and Purchase Thereof

Contract Documents No. 76-11

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Pomona Unified School District of Los Angeles County, California, acting by and through its Governing Board, hereinafter referred to as the District, will receive up to, but not later than 3:00 o'clock P.M. on the 15th day of September, 1976 sealed bids for the award of the contract for the manufacture and installation of relocatable buildings on a site of the County Superintendent and the purchase thereof. Said relocatable building is described generally as follows:

RELOCATABLE BUILDING TO BE USED, NEIL A. ARMSTRONG SCHOOL, 23750 Beaverhead Drive, DIAMOND BAR, CALIFORNIA 91765

All bids shall be made on a bid furnished by the District.

Bids shall be received in the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Business, Pomona Unified School District, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California, and shall be opened and publicly read aloud at the above stated time and place.

Each bid shall be accompanied by the security referred to in the contract documents and the list of proposed subcontractors.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bids or in the bidding. Preference will be made in the award for California made supplies, porsuant to Section 4330 and 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

Each bid must conform and be responsive to the contract documents, copies of which are on file and may be obtained in the office of the Architect, Cashion-Horle, Architects, Inc., 720 North Park Avenue, Pomona, California 91768. Each bidder may obtain two (2) sets of drawings and specifications upon deposit of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per set. Each twenty-five dollars ($25.00) deposit will be refunded if the drawings and specifications are returned in good condition within ten (10) days after Bid Opening. If mailing is requested, a separate check made payable to Cashion-Horle, Architects, Inc. should be submitted in the amounts of: $5.00 — 1 set; $6.00 — 2 sets.

The District has determined the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which this work is to be performed for each craft of type of workman needed to execute the contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder. These prevailing rates so determined are on exhibit in the Architect's office and the District office, and are available to any interested party on request. The successful bidder will be required to post a copy thereof at each jobsite.

Any classification shall comply with the prevailing wage rate in effect at the time of execution of the work.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded, and upon the subcontractor under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates of the current minimum prevailing rate in the area where the work is performed, to all workmen employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Preference will be made in the award of California-made supplies pursuant to Sections 4330 and 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

All bidders must specify that they are an equal opportunity employer.

Janet Guthrie battles the odds

Janet Guthrie begins her battle against the odds Sunday at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Practice for the 1976 California 500 begins Sunday at 10 a.m. Under the new schedule instituted by general manager Ray Smartis, qualifications will be held Wednesday and Thursday. The race is slated for Sunday, Sept. 5.

That gives Miss Guthrie three days to get ready for qualifications. There is practice slated for two hours, 10 a.m. to noon both days of qualifying, but at Indy, they have at least a week.

Two more hours of practice are on Thursday's schedule and then no more running until Sunday's race.

One battle apparently has been won . . . that of being accepted by the men.

"The USAC drivers have become very friendly," she told a small gathering Thursday at the Sheraton-West Hotel. "In NASCAR, all drivers with the exception of the top two have accepted me."

Naturally, Miss Guthrie is less than fond of the two, Richard Petty and David Pearson.

Petty told the writer last June that in the World 600 stock car race at Charlotte, N.C. Miss Guthrie finished the race but was 30-35 miles behind and really didn't race against anybody.

Petty also said that in the late stages, Miss Guthrie began "wandering" and "made some strange moves out there probably because she was tired."

Personable and cooperative all during the "press conference," Miss Guthrie flashed a look of disgust when the writer asked her about Petty's allegations.

Doesn't like Petty

"Look," she replied frowning, "there were guys that got out of the car after the race and collapsed. I got out, had a drink of water and walked around okay.

"As for wandering around out there, I had a mirror that was vibrating like hell. I really had trouble seeing. I got caught up high once and then went low and got caught there.

"But truly," she concluded, "I think I made fewer mistakes than I saw out there. And as for Richard Petty, I really think he is full of it."

Obviously Miss Guthrie's quotes won't have to be "bleeped" out as are most of the sports figures.

But starting Sunday at OMS, she'll be fighting the odds that are stacked against her for a number of reasons. Take your pick.

The Vollstedt Turbo-Offys that she and teammate Dick Simon will be driving have a history of running well back in the pack if they run at all.

This will be her fifth race, providing she qualifies, in a championship (Indy type) car.

Her best finish was in the Michigan 200, but her best race may have been the Trenton 200 August 15.

In the July 18 Michigan event, she started 12th and finished 13th, her highest finish. But at Trenton, she started 21st and finished 15th.

Back in April, she started 14th and finished 15th at Trenton. Miss Guthrie failed to qualify at Indianapolis and didn't run in the Milwaukee 150.

Lacks experience

In the Pocono 500 June 27, she started 22nd and finished 24th. This can be attributed to her lack of experience since she never drove an Indy type car until last February at OMS. And lack of experience is another reason she fights an uphill battle everytime she goes out to race.

But if Miss Guthrie's low finishes can be written off as due to inexperience, the same can not be said of the team's number one driver, Dick Simon.

The 42-year-old Simon passed his driver's test at Indianapolis 10 years ago. He finished third in the Cal 500 inaugural in 1970, the only time he has ever finished among the top 10 in a 500-mile event.

This year his best finish was 13th (after starting 15th) in the August 15 Trenton 200. Vollstedt's cars don't go very fast, at least for very long.

One reason for that may be money, or lack of it. Vollstedt calls his racing team, "a low buck operation."

Yet at one point he unwittingly revealed what may be the real reason.

"We're debating whether to buy or build new cars for next year," he said. "I'd much rather build my own cars so I can say the car is really mine. But I've come to the conclusion that maybe it would be better to buy somebody else's and WIN."

So Janet Guthrie not only has to drive 500 miles Sept. 5. She'll have to do it uphill.

HERE 'N THERE — Auto racing, Indy type, may go back to the 1975 rules next year. Make the pop-off valves mandatory only in practice and allow 80 inches of manifold pressure.

Antonoplis to face Richards

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Lea Antonoplis of Glendora will be next to face transsexual Renee Richards at the Tennis Week Open.

Miss Antonoplis, ranked No. 3 nationally in women's 18-and-under (she's 17), beat Susan Mehmedbasich of El Cerrito, 6-4, 7-5, Thursday to move into Saturday's semifinals against Dr. Richards.

"I think I can win this tournament," said Dr. Richards after she defeated Kathy Harter Thursday.

The 42-year-old eye surgeon from Newport Beach, Calif., had just beaten a player who, despite being only a memory of her former ability, had at one time been ranked No. 11 in the world and a semifinalist at Wimbledon in 1967.

"I'm delighted I beat a player of her caliber, forgetting all that other stuff," said Dr. Richards, who last year underwent a sex change operation.

Dr. Richards' 6-4, 7-6 victory Thursday in an error-ridden match was her third straight win here and left her "more relaxed than ever with the crowd."

In the remaining quarter-final matches today, top-seeded Marise Kruger of South Africa took on Linda Thomas of Orlando, Fla., and Kerry Meyer of Indianapolis, a late entry here but seeded 14th at the upcoming U.S. Open, faced Florence Guedy of France.

Following Thursday's victory over the 29-year-old Miss Harter, of Seal Beach, Calif., Dr. Richards, whose entry here led to the boycott of 25 women players, seemed much more relaxed than in earlier matches. But she said she remained under intense pressure because she expects criticism whether she wins or loses.

"I'm damned if I do and damned if I don't," she said. "If I lose they'll just say I'm a flash in the pan and not worth all the fuss.

"If I win, they'll say she has this tremendous advantage; we were right in the first place. Either way I come out of this a loser in that sense."

In the men's competition, where the first prize of $10,000 equals the entire women's purse, Balazs Taroczy of Hungary faced Buster Mottram of Great Britain, the winner to meet defending champion Ilie Nastase of Romania in the semifinals Saturday. Nastase defeated Vijay Amritraj of India 7-6, 6-3 Thursday night.

The other men's quarter-final match, between Yugoslavia's Zeliko Franulovic and second-seeded Roscoe Tanner of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., will highlight nighttime action. The winner of that match faces Onny Parun of New Zealand, who defeated Bernie Mitton of South Africa 7-6, 6-4 on Thursday.

The finals in men's singles, men's doubles and women's singles will take place Sunday.

Phils outlast Reds

By Associated Press

Three Reds led off base as 50,000 people cheered in the 12th inning. Tony Perez strode to the plate and Philadelphia's Tug McGraw stared in from the mound, pondering which of his numerous theories would get him out of trouble.

McGraw first called on his "problem and solution theory," considering the situation and that only a perfect pitch would produce the proper solution.

"Some would say my problem was Perez," said McGraw, who said the opposite. "But any time you think of the hitter as a problem, uh, oh—the ball comes down in the parking lot.

"You've just got to think of the hitter as the answer to your solution."

While all this thinking was going on, Perez was waiting for a pitch. He would wait longer, for McGraw hadn't quite finished his discussion with himself. The "frozen snowball theory" was next up.

"Scientists have predicted that 50 billion years from now, the sun will burn out and the earth will orbit like a frozen snowball," explained McGraw. "When that day comes, who will care if Perez hit a grand slam off me?"

It doesn't much matter, for Perez managed only a frozen snowball to center fielder Garry Maddox. The threat was no longer, and McGraw had proven there is no need to talk to baseballs to win when you have so much company out there on the pitcher's mound.

The next inning, Maddox hit a double to score Jay Johnstone from first base and give the Phillies a 5-4 triumph over the Reds—Philadelphia's seventh conquest of Cincinnati in the last nine encounters. It was the Phillies' ninth triumph in their last 12 and the Reds' eighth loss in the last 12.

In the other NL game Thursday, the Houston Astros topped the Chicago Cubs, 5-3. In the only American League game, the Kansas City Royals topped the Boston Red Sox 7-6 in 15 innings.

"Nothing's going right," said Perez.

"At least we're making them take longer," added Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

But none of the Phils seemed much impressed by the fact that Philadelphia has beaten the defending World Champs more times than any other National League team this year.

Astros 5, Cubs 3

J.R. Richard hit his first home run of the season and survived homers by Rick Monday and Bill Madlock to pitch a six-hitter and lift the Astros past the Cubs. Jose Cruz also homered for Houston.

Royals 7, Red Sox 6

Kansas City's Hal McRae tied the game with a two-out, three-run homer in the ninth, then Jim Wohlford's single scored Bob Stinson to win it in the 15th.

Dodgers in N.Y. tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, winners of their last 12 of 15 games, attempt to chip down Cincinnati's eight-game National League West lead tonight when they take on the New York Mets.

Los Angeles, idle Thursday, nevertheless picked up a half game on Cincinnati when the Reds dropped a 5-4 decision to Philadelphia.

The Dodgers, making a final bid to overtake the Reds, had trailed them by as much as 13½ games earlier this month.

Two pitchers with shots at 20 victories this season, the Dodgers' Don Sutton and the Mets' Jerry Koosman, are scheduled to start tonight.

Sutton has a 15-9 record going into the game, while Koosman is 16-7.

Angels' fans to miss 'Bird'

The sensational rookie pitcher, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, is expected to pitch against the Oakland A's Sunday in Oakland.

Thus Angels fans will not see Fidrych this year. The Tigers make their last appearance of the season at Anaheim Stadium Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. If Fidrych pitches against the A's, he'll miss the Angels series.

L.B. Grand Prix may be finished

LONG BEACH (AP) — The future of the Long Beach Grand Prix, brimming in red ink, has become even gloomier with the disclosure that Long Beach public funds were spent to bolster the two privately promoted auto races.

City records show that the Grand Prix Association of Long Beach, Inc., has a debt of $868,744. And a newspaper report says city officials spent some $190,000 of public funds on the races in violation of a contract that required the racing promoters to pay all extraordinary race-connected city expenses.

The report said the money was spent without approval of the City Council, and went for race tickets and parties for city officials and race "insiders," for work on the course and publicity for the races.

Decisions to use public funds to back the races was made by then-City Manager John R. Mansell, the report said, and two of his top aides were friends of Christopher R. Pook, the race promoter.

The two aides, William O. Talley, now Anaheim city manager, and George Medak, Long Beach assistant city manager, were reportedly also instrumental in giving Pook much of the city's travel business last year.

Pook, a travel agent, said he received no favorable treatment because of his friendship with city officials.

Last June 29, Pook proposed to creditors of the race that they settle their bills for 35 cents on the dollar in cash on the promise that Pook would try to persuade his directors to pay the rest of their bills when the company turned a profit.

One of the few creditors to be paid, however, was Pook. His travel agency was paid $12,000 for handling race-related travel, he said, and he was paid $6,000 in salary and reimbursed $14,000 for out-of-pocket expenses.

The city has agreed to go along with a third race provided Pook and his associates clear their debts first.

Metcalf advances

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Unseeded Janice Metcalf of Claremont upset second-seeded Cynthia Doerner of Australia Thursday and advanced to the quarter-finals of the $10,000 Women's Tennis Association Tournament at the Westchester Country Club.

Miss Metcalf beezed to a surprisingly easy 6-0, 6-2 victory. Miss Doerner had been the highest seeded player left in the tourney after Laura Dupont of Charlotte, N.C., had upset No. 1 seed Terry Holladay in the opening round.

Also advancing to the quarter-finals were third seeded Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif, who was extended in beating Helen Gourlay of Tasmania 2-6, 6-1, 6-3 and Wendy Overton, the fourth seed, from Boca Raton, Fla., who ousted Stephanie Tolleson of Phoenix 6-2, 6-4.

Other quarter-finalists will be Mary Carillo of New York, who defeated Glynis Coles of England 7-5, 7-6; Ceci Martinez of San Francisco, who overcame leg cramps and Betsy Nagelson of Winnetka, Ill, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1; Ruta Gerulaitis of New York, who beat Isabel Fernandez of Colombia 6-3, 6-2; Beth Norton, Fairfield, Conn, who defeated Sharon Walsh, Mill Valley, Calif, 7-5, 6-4, and Miss Dupont, who easily handled Betsy Butler of Atlanta 6-2, 6-4.

Transsexual Renee Richards returns ball in Thursday match. Richards won and will face Lea Antonoplis of Glendora in Saturday's action in Tennis Week Open in New Jersey.

OMS faces busy Sunday, Cal 500 practice starts

Ontario Motor Speedway becomes the hub of activity for the motorsports world beginning Sunday when the $30 million racing facility opens for the first day of practice leading to next Sunday's (Sept. 5) California 500 for Indy cars.

OMS general manager Ray Smartis has announced the receipt and acceptance of 43 entries for the $314,000 classic, including cars for four former winners and female driver Janet Guthrie. The field is one of the largest in several years at Ontario.

The former winners seeking an unprecedented repeat victory in the annual classic are A.J. Foyt (1975), Bobby Unser (1974), Wally Dallenbach (1973) and Roger McCluskey (1972). Missing from this year's entry field are Joe Leonard, the 1971 winner and Jim McElreath who captured the inaugural California 500 in 1970 and set the existing race record of 160.106 mph which is expected to fall by the wayside this year.

All four former champions are listed among the pre-race favorites along with 1974-1976 Indy winner Johnny Rutherford and Pocono 500 winner Al Unser, and all are top candidates to win the coveted pole position when qualification runs get underway Wednesday.

Traffic on the two and one-half-mile OMS is expected to be heavy Sunday since drivers and their crews will have only three days to practice and find their best racing combinations before the opening of qualification runs.

The existing qualifying marks of 201.965 and 201.374 mph for one and four laps are not expected to fall because of engine and horsepower restrictions but last year's pole-winning speed of 196.549 mph by Foyt could well fall. The one and four-lap marks were set in 1972 by Bobby Unser.

Miss Guthrie, a former sports car driver and the first female accepted as an Indy 500 entrant, will be making her debut in Cal 500 competition, following her unsuccessful bid to make this year's field at Indianapolis. She did race in the Pocono 500 in June and has enjoyed fair success in other USAC Championship races this season.

The daily practice session will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and general admission to the public is $1. Qualification runs are set for Wednesday and Thursday, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. following a morning practice session each day. Admission to qualifications is $2.

The 33 fastest qualifiers making up the starting field for Race Day will be allowed a four-hour practice period on the track next Friday (Sept. 3) from 1 to 4 p.m. and that activity is open to the public free of charge.

California 500 race tickets are on sale now at the OMS box office and at all Ticketron, Liberty and Ticket Mart outlets.

Super Bowl rematch set

By Associated Press

Call it Super Bowl X½.

It doesn't mean anything, standings-wise or money-wise, but Saturday night's nationally-televised (ABC, 6 p.m., (PDT) game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys will no doubt be played with all the the intensity of Super Bowl X, when the Steelers beat the Cowboys 21-17.

The intensity will be provided by pride—and some long memories.

The Steelers are determined to prove that last weekend's 17-0 loss to the New York Giants (their first loss in five exhibitions and their first shutout loss in 49 games) was a fluke.

And the Cowboys will be out to prove that their 1-3 preseason record, including a 36-16 romp over Detroit, and their championship setback last Jan. 18 in Miami, were flukes, too.

After that Super Bowl loss, a few of the Cowboys were heard to mutter about how the Steelers had gotten away with some cheap shots on the field, that penalties which should have been called weren't.

"That was the general view," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of the Cowboys' "cheap-shot" feelings as their rematch approached. "It was an unusual game." But Pittsburgh linebacker Andy Russell responded: "We're not a cheap-shot team. You don't win that way. You win with good techniques, and the best techniques aren't cheap shots."

In Saturday night's other National Football League exhibitions it's Buffalo at Los Angeles, Miami at Houston, Washington at the New York Jets, Baltimore at Atlanta, Chicago at Tampa Bay, Denver at St. Louis, Detroit at Kansas City, the Giants at Green Bay, Philadelphia at Minnesota and Cincinnati at New Orleans. On Sunday it's Oakland at San Francisco (national television, CBS, 12:30 p.m., PDT) and San Diego at Seattle, and on Monday night, New England is at Cleveland.

The Rams, Dolphins and surprising 49ers are the only NFL teams with unblemished exhibitions records, each at 4-0.

In Buffalo, the Rams are facing the only team which knocked them off (31-24) during the 1975 preseason schedule. The Bills' 1-3 record would seem to be unimpressive, along with the fact that they've gone winless in a dozen games (nine in the regular season) on the West Coast in the past decade. But they're coming off a 37-0 walloping of Green Bay, two of the touchdowns on Gary Marangi-to-Bob Chandler passes. Last time out the Rams beat Oakland 23-14 with John Cappelletti running for one touchdown and catching one of James Harris' two scoring strikes.

Miami doesn't have safety Jake Scott in the defensive secondary anymore—but with the offense it's been displaying, so what? The Dolphins have run up a league-high 98 points. That's well over three touchdowns a game. Bob Griese's passes accounted for three of their touchdowns in a 28-21 victory over Tampa Bay last week.

Merandi predicts:

Chaffey ready to climb

"We have a mountain to climb," Mike Merandi said after being named head football coach at Chaffey College last spring, "and we're going to climb that mountain this fall."

The "mountain" referred to by Merandi is a string of 12 consecutive under- .500 seasons suffered by Chaffey since Bill Gable engineered the team's second straight 6-3 campaign in 1963.

Now, four new assistant coaches, 40 top recruits, over 100 booster's club members and a radio station (KSOM — Ontario is seeking to become the first station to air Panther games regularly) among others have mounted the bandwagon pointing to the conference opener Oct. 9 against Riverside City College.

And Merandi has expanded upon his earlier appraisal of the team's fortunes.

"We're gonna win it (the Mission Conference)," he said last week when asked his goal as a rookie head coach. "I feel that we will win the championship," the former Glendale College tackle repeated, despite inheriting a team that was 3-7 overall in 1975. "The freshmen and the returning sophomores that we have simply intend to win."

"The most important part of a football player is his attitude," explained Merandi. "Give me 40 players who want to win and we'll beat a team more talented individually than we are. We have this type of player here right now."

Although practice sessions don't get underway until Saturday, Merandi, who doubles as an instructor of accounting and business law, cited several areas of key concern to the Panthers.

"We have to rebuild an offensive line which lost many starters through graduation, and find a quarterback," he said. Only one sophomore returns to the offensive line — but he is a good one — center Dan Farris from Damien. "The lack of experience will hurt us," the coach admitted, "but we believe overall ability and desire of our freshmen prospects will overcome that."

The quarterback spot is "wide open" according to the former Claremont-Mudd defensive coordinator. Mike Garcia (Damien) and Bob Dalquest (Upland), the main contenders, "will have their eyes opened by the difference between high school and college football, and will have to apply themselves to make the adjustment, but eventually will become capable leaders," Merandi projected.

Defense, of course, is one of the prime considerations in assembling a quality football outfit, and it is the area in which the Panthers list the most experience and proven ability.

"Our overall defense should be very strong," Merandi said, "provided that we don't have an unusual number of injuries." An all-sophomore secondary figures to be an asset, as is returning linebacker and Panther MVP in '75, Ron White.

On offense, Merandi indicated Chaffey will field "six outstanding receivers" and will employ a more varied attack, highlighted by plenty of passing — known to be a fan lure — than has been seen recently on the Alta Loma field. "And of course," he added, "we'll be strong at halfback," where "Si" award-winner Randy Campbell lines up.

The second-year staffer expects to utilize the three pre-conference outings scheduled to evaluate as many players as possible — despite his admitted emphasis on winning.

"We naturally would like to win all three," Merandi said, "but if we have to accept a defeat in lieu of playing all our people, we'll opt for the latter.

"Citrus and Saddleback will of course be tough," Merandi pounted out, "and Riverside always does a fine job. We can definitely beat these teams. I'm not predicting we will, but if our players do the job they're capable of doing we will win."

Merandi, brimming with confidence in a team which has yet to don pads or scrimmage, was asked how far the Panthers might go in 1976. "Well," he said, "I can't say how many games we'll win." But then he added, "The Junior Rose Bowl game will return this year."

Sikes turns putter into lethal weapon

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Amiable Dan Sikes has turned his putter into a lethal weapon.

The 45-year-old veteran of the golfing wars gave further indication Thursday his "revamped" putting stroke has given him new life by pumping out a six-under-par 66 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the $200,000 American Golf Classic.

Sikes toured the 7,105-yard North course at Firestone Country Club in a scintillating 33-33, stroking in six birdies along the way.

That placed him one stroke ahead of Don Iverson, Mike McCullough, Fuzzy Zoeller, Ed Sneed and Bobby Wadkins. Six others were right behind at 68, including Jim Colbert, who won the last American Golf Classic in 1974.

In all, 43 golfers finished under par on the lesser known of the two Firestone courses. The South course has gained fame in many major tournaments as "The Monster," but this is the first regular tour event for the slightly shorter and wetter North course.

Sikes avoided the 53 acres of water awaiting off-line shots and, by the luck of the draw, began play after sometimes heavy rain and ground fog disappeared. He also mastered the wet, undulating greens.

"My tour really started about the time of the Kemper Open at Charlotte (in mid-June)," Sikes noted after explaining that a severe case of flu and then a pulled muscle forced him out of much early competition.

"I used the time at home to revamp my putting style," the stocky non-practicing attorney explained. "I had what is called a long putting stroke, which gets tougher to work with as you get older.

"I changed that to a short compact stroke where you hit the ball quickly and keep it on line," he added. "Before that, I was consistently hitting the ball to the left of the hole.

"The change has made a world of difference in my putting and it's made me feel like playing golf again," Sikes said with a wide smile. "It doesn't matter how good you hit the ball, you can't make a good score if you don't put the ball in the hole."

Sikes currently stands 90th on the PGA money list for the year with $18,797. First prize in this tournament is $40,000.

Zoeller, Sneed and Iverson, although longshots, are familiar names to followers of pro golf. Wadkins, younger brother of tour veteran Lanny Wadkins, and McCullough are the longest of the longshots among the first day leaders.

McCullough, in fact, was not added to the tournament's invitational field until Tuesday night, coming in as an alternate when Larry Ziegler opted out.

McCullough and Sneed both exploded into the pack of frontrunners with incoming 32s, four under par. Those were the best scores of the day on the back nine.

Also among those under par were Masters champion Ray Floyd at 69, U.S. and Canadian Open titlist Jerry Pate and PGA winner Dave Stockton at 70 and Arnold Palmer at 71.

SLC loses to Phoenix

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Phoenix, Ariz. scored on a 10th-inning error to beat Salt Lake City 1-0 in a consolation bracket game of the International Softball Congress World tournament at Blair Field Thursday night.

Stu Zink singled to open the 10th inning, moved to second on a wild pitch and advanced to third on a sacrifice bunt. He scored when second baseman Gary Cleverly bobbled a ground ball hit by Mike Townsend.

Ken Stapley hurled a three-hitter and struck out 12 for Phoenix, which Friday plays the winner of the Fresno Winchells-Lakewood Barons game played later Thursday night.

In earlier games Thursday, Reno, Nev. eliminated La Crosse, Wisc., 3-1 and Ft. Worth ousted Kingman, Ariz. 3-2 in consolation play.

Title tilt nothing extra

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Tokyo's Little League team is not celebrating because it made the finals of this 30th Little League World Series for 11-and 12-year olds.

The real plumb has yet to be picked.

"So far, I plan it as just another game," said manager Hidetoshi Suzuki, who even speaks in major league cliches.

"Only after the results are known do we consider it a championship game," added Suzuki through an interpreter. "In other tournaments, only when fans and parents would congratulate us on winning a championship did I know it was a championship game. Each game must be played one at a time."

The Japanese blitzed their way to the finals with a 4-0 victory over Puerto Nuevo, Puerto Rico, on Thursday as Daisuki Araki fired Tokyo's second straight no-hitter. He struck out 12 and allowed only one base runner on a first inning walk.

Rain washed out the American title game between Richmond, Va. and Campbell, Calif. It will be played at 10 a.m. today.

Araki, who has not allowed a run in his last three starts and has back-to-back no-hitters, followed a perfect performance by Kiyoshi Tsumura.

Once again, Tokyo played an errorless game.

"We not only have practices, we teach technique and positioning," Suzuki said. "Making errors depends on mental attitude.

"I try to movitate them to develop a keen sense of concentration, to keep their minds on the game in every situation," the manager said. "If they make an error it's because of a distraction."

In a morning consolation game, Kaiserslautern, West Germany, which lost 25-0 to Japan in its opening game, beat Des Moines, Iowa, 10-0.

Connors, Borg collision bent

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg, a couple of young swingers unbeaten on Longwood's clay courts during lucrative careers, are bent on a collision course—but wary of an ambush—in the 49th U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Connors, who won his first major title here three years ago before capturing the U.S. Open, Wimbledon and just about every other crown, and Borg, the U.S. Pro champ the last two years and the reigning Wimbledon king, have good reason to be on guard.

Both survived stern tests as they were extended to the three-set limit Thursday in advancing to the quarterfinal round. Connors, seeded No. 1, defeated Czechoslovakia's Jiri Hrebec 2-6, 6-2, 6-3 in the afternoon, and Borg slipped past 15th seeded Ross Case of Australia 6-0, 5-7, 6-3 at night.

"I've said it a thousand times and I'll say it again: everybody's good these days and if you go out and beat somebody 2-1 you're lucky to win 2-1," the 23-year-old Connors said.

"There are so many good players today you don't look ahead in the draw," the 20-year-old Borg said. "Everybody is tough and you have to go out there and do your best all the time. You can't have a letdown no matter how many times you may have beaten an opponent."

Unwittingly backing up Connors and Borg in a second match finished early Friday, third-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina had a bigger scare.

Vilas, the 1974 Grand Prix champion, 1975 U.S. Pro runnerup and Canadian Open winner last Monday, rallied from a 0-3 deficit in the third set and took a hard-earned 7-5, 3-6, 7-5 victory from unseeded Jairo Velasco of Colombia.

"He played very, very well," Vilas said in praising Velasco, who was slowed by apparent muscle cramps in his leg as the Argentinian squared the match in the eighth game of the third set with a service break. "It was very, very tough out there."

Sports briefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University has revised its regulations for public television stations that want to broadcast the school's football games on a delayed basis after a controversy erupted over public service announcements.

The university, through its station WOSU-TV, offered the state's educational television outlets the opportunity to broadcast six home games of the Buckeyes the evening of the game. During the telecast, the school plans to place promotional announcements for the university that the other outlets were required to carry.

Public television stations in Cleveland and Dayton objected to the promotional announcements.

"With the first game only about two weeks away, I do not propose to allow differences of opinion on what should appear on educational television to stand in the way of making these football telecasts available to OSU alumni and other football fans in Cleveland and other communities," Harold L. Enarson, university president, said Thursday.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Iowa Oaks outfielder Nyls Nyman, who said he sometimes feels like a forgotten man in the Chicago White Sox organization, drove in one run, scored another and was named most valuable player of the American Association All-Star Game Thursday night as the All-Stars defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

In the third inning, Nyman tripled home Oklahoma City's Tom Buskey and scored the goahead run on a sacrifice fly by Denver's Tony Scott.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two of the Cleveland Browns' top three ground gainers from last season have been dropped from the National Football League team's roster.

Hugh McKinnis, the club's No. 2 rusher in 1975, was placed on the temporarily disabled list Thursday, while Billy Pritchett has been dealt to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on waivers.

SEATTLE (AP) — Rookie wide receiver Steve Largent has been traded from the Houston Oilers to the Seattle Seahawks in exchange for a future draft choice, Seahawks General Manager John Thompson said Thursday.

The 5-foot-11, 184-pound Largent was a fourth-round draft choice of the Oilers from Tulsa University. He led the nation the past two years in touchdown catches with 14 each season. In three years at Tulsa, Largent caught 136 passes for 2,385 yards and 32 touchdowns.

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — The New England Patriots reached their roster limit Thursday by transferring defensive lineman Arthur Moore to the pre-season inactive list.

Moore missed the 1975 National Football League season with a knee injury, and was stricken with pneumonia and a viral infection this year. He has made only 10 practices this season and played in only one of the Patriot's four preseason games.

Pro sports betting stirs controversy

NEW YORK (AP) — "Why are professional sports like football and baseball so edgy about legalizing gambling?" the man on the subway remarked to his companion. "It hasn't hurt horse racing, has it?"

"Horse racing is different," the neighbor said. "Betting is the reason horse racing exists at all. You don't think all those people go out to the track to see if the breed is being improved, do you?"

"Why would it hurt football and baseball?" the first man insisted.

"Well," replied his companion, "you can fix a baseball pitcher or a quarterback. But it's pretty hard to fix a race horse."

This is not exactly the type of colloquy that you'll find in the archives along with the Lincoln-Douglas debates but it represents the kind of tavern repartee that is the outgrowth of the lottery case in Delaware.

A federal judge will decide Friday in Wilmington, Del., whether to permit Delaware to institute a pro football lottery which would legalize what now is an undercover operation— football pools in which millions of people bet billions of dollars nationally every year.

The difference would be that a good part of the proceeds would wind up in the state coffers— ostensibly for welfare, health and other services— instead of the pockets of illicit bookmakers.

Judge Walter Stapleton has listened to a rash of arguments on both sides. Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, and Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball, have marshalled all their legal guns to prevent what they contend would be certain disaster for professional sports.

Their argument is a simple one. Once legalized gambling gets a toehold— in Delaware or anywhere— it would spread like a plague, ultimately enticing the underworld. Big money brings temptation. Big money corrupts, they argue. Danger of "fixes" and "sellouts" would be multiplied many fold. People would lose confidence in sports.

The pro-lottery faction contends that big time gamblers are into the football pools up to their eyeballs already, that there is no way to legislate people's morals and if anyone is to profit from the human weakness to gamble, why not let it be the state?

Also, it's pointed out that Britain has had legalized betting for years—book shops taking wagers on everything from football to a tennis match to the flight of a sparrow—without any unusual number of scandals.

Another argument is that tampering with the games would be most unlikely since, in order to beat the cards, it would be necessary to fix not one but several games. The Delaware lottery, unlike the illegal pools which quote odds, would list the games with bettors attempting to pick three, four or five winners. Forty-five per cent of all monies bet would be returned in payoffs. All the money would go into parimutuel pools which necessarily means if the favorites win there will be a low payoff and if the longshots win the payoffs would be much larger.

Point spreads were responsible for perhaps the most damaging and widespread scandal in the history of American sports—the college basketball scandals of the early 1950s.

These resulted from what then was known as "the Minneapolis line," quoting points spreads on a long list of games. Bookmakers seized upon these spreads to lure bettors into their web. Millions of dollars passed hands.

Gamblers reached college kids of leading teams—City College of New York, Kentucky, Bradley and others—and enticed them not to throw games but to shave the point spread. Before the scandal was cleaned up, 32 college players, one official and 25 so-called fixers were caught in legal entanglements.

Contaminated players included Olympic stars and All-America selections. The impact almost killed college basketball as a major attraction at Madison Square Garden.

Pro football has been kept relatively free of gambling influences yet Rozelle maintains a watchdog security force composed of former FBI agents.

The one major scandal involved the New York Giants in 1946. Frank Filchock and Merle Hapes of the Giants reported that they were offered money by Alvin J. Paris to fix the Giants—Chicago Bears game.

Although they did not accept the bribe, Filchock and Hapes were suspended for conduct detrimental to football for failing to advise authorities. Filchock returned to the National Football League briefly. Hapes quit.

In 1952, a University of Maryland student sought to bribe three players of the ranking Maryland team, one of them quarterback Jack Scarbath, to try to keep the game with Louisiana State below 21 points— which was the spread.

The players, who were offered $1,500, told their coach. The student was arrested. The Maryland team went on to win 34-6.

In 1948 Joe Fulks, star of the pro Philadelphia Warriors in the National Basketball Association, swore out a warrant against a pool hall operator whom he charged with attempting to bribe him to throw games. In 1947 members of the Hawaiian Warriors of the pro Pacific Coast Football League pooled funds to bet on themselves. Four players were suspended for life, then others indefinitely.

Former middleweight champion Rocky Graziano figured in a boxing scandal in 1947. He admitted he had been offered $100,000 to lose to Reuben Shank in a fight that was never held. Because he didn't report the bribe attempt immediately, Rocky's license was temporarily revoked.

Baseball has had only one minor smudge since the "Black Sox Scandal" of 1919. Five players were suspended from the Class D Evangeline League in Louisiana during World War II because of association with bookmakers.

Jimmy, Chris top seeded

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert were assigned the top seeds in singles Thursday for the U.S. Open Tennis Championships starting at the West Side Tennis Club in Forest Hills, N.Y., next Wednesday.

Connors, the 1974 Open winner but a loser in the final to Spain's Manuel Orantes a year ago, heads the 16-name favored list in the men's singles.

Rated second behind the aggressive left-hander is Sweden's Bjorn Borg, winner this year of both the World Championship Tennis final and Wimbledon. He beat Connors in Wimbledon's final.

Following Borg are former grand masters champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina; Adriano Panetta of Italy, winner of both the French and Itatian championships; Ilie Nastase of Romania; Orantes; Arthur Ashe, the 1975 Wimbledon champion; Raul Ramirez of Mexico; Eddie Dibbs; Harold Solomon; Roscoe Tanner; Stan Smith; Corrado Barazutti of Italy; Wojtek Fipak of Poland; Brian Gottfried, and Vitas Gerulaitis of New York.

Third in the 16 women's seedings is Martina Navratilova, the Czech-born left-hander from Newport Beach, Calif. She is followed by Virginia Wade of Britain, Nancy Gunter, Rosemary Casals, Kerry Melville Reid of Australia, Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union, Sue Barker of Britain, Dianne Fromholtz of Australia, Mona Guerrant; Francoise Durr of France, Natalia Chmyreva of the Soviet Union, Carry Mayer; Judy Holladay, and Betty Stove of The Netherlands.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singles seedings in the U. S. Open Tennis Championships, beginning next Wednesday at the West Side Club in Forest Hills:

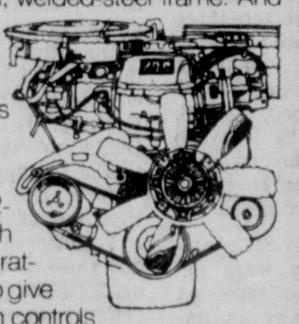

Men — 1, Jimmy Connors, USA; 2, Bjorn Borg, Sweden; 3, Guillermo Vilas, Argentina; 4, Andriano Panatta, Italy; 5, Ilie Nastase, Romania; 6, Manuel Orantes, Spain; 7, Arthur Ashe, USA; 8, Raul Ramirez, Mexico; 9, Eddie Dibbs, USA; 10, Harold Solomon, USA; 11, Roscoe Tanner, USA; 12, Stan Smith, USA; 13, Corrado Barazzutti, Italy; 14, Wojtek Fibak, Poland; 15, Brian Gottfried, USA; 16, Vitas Gerulaitis, USA.

TOUGH CHOICE

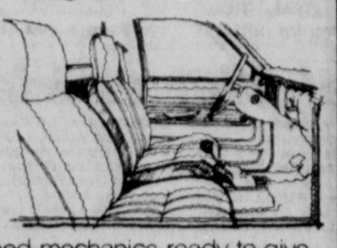

YOU GOT IT.

Not only does Toyota make four of the toughest roughest, most dependable trucks around, but trying to decide which of our four models to buy can be one of the toughest decisions you'll ever make. That's because all four are built with a rugged, welded-steel frame. And that makes them strong enough to carry up to 1,100-pound pay-loads--a truck full of furniture, farm supplies or three full-sized dirt bikes.

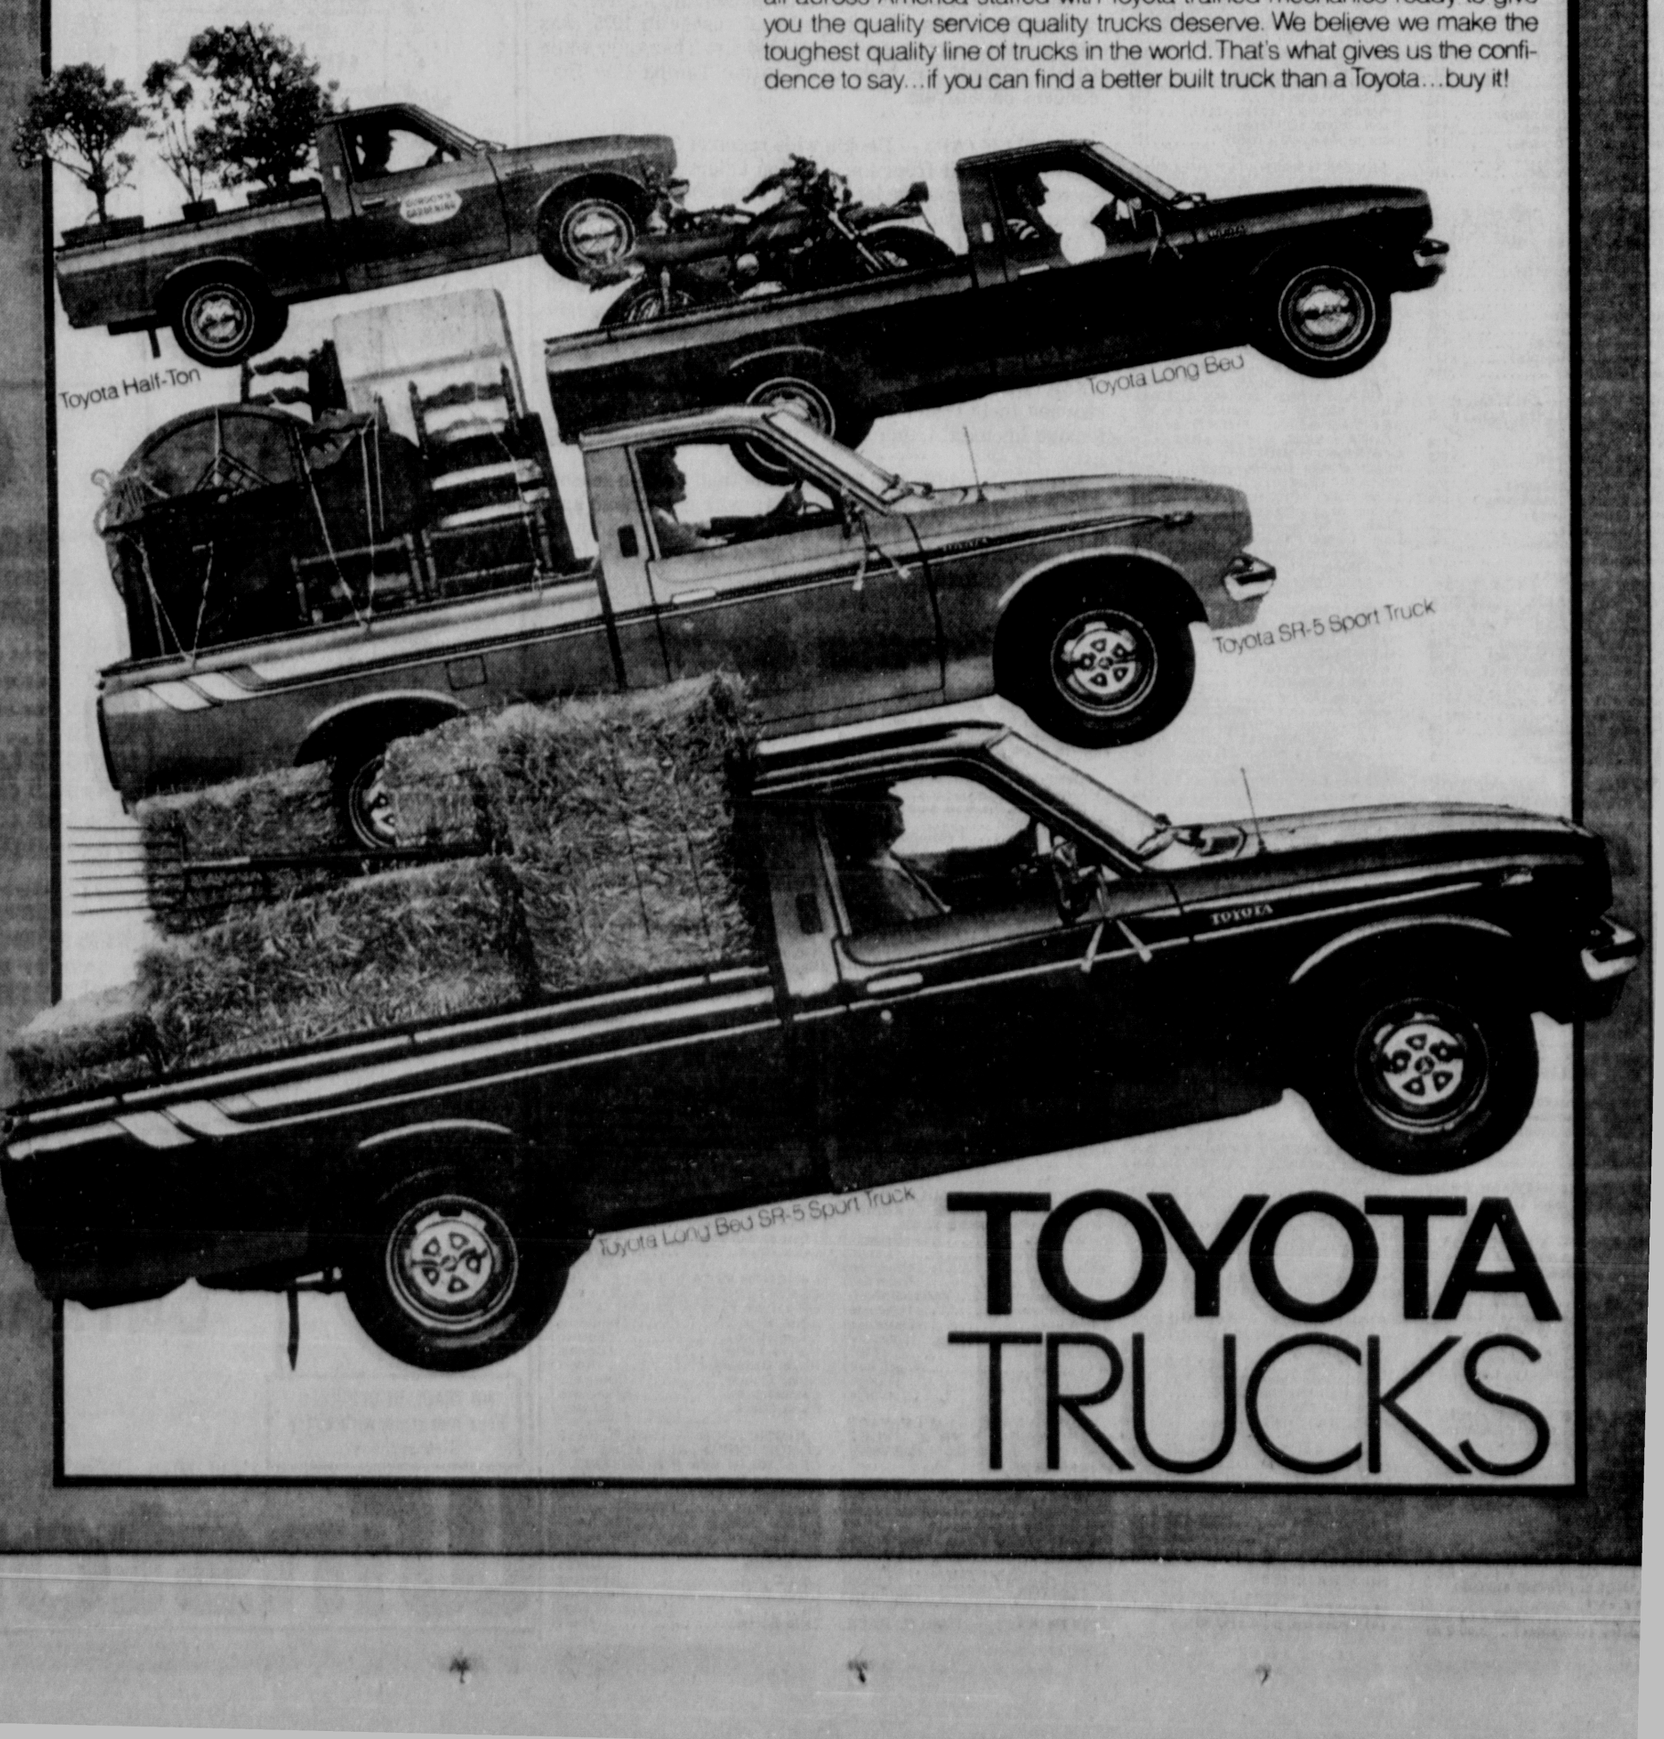

Talk about power. Every Toyota truck comes with the revolutionary 20R power plant, our 2.2-litre aluminum head overhead cam engine with the biggest displacement and highest torque rating in its class. Designed from the ground up to give maximum power and still meet emission controls without adding a lot of extra hardware. The 20R will take you from 0 to 55 in a quick 11.8 seconds. And combined with the electric fuel pump and our durable 5-speed overdrive transmission it's a performance story that's tough to beat.

Talk about a tough choice. We offer the widest selection of trucks in our class. Each one with man-sized cabs that offer more head, shoulder and hip room than our leading competitor. Will you choose our Long Bed with an optional 5-speed transmission or our SR-5 Sport Truck Long Bed with a standard 5-speed overdrive? Or our 4-speed models available on either the regular or Long Bed? Or our SR-5 regular bed with a standard 5-speed? Or would you rather have our optional automatic transmission on both bed sizes? It's all available and it's all up to you.

Talk about service. That's the one thing that isn't tough. There are 1,000 Toyota dealers all across America staffed with Toyota trained mechanics ready to give you the quality service quality trucks deserve. We believe we make the toughest quality line of trucks in the world. That's what gives us the confidence to say...if you can find a better built truck than a Toyota...buy it!

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS CALLING FOR BIDS CONTRACT DOCUMENTS NO. 75-43A

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Pomona Unified School District of Los Angeles County, California, acting by and through its Governing Board, hereinafter referred to as the District, will receive up to, but not later than 3:00 o'clock P.M. on the 15th day of September, 1976 sealed bids for the award of the contract for:

STRUCTURAL MODIFICATIONS TO POMONA CONTINUATION HIGH SCHOOL.

All bids shall be made on a bid form furnished by the District.

Bids shall be received in the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Business, Pomona Unified School District, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California, and shall be opened and publicly read aloud at the above stated time and place.

Each bid shall be accompanied by the security referred to in the contract documents and the list of proposed subcontractors.

The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bids or in the bidding. Preference will be made in the award for California made supplies, pursuant to Section 4330 and 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

Each bid must conform and be responsive to the contract documents, copies of which are on file and may be obtained in the office of the Architect, Cashion-Horie, Architects, Inc., 720 North Park Avenue, Pomona, California 91768. Each bidder may obtain two (2) sets of drawings and specifications upon deposit of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) per set. Each twenty-five ($25.00) deposit will be refunded if the drawings and specifications are returned in good condition within ten (10) days after Bid Opening.

The District has determined the general prevailing rate of per diem wages in the locality in which this work is to be performed for each craft or type of workman needed to execute the contract which will be awarded to the successful bidder. These prevailing rates so determined are on exhibit in the Architect's office and the District office, and are available to any interested party on request. The successful bidder will be required to post a copy thereof at the jobsite. Any classification shall comply with the prevailing wage rate in effect at the time of execution of the work.

It shall be mandatory upon the Contractor to whom the contract is awarded, and upon the subcontractors under him, to pay not less than the said specified rates of the current minimum prevailing rate in the area where the work is performed, to all workmen employed by them in the execution of the contract.

Preference will be made in the award of California-made supplies pursuant to Sections 4330 and 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

All bids must specify that they are an equal opportunity employer.

Not all forest fires bad

Millions of Americans have heard the warning of Smokey the Bear — "Remember, only you can prevent forest fires."

They no doubt will be surprised to learn that Smokey's parent agency, the U. S. Forest Service, now thinks some forest fires are absolutely necessary, according to the current (August-September) issue of National Wildlife magazine.

The Forest Service and the U. S. Park Service have quietly altered their forest fire plicies to permit some fires to burn naturally, says the National Wildlife Federation's bimonthly publication.

Why? Because controlled forest fires help maintain the natural balance of the forest ecosystems and this benefits many species of wildlife.

Among the benefits derived from controlled fires are: the clearing of thickly-wooded sections to permit new ground cover to grow; the recycling of nutrients from burned trunks into the soil; and the preparation of land for new, more diverse plant life.

"Recent research has shown that, in most wilderness areas, fire frequency has a profound effect on the distribution, health and abundance of wildlife," says William R. (Bud) Moore, author of the National Wildlife article and a retired chief of fire management operations for the Forest Service.

Researchers have discovered that some endangered species are actually dependent upon natural fires for their survivial. The Kirtland's warbler relies upon jack pines in Michigan for nesting. Without an occasional fire, jack pine cones remain sealed and unable to release their seeds. Similarly, the imperiled California condor depends upon fires to thin out ground cover. This permits smaller animals that it feeds upon, such as rabbits and rodents, to thrive.

Despite the tremendous forest damage caused by a 250,000 acre conflagration in Idaho during the 1950's, some useful effects occurred according to Moore. "By reducing the canopy of old trees and opening the way for new ground cover, those fires also produced some of the finest wildlife habitat in the world," the author says.

The theory of aiding wildlife habitat with controlled forest fires is by no means new. As early as 1909, H. H. Chapman of Yale University advocated the use of fire in longleaf pine forests every three years to help establish new pine stands. H. L. Stoddard of the U. S. Biological Survey (forerunner of the Fish and Wildlife Service) told the first North American Wildlife Confernce in 1936 that light fire, at the proper season and under ideal weather conditions, provided needed habitat for bobwhite quail by burning off dense ground cover.

But these few voices had little immediate impact on the long-standing fire control policies of the Forest Service, reports the National Wildlife Federation magazine. Forest Service leaders did not place great emphasis on the creation of new habitat in those days. The principal goal of the agency was to protect commercial timber and watersheds. Indeed, national forest policy was set back in the late 19th century when control of wildfire was essential because of the manner in which valuable forest resources were being destroyed by careless logging and forest fires.

Body surfing contest set

OCEANSIDE — The Seventh Annual Oceanside Body Surfing Contest will be held Saturday and Sunday.

The contest is open to all Southern California residents ages 18 and over. There is no entry fee.

Preliminary and semi-final heats will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday at the Oceanside Pier. Final heats will be held on Sunday beginning at 8 a.m. Fins may be worn.

Age brackets are 18-24, 25-34, 35-44, 45-54, and 55 and over. Trophies will be awarded first, second and third places.

Outdoors

Seasons picked for upland game birds

California Fish and Game Commissioners have adopted 1976-77 resident upland game bird hunting regulations which reduce the bag limits for pheasants in Southern California and for quail and chukar in a coastal range area where production has been poor because of the drought.

Newly adopted regulations also provide for inclusion of Humboldt and Del Norte counties in the special season for mountain quail only and a later shooting hour starting time for the spring and fall turkey seasons.

Also approved at the commission meeting in San Francisco was an increase in the sage grouse bag from one to two in Modoc and Lassen counties where populations are the highest in years.

The Department of Fish and Game recommended the changes for quail, chukar and sage grouse after conducting a field survey of upland game birds last month. Generally, the DFG told commissioners, the birds fared well throughout most of the state.

Reduced limits for quail and chukar will apply in an area bounded by Highways 101 and 5 on the west and east and Highways 152 and 166 on the north and south. Included are San Benito County, eastern Monterey and western Merced counties, Kings County, western Fresno and Kern counties and eastern San Luis Obispo County.

The quail limit in this area has been cut from ten to six per day and the chukar limit from six to four per day.

The addition of Humboldt and Del Norte counties to the mountain quail only season is designed to provide additional hunting opportunities.

Under 1975-76 rules, pheasant hunters in southern counties could take two birds of either sex per day for the first weekend and four birds thereafter. This year's change established the limits at two daily for the entire season.

The new rule is expected to prevent hunters from taking more than two birds in an area where the DFG plants pheasants in order to better distribute available birds among nimrods.

Tule elk on increase

The Owens Valley probably holds more tule elk now than at any other time since the elks were transplanted there in 1933-34, according to the annual aerial census completed Aug. 12 by a team headed by the California Department of Fish and Game.

Counted in the two-day census were 101 bulls, 300 cows and 77 calves for a total of 478 elk.

All-time high was in 1949 when 495 elk were counted, according to Banky Curtis, DFG wildlife biologist stationed in Bishop.

"But I have some doubts about the validity of that figure," Curtis said, "and suspect some animals were counted twice that year, since the 1950 census totaled only 127 animals, and an earlier count, in 1944, totaled only 129."

Could the same error occur today?

"Not likely," Curtis said. "We fly in patterns that reduce the possibility of duplication, and if there is any question at all, we go back for spot checks of sightings."

The count by herd was:

Bishop herd — 21 bulls, 54 cows and 14 calves for a total of 89, down 6 animals from 1975. (Curtis believes a group of bulls was missed in the census.)

Tinemaha herd — 12 bulls, 65 cows and 19 calves for a total of 96, up 12 from the previous year. (Curtis notes that 3 bulls in this herd were lost to poachers and one to foot rot during the past year.)

Independence herd — 27 bulls, 74 cows and 12 calves for a total of 113, up 27 animals from 1975. (Apparently a group of bulls not counted previously turned up.)

MARINA DEL REY — A 62 year old Van Nuys grandfather, a 53 year old Newport Beach mother of two and famed Japanese restauranteur, Rocky Aoki, president of Benihana, are among the favorites to take the 4th Annual Marina del Rey Offshore Powerboat Classic presented by First National City Travelers Checks. The Classic starts off the Marina del Rey breakwater at 10 a.m., Saturday.

Bob Nordskog of Van Nuys, the oldest driver in the field of more than 40 offshore racers who can go 80 miles per hour over the open ocean, Betty Cook of Newport and Aoki are all high in the points standings for the 1976 national championship.

The field of Offshore Racers will charge off on the 188 mile race which will cross Santa Monica Bay several times and also go around Catalina Island.

ROLLING STONE

Record Reviews

By DAVE MARSH

AVERAGE WHITE BAND: "Soul Searching" (Atlantic SD 18179).

AWB's third Atlantic album is just as pleasant and funky as the first pair. There's hardly anything these six Scots can't do with black popular music forms. On the other hand, a tendency to blandness, while diminished since "Cut the Cake," continues to dominate. Part of the problem is simply one of tempo; AWB seems afraid to cut loose with something really smoking. As importantly, the limitations of Hamish Stuart's vocal approach become increasingly evident. On the other hand, there's little to find fault with within the specific groove the band chooses; on "Queen of My Soul," where the Brigati Brothers are added as vocalists, the affair becomes positively uplifting.

JAY FERGUSON: "All alone in the End Zone" (Asylum 7E-1063).

One of the former leaders of Spirit, Ferguson's initial solo album doesn't have much in common with that paragon of West Coast rock groups, nor with anything else. Although he turns in a nice running metaphor about band breakups and football games with the title song, there's hardly any music here to hold interest.

WAYLON JENNINGS: "Are You Ready for the Country" (RCA APLI-1816).

Despite his country-outlaw reputation, Jennings has never attempted much beyond country and pop-country arrangements. It's the prime reason all his records — not least this one — are so confusingly and often annoyingly spotty. "Are You Ready," for instance, opens with the whiplash of Neil Young's title song, but by Side Two the affair has deteriorated to a re-working of Jim Webb's bathetic schlock materpiece, "MacArthur Park," in a revised version that's neither much shorter nor much better than Jennings' original country hit some years ago. This eraticism is unfortunate because Jennings is a really terrific vocalist, one of the strongest male singers in American music; when he dips, never much more than half-heartedly, toward a rock guitar sound, he's first-rate at that, too. Some day, he'll make an album that will break him out as a rock-pop-country hero. But this isn't it.

A classic reggae vocal trio, the Diamonds lack a front man as dynamic as Bob Marley of the Wailers, or Toots Hibbert of the Maytals.

But that's about the only thing that keeps them from the highest echelon of the music. Their singing is impeccable, and the arrangements, like all the best reggae, are nothing less than seductive. More surprisingly, several of the songs are top-notch lyrically, as well. "Right Time" is an interesting variation on the Marcus Garvey theme, as is "Them Never Love Poor Marcus." "Why Me Black Brother Why?" is a sharp comment on Jamaican social unrest. The rest conform to the reggae Rastafarian formula: songs evoking the Jamaican lifestyle and the desire to return to the African promised land. Aside from Burning Spear, the Mighty Diamonds is the best new group Jamaica has produced in years.

Disco expansion rated a sexcess

By STEPHEN FORD

NEW YORK (NEA) — Disco's success today may be primarily due to the same conditions and attitudes that engendered its comeback every other generation or so: economic developments frighteningly reminiscent of other days, such as the Depression when dancehalls were as ubiquitous as McDonalds' are now. Another simpler reason could be the desire of any upcoming generation to choose its own vices rather than duplicate older siblings'.

There must be a glimmer of nostalgia in fathers when the chip off the old block takes his date dancing instead of to those damned pot parties and demonstrations.

Were Dad to ever visit a typical disco today, he might be compelled to look more kindly on the pot parties and demonstrations.

If the average $8 to $12 disco admission fails to "excite" Pater, what he'll see inside might. When disco habitues confide they go to clubs to see and be seen, they could mean that literally, skintight and see-through being the uniform for the evening.

Overwhelmingly the emphasis is, and will continue to be, on sex. At least that's the expert opinion of a small coterie of avant garde disco operators from New York, Los Angeles and Las Vegas. Meeting for what amounted to a strategy session, disco's aristocracy discoursed on what kind of innovations were drawing the greatest crowds to successful discos.

The verdict was unanimous: sex.

The more affluent clubs are implementing elaborate dance revues featuring topless dancers and transvestites. Another quaint club on Manhattan's Upper East Side offers a painful S-M decor catering to the whip and wimp trade. Equally sadistic is the $16 admission.

Other operators unveiled plans to project porno flicks on disco ceilings while the music plays, or add massage parlors near the dance floor. Some plan on closing to the public once a week to accommodate bacchanals for swinging couples only.

Frankly, it does remind one very much of the society Aldous Huxley envisioned 44 years ago in "Brave New World."

Sour Lemongello: The bottom abruptly dropped out for self promoted singer Peter Lemongello who now faces a host of charges, most of them related to fraud.

Lemongello's former advertising agency, the plaintiff, also told a N.Y. State Supreme Court that the singer failed to deliver more than 8,000 prepaid albums to mail order fans.

The firm also claims he deliberately falsified sales figures to entice buyers . . . In the Flesh: Eric Clapton's next album, his first in some time now, will be released in September. Its release was timed to coincide with a national U.S. tour. The album will include material and performances by Bob Dylan but the bard will not travel in the tour.

Brother Breaks: Ending a 17-year-old association, Tom and Dick Smothers have called it quits as a team and launched solo careers . . . Dennis Wilson of the Beach Boys, now celebrating their 15th year together, disclosed he's not planning to part company with the singing Wilson family but has signed a solo contract with Caribou Records . . . Rick Wakeman's financially-besieged "English Rock Ensemble" has disbanded.

Comedian heads for Broadway

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I've been waiting 45 years for this," says Jerry Lewis of his forthcoming debut in a Broadway show.

The comedian starts rehearsals Oct. 18 for a new version of "Hellzapoppin," the long-running comedy show of the late 1930s with Olsen and Johnson as stars. The new show will be entirely different, says Lewis, but it will be just as zany.

"Hellzapoppin" will first play Baltimore and Washington, D.C., then start previews in New York Jan. 4.

"The opening on Feb. 13 will be a show business first," says Lewis. "Thirty-five minutes of the performance will be telecast live by NBC and by Telstar in 25 countries."

Deborah Kerr to co-star with Heston

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Deborah Kerr will return to the theater as co-star with Charlton Heston in "Long Day's Journey into Night" for the Center Theater Group at the Ahmanson Theater.

The Eugene O'Neill play will appear at the Ahmanson from Feb. 18 to April 2, 1977.

MUSIC MAN

Woody Herman puts his heart into his work in a concert at the West Covina Fashion Plaza Tuesday night. An estimated throng of 7,000 music lovers heard the seventh of eight free concerts presented by the Fashion Plaza Merchants Association. The final concert will be presented at 9 p.m. Tuesday by the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz and the Covina Concert Band. Previous performers included Les Brown, Mercer Ellington and Louis Bellson.

VCT play to open tonight

"Boob Toob," an original play by two local writers, will be presented at Valley Community Theater, 132 E. Third St., Pomona, at 8:30 tonight and Saturday.

The play is an adaptation of two movies, "Groove Tube" and "TunnelVision." The authors are Dianna York and Steve Spencer, both of Pomona. Spencer also directs.

Miss York is producer; Miss Scharf is assistant director; Charles Davis is music director and pianist, and Jay Mingus is handling the lights.

Reservations can be made by calling 622-6954.

Networks launching pilots

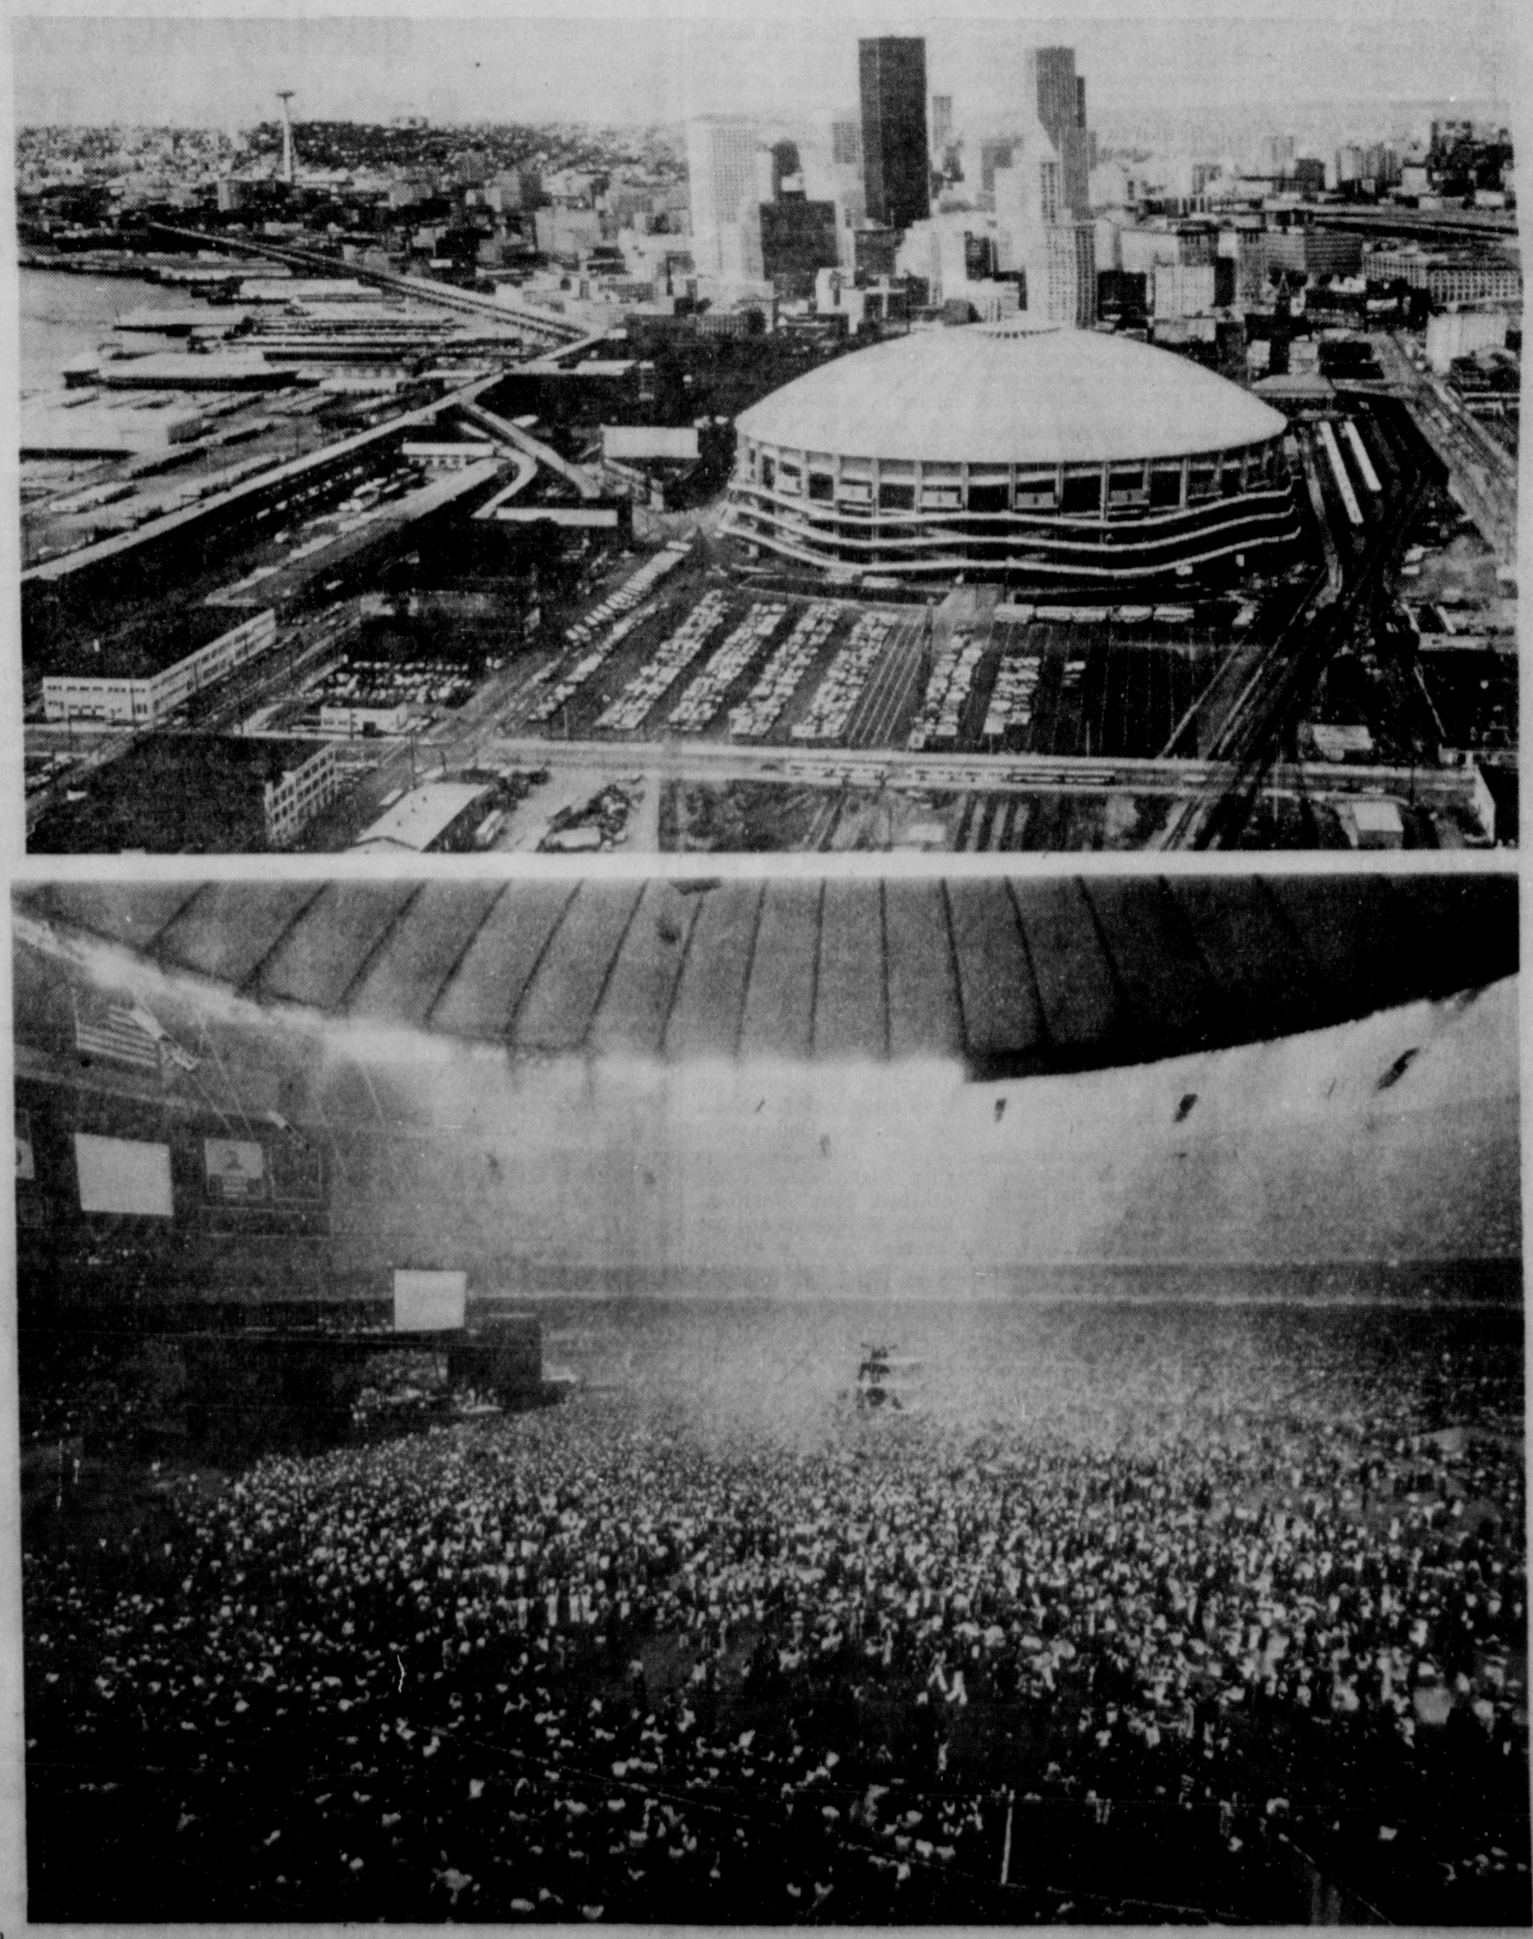

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new television season hasn't started, and already the networks are planning pilot films to replace the series that falter.

Paramount Television has been commissioned by CBS to produce "Under One Roof," a half-hour comedy pilot starring Maureen Stapleton. Robert Moore, director of the current film "Murder by Death," will direct the show, which is being produced by Chris-Rose Productions.

KINGDOME HAS COME

Less than six months after it opened, Seattle's $66.2-million Kingdome has already attracted more than 1.5 million visitors. Though usually thought of as a sports arena (professional football, baseball and soccer and college football) the Kingdome also hosts concerts, auto shows, circuses, rodeos, trade shows, conventions and other activities. King County Stadium (its official name) seats between 60,000 and 80,000 depending on the event. One night of the Billy Graham Crusade last May drew a record 74,000. The Paul McCartney & Wings concert (lower photo) drew 67,000. The stadium boasts the world's largest self-supported concrete roof.

BLUES ARTIST — John Lee Hooker, one of the leading exponents of American blues, will be featured in "A Night with the Blues" at the Wilshire Ebell Theater, Los Angeles, Sept. 17. The program is the first of three in the Los Angeles Festival of Jazz. Other stars are Little Brother Montgomery, Sunnyland Jim, Cousin Joe Clyde Bernhardt, Lowell Fulson, Lloyd Glenn and the Louisiana Shakers Band.

Peter Fonda

He's no longer an angry young man

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Peter Fonda used to be the epitome of the angry young man. In person (as well as in his movies) he was about as warm and loving as a piranha who had gotten up on the wrong side of the shoal.

That was the old Peter Fonda. Or the young Peter Fonda. But the new Peter Fonda, the current Peter Fonda, is different. A big smile. A twinkle in those clear blue eyes. A firm, brave handshake.

But there's still lots of talk about how he can't stand people.

Not always. Sometimes, he says, he's gregarious, as gregarious as anybody. But when he's making a movie and for a couple of weeks afterwards, look out. Fonda makes Garbo look gregarious.

Fonda admits it, with a kind of defiant pride. He talks about his need for solitude, the way some people talk about their need for food.

"When I'm making a picture," he says, "I don't want to go out for drinks or dinner with the rest of the cast and crew. I want to stay in my room, alone. No bar, no dinner."

His picture-making life, he says, is a procession of rooms in Holiday Inns and Ramada Inns. That's OK, as long as nobody hassles him, nobody bothers him.

And then, when the picture is over, he says he needs what he calls his period of decompression.

"I need two weeks to decompress," he says. "By that, I mean total silence. Nobody bothering me. Alone. Away from everything."

The ideal method of decompressing is to spend those two weeks aboard his 81-foot ketch, Tatoosh. She's currently in the South Pacific and, when he can, that's where he goes.

"When I'm aboard her," he says, "I don't have to be totally alone, but I have to be left alone. I don't want people asking me what I want to do tonight, or where I want to go for dinner. Let them do whatever they want to do — just don't bother me."

(Incidentally, the name Tatoosh, as Fonda explains it, is a North American Indian word meaning "breast.")

Lately, though, he's been doing his decompressing at his Indian Hill Ranch, 118 solitudinous acres about a dozen miles south of Livingston, Mont. The ranch is the closest thing Fonda has to a home.

That's where his wife and stepson live. The Fondas are there because Peter's wife wanted to live not too far from her ex-husband, author Tom McGuane. She figured their son should have the benefit of his father's companionship, and Peter thinks that's a sensible idea.

It's a small ranch, as Montana real estate goes. Peter says he has ten acres of apples, he raises hay and grain enough to feed his 30 head of cattle and three horses.

"It's not a money-making ranch," he says, "but it could feed me and my family, if it came to that."

He's next going to buy a couple of miner's donkeys, so he can go packing up into the hills. That's where a man can really be alone.

When Peter and his wife were first married, she had a house on Key West, Fla. They lived there for a while, but Peter says he "couldn't make it" on Key West.

"It was too small," he says, "and there were too many people and too many cars."

Despite his feelings about people when he's working and his need to get away from everybody after he's finished working, Fonda says he still likes to work. He says he really enjoys acting and producing.

PETER FONDA

He's hot these days. With nutty pictures like "Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry," he became a top box office draw. And his current release, American — International's "Futureworld," should solidify that position.

Next will be a little something called "Outlaw Blues." It's a contemporary story about a convict who writes a country song while in jail. It is stolen by a visiting big C&W star who turns it into a big hit — and then the convict gets out and wants what's rightfully his.

He says he did "Futureworld" for the usual reasons — he liked the part and the script and the people he would be working with — plus what may be an unusual reason for actors today.

"I wanted to do a family picture," he says, "one I could take my children to see."

He has two children of his own, age 10 and 12, as well as his 9-year-old stepson.

Still, the overriding feature of the Fonda character seems to be his fierce independence.

He tells horrendous stories about his actions on the set, in defense of that independence. Mostly, they revolve around his desire to be able to drive himself to the set. The union rules for move companies generally prohibit all but members of the Teamsters' Union to drive to sets.

But he drives himself, and that causes friction, a condition he appears to relish.

Once, he says, he found all four tires of his car had been slashed. When he got to the set, he displayed an automatic rifle and said that if they wanted to play a flat-tire game, he was willing to show them how to do it.

"After that," he says, "they let me drive myself."

Assembly OKs bus safety legislation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to require stricter state inspections of privately owned buses which are used to transport school children has won Assembly approval.

The 67-0 vote without debate returned the bill to the Senate for action on Assembly amendments.

By Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, the bill would require school bus driver licenses of all persons driving such buses.

It was introduced six days after May 21 when a private bus loaded with students from the Yuba City High School Choir crashed near Martinez, killing 28 students and one teacher.

The California Highway Patrol blamed the crash on badly worn parts which it said would not have passed inspection.

It is SB 2199.

Panel okays plan to cut jet noises

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Recommendations aimed at reducing noise from commercial jets at Los Angeles International Airport have gained the approval of a city council committee.

But the panel voted Tuesday to delay submitting the proposals to the full council pending the announcement of federal noise guidelines expected Sept. 1.

City officials said the local proposals include soundproofing jet engines on older airliners, modifications in landing and takeoff procedures and the use of quieter aircraft.

SINGING COWBOY — Ramon Gaona, popular Mexican singing star, will perform with the Ballet Folklorico de la Secreteria de Turismo in "Mexico Travelcade 1976" at the Los Angeles Convention Center Saturday and Sunday. The show includes 80 booths offering artifacts and information on Mexico. Tickets are $1.50.

Gospel program planned

The Great Gospel Concert, featuring a 100-piece orchestra and several choral groups, will be presented in the Hollywood Bowl at 8 p.m. Sept. 24.

Headlining the concert will be Andrae Crouch and the Disciples, a black gospel group that has risen rapidly to the top of the gospel music charts with its 1976 Grammy Award winning album, "Take Me Back". Also on the card are Johnny Mann and the Johnny Mann Singers, Danniebelle, The Archers, Doug Lawrence, and Lynn Mann. Ralph Carmichael, venerable arranger, conductor, and recording artist, will conduct the massive orchestra, believed to be the largest ever to appear with gospel acts in concert or on recordings.

Nearly 10,000 mail orders have been received in advance of the public announcement of the concert. Tickets, priced from $2.50 to $7.50, are available through local Christian bookstores and at the Ticketmart, 1303 Westwood Blvd., Los Angeles.

Strings to give concert

Murray Korda and his Monseigneur Strings will present a program of international music on the Concerts on the Green series, Barnsdall Park, Los Angeles, at 4:30 p.m. Sept. 5.

Korda is known as a leading exponent of gypsy music which he has researched and arranged for the past 25 years. Thousands of listeners have become fans through his years of lengthy engagements at California hotels and restaurants, including the Ambassador, Beverly-Wilshire, Beverly Hilton and Beverly Hills Hotel.

He and his orchestra have most recently performed for Queen Margrethe and Prince Hendryk of Denmark and for Mrs. Gerald Ford.

The concerts will include the works of Brahms, Bartok, Strauss, Lehar and Kalman in addition to folk and gypsy music of Spain, Hungary, France and Mexico.

Gallery slates tryouts

"Good News" is a Roaring '20s college musical romp complete with racoon coats, sparkling coeds, brawny football players and the Charleston. Parts available are for 14 singing-dancing men and women 17 and older, and for three men over 35, nonsinging.

The show will run Oct. 15 through Nov. 27 with a six-week rehearsal period. Further information can be obtained at 982-5357.

Currently playing at the Gallery is "My Fair Lady" with performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at 8. Reservations are recommended.

CCSM slates registration

The Claremont Community School of Music will hold registration and scheduling from 1 to 6 p.m. Monday. The school is at the corner of Mountain and Bonita avenues, Claremont.

Registration for continuing students will be held Monday to Sept. 10. New students will be scheduled Sept. 7-10. The CCSM program of private instrumental instruction and Suzuki piano, violin, cello instruction and workshops begins Sept. 13. Yamaha music education classes for children 4 to 7 begin the first week in October.

The Claremont Community School of Music, a nonprofit educational organization, is a member of the National Guild of Community Schools of Music and the Arts. Further information can be obtained at 624-3012.

POMONA Mayor Ray Lepire detonates charge during unique groundbreaking ceremonies at site of future restaurant to be called Pomona Valley Mining Co. He is assisted by David Perrin, president of the restaurant firm. The new restaurant will be located atop hill off San Bernardino Freeway at Dudley in Pomona.

THE PLATTERS, singing group with 35 million-selling records to their credit, will appear at Ice House Canyon Lodge, Mt. Baldy, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3 and 4, 2 shows nitely.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

The site has been levelled and excavation begun on a venture in which owners of The Pomona Valley Mining Company hope to "strike it rich" in the Pomona Hills. The "gold" they are out to mine with their new theme restaurant is the dough we'll spend for the experience of dining in a new-old mining shack with a breath-taking view of the Valley.

I wound my way up the hill last Thursday for their "groundbreaking" ceremonies. In a change of pace from the usual shovel-in-the-hands-of-dignitaries thing, Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire pushed the plunger to detonate a small explosive charge to mark the occasion.

Next time you take the San Bernardino Freeway toward L.A., look up to your right when you get to Dudley. I've an idea the owners know what they are doing, perching their restaurant atop that hill. The view is marvelous, a 200 degree-plus panoramic view of the Valley I hadn't seen before.

Another new restaurant due to open very soon is Magnolia's Peach in Upland. You've probably watch it grow at the corner of Mountain Ave. and Arrow Highway.

An original specialty restaurant whose theme is drawn from the nostalgia of the turn of the century, Magnolia's Peach (a rather improbable name, but we'll get used to it) will feature char-broiled steaks, lobster, shrimp, chicken, paella and original hamburgers at moderate prices. Manager Jim Brough says you can expect a September 6 opening.

Last Saturday night I chose the Lone Hill restaurant in Glendora for dinner. We were a party of four and, individuals all, we each ordered a different entree . . . prime rib, scallops, top sirloin and filet mignon. We were all very pleased with the meal and service and, in fact, were given to speculating on the thickness of my excellent rib. I'm still wondering if it's a sign of women's liberation that Lone Hill's Lady's Cut prime rib ($5.95) is a hearty 1½" thick and half a plateful!

Stuffed to a stupor, we visited a bit until my son and his date left for the movie, and we felt drawn to the lounge by the mood matching mellow music of "La Monte & the Following."

Lone Hill apparently appeals to youngsters and olders alike; and "La Monte & the Following" do a better than creditable job of providing good dancable sounds for both.

Lone Hill (formerly Farmer Freddy's) is located at the corner of Alosta and Lone Hill. And, by the way, I noticed several entrees on the menu for a dollar savings from 5 to 7 p.m. daily.

The Platters, whose recordings of "Only You," "The Great Pretender," (remember?) and many others have sold millions of copies, will make a special Labor Day weekend appearance at Ice House Canyon Lodge next Friday and Saturday, September 3 and 4. The group, billed as Paul Robi's World Famous Platters, will give two concerts each evening, according to Ice House manager Frank Bower.

Frank was by my place the other night to drop off some material regarding the event. He has plans for other special attractions at the Mt. Baldy resort, and is working hard to bring outstanding talent to his place.

He's certainly starting off well. The Platters, big in the '50s and '60s and still adding to their hits production in the '70s, are known the world over. Paul Robi has been the guiding force since the beginning; . . . he's responsible for The Platters sound and has been instrumental in arranging and conducting all of the 35 million records the group has recorded and sold.

Frank has lined up the popular Johnny G and Bryan "Legs" Walker as guest artists who, along with The Platters and Ice House duo, Borelli & Hart, should provide a couple of evenings full of entertainment . . . from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. each night.

Advance tickets are $4.00 each, and cost $5.00 at the door. For additional details, I'll refer you to the Ice House ad on this page.

And, speaking of Labor Day weekend, that's when Orlando's kick off the big band sound of the new Lou Dokken outfit. Lou's new 7-piece band is making some super dance sounds and will play regularly for the supperclubbers on Saturday nights in the restaurant's Royal Crest Room, beginning September 4.

You may remember that Lou gave us a taste of the new sound the first of the month and was enthusiastically received. I dropped in on part of their practice session this week and believe that Orlando's Saturday nighters are in for a real treat.

MIKE CHAT — Singer Leslie Uggans talks over plans for the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon with the comedian. The annual show will start on KTTV, Channel 11, at 6 p.m. Sept. 5.

Lewis' goal: break record

Jerry Lewis has set a goal for his annual Labor Day Telethon: break the record $18.8 million in donations for the Muscular Dystrophy Association raised in last year's telecast.

The marathon show, which will originate from Las Vegas, Nev., will be seen over KTTV, Channel 11, beginning 6 p.m., Sept. 5 and continuing until 3:30 p.m., Sept. 6.

Ed McMahon will serve as anchorman at Del Webb's Hotel Sahara. Among the line-up of top entertainers appearing during the 11th anniversary of the telethon will be Tony Bennett, Charo, Chad Everett, Fabian, Marvin Hamlisch, David Hartman, Frank Sinatra, Sally Struthers and Leslie Uggams.

Funds raised through the telethon help support MDA's world-wide research programs and its network of free clinics throught the United States, in Puerto Rico and Guam. In Los Angeles, the new $2.5-million Jerry Lewis Neuromuscular Research Center at UCLA is under construction with plans for a 1977 completion.

Gino Vannelli

By MARY CAMPBELL

Gino Vannelli dresses in a sexy way and says he's just interested in the music.

He has made four albums and the newest, "The Gist of Gemini," is rising on the best-selling charts.

He says his greatest problem in his rise to stardom is credibility. "There is none yet," he says.

Then he adds, "I think with some people it came with Stevie Wonder." He's referring to five concerts on the 1974 Stevie Wonder tour on which he was the well-received opening act.

"I think a lot of people shrug me off as a contrived sex symbol. I don't blame anybody. That is the way the world is. I think there's a time and space for what I do."

What he does is perform, singing the songs he has written, many of them long songs in a flowing jazz-rock style. The five-piece band behind him has two keyboardists and three percussionists, no guitars. He wears tight pants, shirt open to show a hairy chest and he throws out glances meant to be burning from dark eyes.

Vannelli's background is Italian. Half his grandparents were born in Canada he says — he was born in Montreal — and the rest of his grandparents were born in Italy.

Back to credibility. Credibility is when the world finally decides you are an important talent and you have something to say. You feel credibility beginning to happen.

"Only I know what I have to give, what I will do. I'm not going to tell you what it is. I have a pretty good idea."

At present, Vannelli says, he has a very mixed audience.

"I'll come to a city and play the first night and there'll be musicians and hard-core music freaks listening to the band and all the sounds.

"Some people say, 'What is this: Rudolph Valentino with electronics?' and think I'm nothing." In Buffalo, Vannelli says, opening for Liza Minnelli, he was hissed and booed by people impatient to hear her. In San Antonio, at a big record store to sign autographs, 3,000 girls got hysterical over him and it was all 28 policemen could do to handle the situation. The hysteria has been going on about a year, he says.

His biggest single, "People Gotta Move," on A & M, was about two years ago. Albums on A & M are "Crazy Life," "Powerful People," "Storm at Sunup" and the new one. The second and third, he says, sold about 200,000 copies each.

"People who have the albums are very devoted to the music," Vannelli says. "It's important to me to have someone come to a show and be into the music."

Actor rejects autobiography

SOLANA BEACH (AP) - Former leading man George Brent, whose motion pictures spanned some 30 years, says he wanted to do an autobiography but decided against it.

"This thing would be an endless project," he said Tuesday.

The Irish-born Brent, now 73, lives alone in Solana Beach, a community north of San Diego. He told a friend that while his health is good, "I'm not as strong as I used to be."

Skateboard bill clears Assembly

The Assembly gave final legislative approval recently to a bill giving cities and counties the right to regulate the use of skateboards on public streets.

The rules, if any, would be up to each community.

Welcome TO THE VALLEY

An informative guide to keep on hand on What's What and Where . . .
in the Pomona Valley.

Recreational activities in valley

In Pomona, there is the perpetually active Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, preparing now to open its 49th extravaganza (largest county fair in the world) Sept. 17.

During the winter months, valley skiers flock to Mt. Blady for some of the highest and steepest skiing in Southern California.

In each community in the valley there are community and neighborhood parks and in most, there are swimming pools.

The large parks are the Frank G. Bonelli Regional Park in San Dimas, the San Dimas Canyon Park and the Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park.

Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park, the newest, opened 54 acres in 1974. It includes an eight-acre fishing and boating lake, filled with Colorado River water, a two-acre lake, and a fan-shaped sand-bottom swimming pool which holds 1.48 million gallons of water and can accommodate 900 swimmers at a time.

This park has 100 picnic units, a floating dock, two restroom buildings, a gatehouse, boathouse, concession building, guard building with first aid station and a storage building. It was financed with federal,, state and county money. This first phase cost $700,000.

Cucamonga-Guasti Regional Park is situated 1½ blocks north of the San Bernardino Freeway at 800 N. Archibald Ave., Ontario.

Its second phase, 51 acres on the west side of Archibald, will be developed later.

This park is open every day except Christmas and New Year's. It was developed jointly by the San Bernardino County Park Department and Flood Control District and the Chino Basin Water Conservation District to provide both recreational area and water conservation.

San Dimas Canyon Park, which has a noteworthy nature museum, is situated on San Dimas Canyon Road one quarter mile north of Foothill Boulevard. It is open daily until dark.

This park is 137 acres of wooded area, owned and operated by Los Angeles County. It is largely primitive area, but thousands of residents find it the perfect spot for family reunions, Sunday picnics and company parties. It is a popular, well established park, and many times families arrive as early as 6 a.m. to reserve tables for their larger affairs.

Bonelli Park, originally Puddingstone Park, sprawls over 2,000 acres in east San Dimas and is being developed by Los Angeles County in five phases at an estimated cost of $28 million.

Phase 1, the Bonelli Swim Park, was completed and opened in 1972 at a cost of $2.9 million. It includes, a 22-acre area, a one-acre, heated, sand-bottom swimming pool, a two-story pavillion with snackbar, dressing rooms, lockers and offices and sheltered cooking and picnicking areas.

Phase 2, the renovation of the Mountain Meadows Golf Course, is to be completed in the fall.

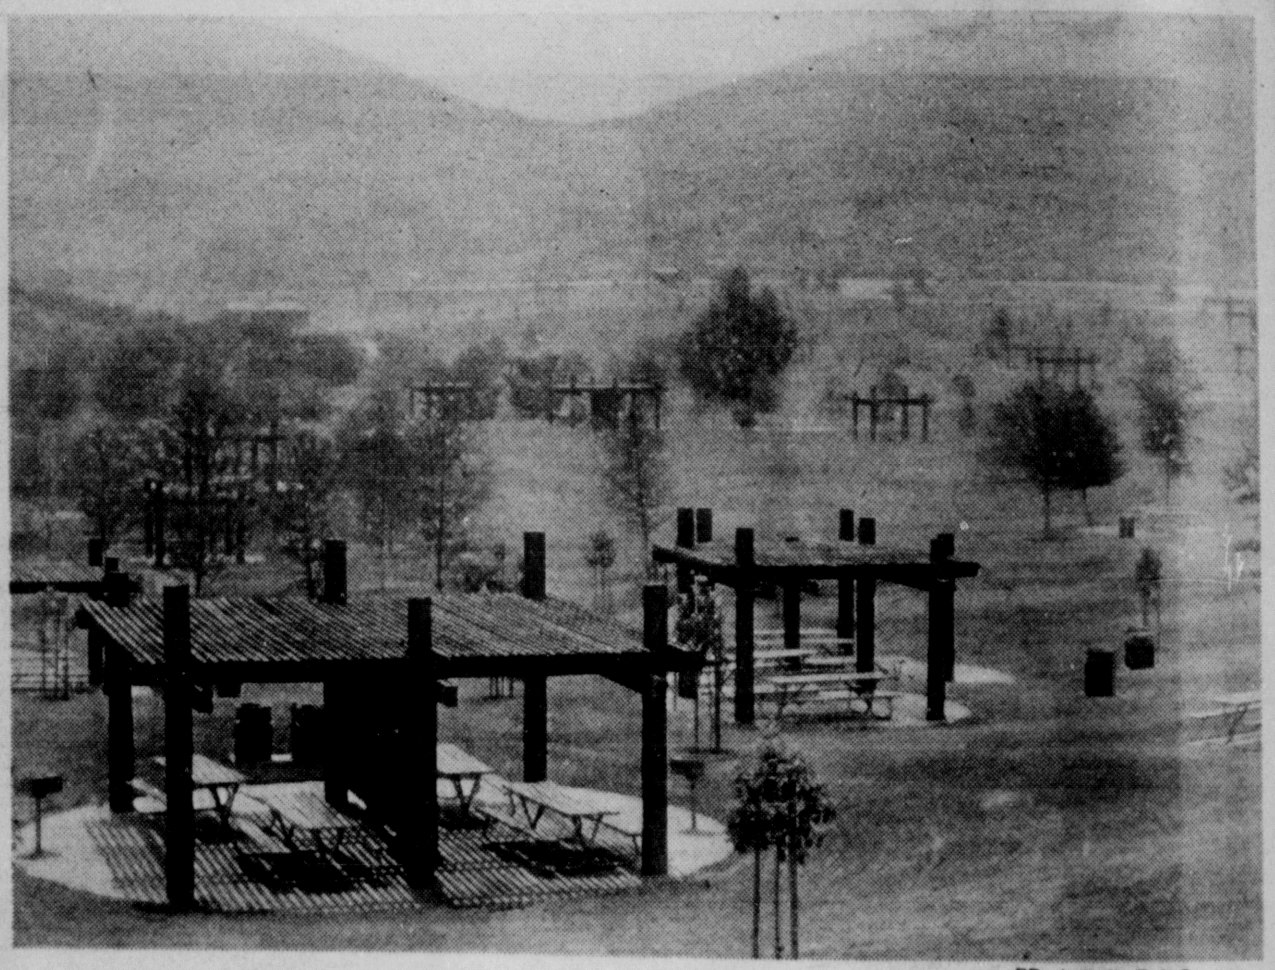

Phase 3, the installation of utilities and development of roads, has been completed.

Phase 4, the development of the South Shore area with an equestrian center, equestrian trails, campgrounds, picnic areas and an administrative building also has been finished.

Phase 5, still in the future, calls for construction of a nature center, construction of a private restaurant, and development of a children's play area and a tram system to circle the park.

This park was named for the late Frank G. Bonelli, a member of the Los Angles County Board of Supervisors. He represented the area for many years.

Travelers can pick from four airports

It's "thumbs up" for aviators in the valley. For they are blessed to have four airports to handle their flight needs.

And for the nonpilots who still prefer the blue skies for travel, there is a commercial airport which provides flights to many cities in the nation.

The largest facility is the Ontario International Airport, which spreads over 1,463 acres within the City of Ontario and serves jetliners from several airlines.

Others are Brackett Field in La Verne, Chino Airport near Chino and Cable Airport in Upland.

The Ontario airport, a sister to the Los Angeles International Airport, is operated by the Los Angles Department of Airports. It is expected to serve some 1.5 million passengers this year and from 12 to 14 million by 1990.

It was established in 1929 when the City of Ontario purchased 30 acres on the west end of the present site. The effort was spearheaded by the Ontario Aircraft Corp., a private company, and members of the Ontario American Legion Post 112.

The airport was used during World War II as a fighter training base, then returned to the city on Armistice Day, 1947.

Following extended negotiations between the cities of Ontario and Los Angeles, a joint powers agreement was signed on Nov. 1, 1967, which gave operational control to Los Angeles in exchange for debt assumption and a promise for future development.

And since then, more than $10 million in capital improvements have been made. These include expanding the terminal building, parking lots and air cargo facilities. Additional land has been purchased, lighting and field improvements made, and more firefighting and aircrash equipment obtained.

In addition, an environmental study has been made for construction of a second major runway which can serve the wide-bodied aircraft. This will also serve to relieve the existing runway built 30 years ago.

The Chino Airport, owned and operated by San Bernardino County, occupies 850 acres east of Euclid Avenue and north of Merrill Street.

Once a pasture owned by the University of California, it had its start in 1940 when the federal government bought 373 acres at $333 per acre. An additional 485 acres were purchased during the next four years.

Officials estimate that 12,000 pilots received their "wings" there before the academy closed in 1944. The military history is still present, however, since several of the barracks buildings are still being used.

San Bernardino County acquired ownership in 1948, when the War Assets Administration transferred the entire 850 acres and buildings to the county government.

Many private aviators use the facility for daily and weekend flying. Officials estimate 180,000 flight operations will be logged this year and double that amount within 10 years.

Brackett Field had its start as an airport 63 years ago when a Wright biplane, piloted by C.P. Rogers, landed in a small pasture while on the last stop of the first transcontinental flight.

Now a Los Angeles County-owned airport, it extends over 230 acres within the City of La Verne. The facility is expected to log 220,000 flights this year and reach its maximum of 500,000 annual flights by 1984.

County officials recently launched a $1.3 million program to add a second 4,000-foot runway, and relocate the control tower.

Hearings on environmental impact reports have been completed and the findings were sent to the federal government.

The airport now has 110 T-hangers.

Cable Airport is billed as the "largest, private airport in the world." It covers 75 acres north of Foothill Boulevard and west of Benson Avenue in Upland.

"We started operations on May 27, 1945," recalled Dewey. "We had 50 flight operations the first year. This increased to 18,000 flight operations this year.

The present site was the seventh selected by Cable. Others were scratched when a city wouldn't permit an airport, or the property wasn't properly zoned he said.

"When we started, there was nothing there but sagebrush, rocks and rattlesnakes. The airport was built by myself, my son and daughter," he reported.

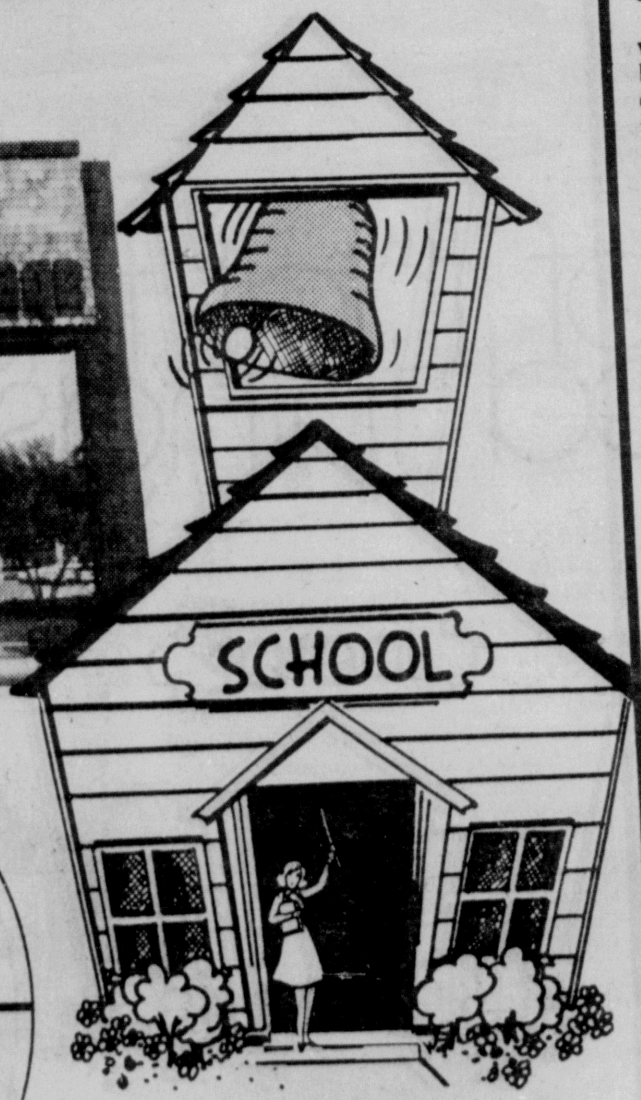

The airport now has a 4,000-foot runway, five main buildings and 180 hangar spaces. More than 350 small planes are kept there. "This is a one-stop airport, where all aviation needs can be met," said Cable.

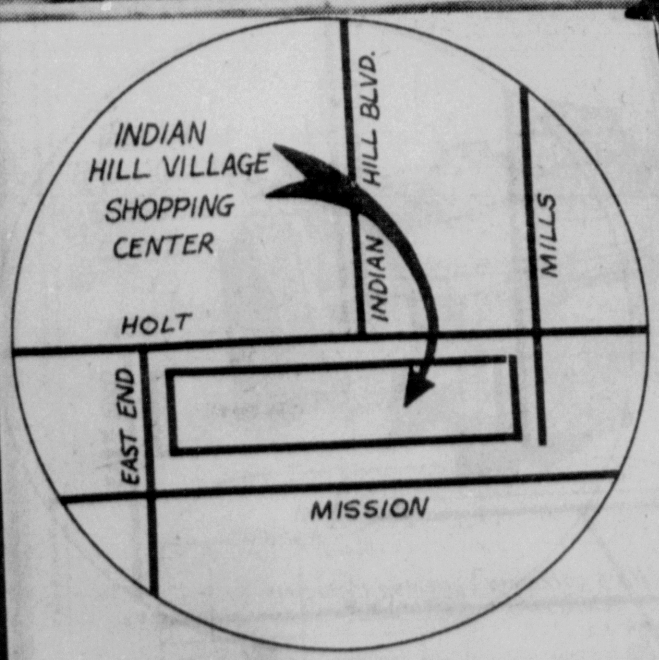

"There is a time to pray and a time to fight," proclaimed Lutheran pastor Peter Muhlenberg to his Woodstock, Va., congregation as he tore off his vestments January, 1775, to reveal the uniform of a militia officer. Lutherans, along with Congregationalists, Baptists and middle colonies Presbyterians favored independence from England. The Society of Friends opposed all wars, including the Revolution. Anglicans, The World Almanac notes, were in an awkward spot, as their English-led clergy was tied by oath to the crown.

Literally, a "fire of joy" — feu de joie was a form of public military celebration in which musket fire was timed so as to progress from one man to another, producing a continuous roar. As early as 1771, however, "feu de joie" also meant a bonfire. The World Almanac notes that "a running fire of musketry followed" at Valley Forge on May 6, '78, in celebration of the French Alliance.

YMCAs for family

A family affair.

That's the best description of the widely varied programs offered to valley residents by the Pomona Valley and West End YMCAs.

"We have something for every member of the family, whether it's physical exercise or recreation," said Dennis Palmer, physical director for the Pomona Valley YMCA.

The main branch of the Pomona Valley YMCA is located at 350 N. Garey Ave. and also has branch facilities in Calremont, San Dimas and Diamond Bar that serve those communities plus La Verne and Walnut.

The West End YMCA is located at 215 W. C St., Ontario, serving the cities of Ontario and Upland and also operates programs in the Chino and Cucamonga areas.

Some of the YMCA's regular programs include swimming lessons for persons three months of age to adult, complete children's programs including gym and craft activities, and skill classes for persons of all ages.

Courses offered include yoga, judo, karate, gymnastics, ballet, ballroom dancing, macrame, gardening, and belly dancing. Other special courses are offered from time to time.

In addition, the Pomona Valley YMCA has a men's club that includes use of the YMCA's steam and sauna baths and exercise equipment, in addition to use of the gymnasiums and indoor swimming pool.

For teen-agers, the YMCA's have year-round Indian Princess and Indian Guide programs that provide youths and parents with an on-going selection of recreational and achievement events.

The Pomona Valley YMCA also has a special Youth in Government program that provides high school students with an opportunity to meet state legislators and tour the capitol in Sacramento.

During the summer months, both YMCA's have special youth programs that include field trips all over Southern California and resident camps in the San Bernardino Mountains.

Memberships in the YMCA's are offered on a family or individual basis. For the Ontario YMCA, family membership is available for a cost of $25 per year. Family membership at the Pomona Valley YMCA is $110 per year.

Although membership is encouraged, many programs at the YMCA are open to non-members on an additional fee basis.

Plenty to see in the arts

Devotees of the performing arts and fine arts find the valley a rich cultural area of theater groups, symphony orchestras, art associations and dance troupes. Few days of the year pass without a dramatic presentation, and art exhibit or a band or choral concert.

Further enriching the esthetic scene are the orchestras, glee clubs, dance groups, theater companies and art programs of the Claremont Colleges, Cal Poly university and La Verne, Citrus, Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges. Through the school year — and some times during the summer — these institutions open their stages, concert halls and art galleries to public, often to professional presentations. The Artist Course, the Young Concert Artist Course and the Children's Theater series at the Claremont Colleges bring the area programs ranging from the Los Angeles Philharmonic to puppet shows and circuses.

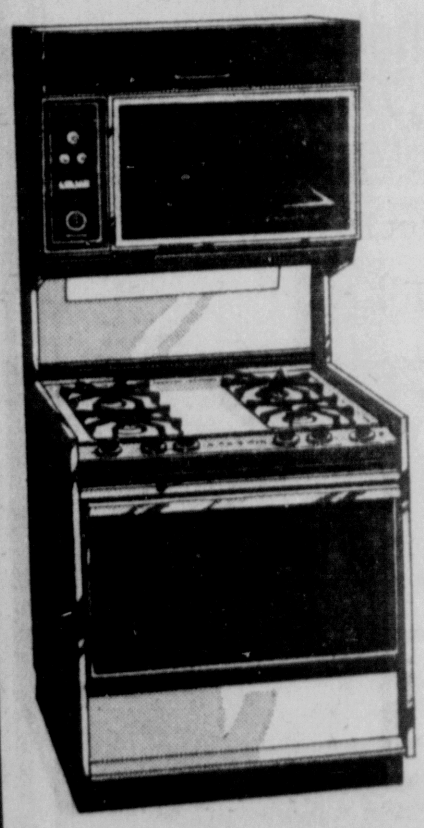

On the theatrical scene are Pomona's Valley Community Theater, Gallery Theater in Ontario, directed by Mark and Jean Shipley, and the year-old Claremont Playhouse in the old Claremont High School auditorium. All three theaters draw on local performers to stage dramas, comedies and musicals.

The valley is even richer in musical than in theater organizations. Stan Selby, founder-conductor of the Pomona Concert Band, leads weekly summer programs at Ganesha Prk and offers concerts during the winter. The West End Symphony Orchestra, drawing musicians from

About 100,000 expected to attend classes

Valley boasts nine public school districts

Opening day, during the second week of September, will be the starting point for students in Pomona, Bonita, Chaffey, Chino, Claremont, Ontario-Montclair, Rowland, Upland, and Walnut school districts.

About 20,260 students are expected to attend classes in the Pomona Unified School District, which includes 31 schools: 21 elementary, six junior highs, three high schools and a continuation high. The district serves the city of Pomona and north Diamond Bar.

Construction of new buildings has been completed at various schools, and a new classroom building at Garey High School is proposed for construction this year. The building will include a media center.

Park Avenue High School will move into new quarters at 1540 W. Second St. in time for the opening of school. The new building was purchased from Southern California Gas Co. The school is moving from its present site at 605 N. Park Ave.

The Claremont Unified School District expects to enroll 6,164 students at 12 schools: eight elementary, two junior highs, a high school and a continuation high. The district serves Claremont, surrounding county territory, and a small section of Pomona.

Chino Unified School District officials predict an enrollment of 10,800 this year at eight elementary schools, two junior highs and four high schools including Boys Republic and Buena Vista continuation high. The district serves Chino and surrounding county areas.

Except for Chino High, which is on a traditional nine-month system, all district schools are operating on a combined year-round and traditional program. Walnut and El Rancho schools offer only a year-round schedule, but students who desire traditional may attend another elementary school offering that program.

About 7,676 students are expected to attend classes in the Bonita Unified School District this fall. The district had 12 schools: seven elementary, two junior highs, two high schools and a continuation high. It serves the cities of La Verne and San Dimas.

The Chaffey Union High School District will handle about 13,000 students this fall in five high schools and a continuation high. The district serves communities of Montclair, Upland, Ontario, Alta Loma, Etiwanda, Guasti and Mt. Baldy.

Approximately 15,550 students will enroll this semester in the Ontario-Montclair School District. Thirty-two schools are included in the district: 23 elementary, five junior highs and four special education schools. Students in Ontario and Montclair are served by the district.

About 16,350 students are expected in the Rowland Unified School District this year. The district has 20 schools: 14 elementary, three intermediate, two high schools and a continuation high. It serves Rowland Heights and portions of La Puente and West Covina.

The Upland School District will welcome about 6,000 students, in 11 schools including nine elementary and two junior highs. The district serves the City of Upland.

Walnut Unified School District officials will enroll around 6,700 students in 1976-77, at 10 schools including six elementary, two intermediate, one high school and a continuation high. The district serves the City of Walnut, south Diamond Bar and a small portion of West Covina.

The new Cyrus Morris Elementary School was opened last February. Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar will open this fall.

It was the patriots, and not the British, who were the first to use indians in the Revolutionary War. The Massachusetts Provincial Congress, in March, 1775, allowed Stockbridge indians to form a company of minutemen, and Congress, in May, 1775 instructed indian commissioners to try to keep the savages neutral, or else enlist them. Departments were created to administer to indian affairs, and The World Almanac notes that an appropriation of $17,000 was voted for rum and gifts!

Eleven hospitals serve the valley, offering general care as well as specialized services in a variety of areas.

There are nine acute general hospitals locally, including Pomona Valley Community, Park Avenue and Garfield-Cottage all in Pomona, Chino General, San Dimas Community, Ontario Community, Montclair Community and Doctors both in Montclair, and San Antonio Community in Upland.

The large specialized hospitals, Casa Colina, a hospital for rehabilitative medicine, and Pacific State, a hospital for the mentally retarded and learning disabled, are also in Pomona.

Pomona Valley Community Hospital opened in a house in 1899 and was incorporated at its present location in 1904. The 389-bed hospital has a staff of 1,000 with 170 on the medical staff.

Among the hospital's specialized service departments are the neo-natal acute care center, the radiology department, which uses a new ultrasound, scanning device, and a cardio-respiratory unit with a therapy department.

The hospital also utilizes laminar air flow surgery, a process estimated to be 1,000 times more protected against baceria than in an average operating room and used for such surgery as total hip replacement.

Pomona Valley Community Hospital has a linear accelerator for cancer treatment and its physical therapy department, treats more than 200 patients each day.

It has ordered a new scanning machine which delivers a three-dimensional cross sectional view of the body for diagnostic purposes.

Opened in the summer of 1975, the newest wing of the hospital cost $8.5 million and adds 15,000 square feet of hospital space.

The wing includes cardiac care and intensive care units, an enlarged outpatient department and emergency services.

Also included are classrooms where a series of educational nursing programs and workshops are conducted.

A number of medical symbosiums for both professional workers and the public are being held in the Pitzer Auditorium in the new wing.

At San Dimas Community Hospital, which opened on Oct. 31, 1972, a to-phase construction project reached its half-way mark this summer.

The first phase of a $1.1 million medical-dental center was opened in July and the second phase was started with a groundbreaking this month.

The phases are identical with each addition including 21,000 square feet of space to house 12 physicians' suites and an out-patient radiology clinic.

The new buildings will be added to the 77,000-square-foot hospital, which has 99 beds and the capacity for 29 additional beds without additional construction. Consideration is being given at this time on adding the 29 beds.

The Ontario hospital opened in 1951, houses 99 beds and is staffed by 200 employes, including a medical staff of 125. The facility has 60,000 square feet of space.

Montclair Community Hospital, under its present ownership, opened in December, 1972. The building was constructed in 1960.

Montclair Community is a small acute general hospital with 34 beds.

Included in the new addition completed this year is part of the cardiac-catheterization lab and the emergency and radiology department, as well as general stores.

Construction recently completed at San Antonio

Five court complexes in the valley

Court complexes at five valley locations house the legal machinery which serves an area with an estimated population of about 1¼ million.

Since the valley is bisected by the Los Angles-San Bernardino county line, two judicial systems are involved, with facilities of Los Angles County located in Pomona and San Bernardino county courts situated in four West End communities.

In Pomona, the $7.2-million, seven-story East District Superior Court Builsing and the $1 million, two-story Pomona Municipal Court Building are the centers of law for Los Angeles County.

Superior Court cases are drawn from an area extending west to the cities of Azusa, Irwindale, El Monte, Baldwin Park, La Puente, Industry, Hacienda Heights, Rowland Heights and Diamond Bar.

Also included in the district are the cities of West Covina, Covina, Valinda, Glendora, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas and Pomona.

Municipal Court cases draw on a smaller area, including the cities of Pomona, La Verne, Claremont, San Dimas and Diamond Bar.

The Superior Court building was dedicated in 1969 and the Municipal Court building 10 years earlier.

They are at the west side of a civic center complex on Mission Boulevard between Garey and Park avenues, which also include the Pomona City Hall and the Pomona Library.

Superior Court has a staff of eight judges and one commissioner under the supervision of Presiding Judge Paul Egly. Other judges are Francis J. Garvey, Howard D. McClain, Carlos M. Teran, Glenn M. Pfau, Sam Cianchetti, David F. Cunningham, and Robert Lopez. The commissioner is Robert B. Lopez.

Two referees handle juvenile cases in Superior Court. They are Roy Dankman and Barry Levy.

Approximately 400 persons work in the building, which includes the district attorney's office headed by acting head deputy Gerald Poirier, the probation department headed by Dudley L. Seeman, and the public defender's office headed by Stanley Mathiesen.

Also in the building are the offices of county Board of Supervisors member Peter Schabarum, the county clerk, a civil division of the sheriff's department, a jury commissioner, inheritance tax examiners, a probate attorney, a juvenile traffic court and a law library.

The Municipal Court, handling misdemeanor crimes, traffic offenses, felony preliminary hearings and small claims, has three judges and one commissioner. They are Presiding Judge James H. Piatt, Judge Robert C. Gustaveson, Judge Thomas Nuss and Commissioner Thomas A. Peterson.

The building contains offices employing approximately 45 persons and, in addition to the court rooms, includes office of the public defender, sheriff, Los Angeles County Marshal, and a senior citizen's center.

Three Superior Courts, five Municipal Courts and two justices serve the more than 200,000 residents in the West End of San Bernardino County, including the rapidly growing cities of Ontario, Chino, Montclair, Upland, and the unincorporated areas of Alta Loma, Cucamonga, Etiwanda, Los Serranos, Glenmeade, San Antonio Heights and Mt. Baldy.

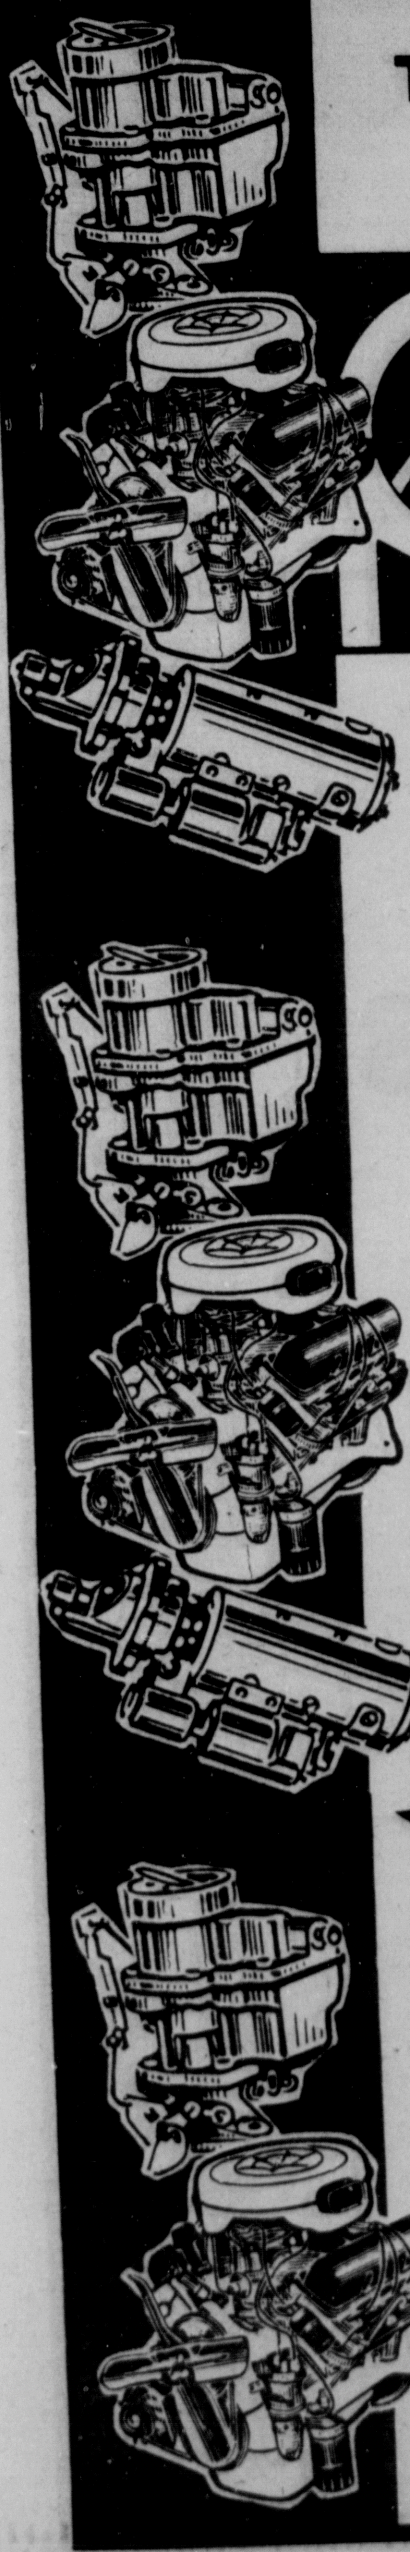

The three Superior Courts and four Municipal Courts, along with District Attorney's and Public Defender's offices are all located in the West Valley courts complex on Mountain Avenue and Sixth Street in Ontario.

The Chino Municipal Court, recently moved from a remodeled building at 13271 Central Ave., is now located in the ultra-modern new Chino Civic Center complex across the street and boasts two large semi-circular courtrooms, adjacent to the new Chino Police Department jail. The new Chino court wing also has offices for deputy district attorneys and public defenders from West Valley and a marshals office.

The Cucamonga Justice Court is located at 8075 Archibald Ave. in Cucamonga, while the Etiwanda Justice Court, soon to be combined with the Cucamonga Justice Court, is located at 7611 Etiwanda Ave. in Etiwanda.

creasing case load in the West Valley courts are Judges Richard Garner, Clifton Allen, and James Cunningham, Sr., of the Superior Court; Superior Court Commissioner Duane Thomas; Judges Martin Hildreth, David Merriam and Dyson Cox, with a yet to be named fourth judge in the West Valley Municipal Court; Judge Philip Schaefer of the Chino Municipal Court; and Municipal Court Traffic Commissioners Thomas Perry and Ben Burrell.

Justice of the Peace Larry Thorne currently presides over the Cucamonga Justice Court that will soon be combined with the Etiwanda Justice Court presided over by Justice Bert Shelby.

Until October 1975 William Pitt Hyde presided over the fourth West Valley Municipal Court, but is now serving as a Superior Court judge in San Bernardino. The fourth judge of the West Valley Municipal Court will soon be appointed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Assisting the West Valley and Chino courts and local law enforcement agencies are 17 deputy district attorneys headed by Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Joseph Canty, and eight deputy public defenders under the direction of Chief Deputy Public Defender Charles Kayes. Kayes in the past year replaced Dyson Cox who was appointed a Municipal Court judge.

Since last year a number of physical changes have taken place in the West Valley and Chino courts. One of the main projects begun in mid-1976 was the construction of a new 100 foot-long underground prisoner security tunnel leading from the West End Sheriff's jail north of the courts complex to the courts building.

The new tunnel, built at a cost of $250,000, will insure the safe escorting of prisoners from the jail to the courts.

Currently the 35 person court administrative staff headed by Ed Basic and Jim Stone are working with Judge Merriam on a new court space need plan that will be submitted to the county Board of Supervisors and the Law and Justice Committee. The new plan calls for the rapid expansion of court facilities in the West End in the next nine years because of an estimated increase in the West End population of nearly 50 per cent.

Located in Chino is one of the state's largest men's penal institutions, the California Institution for Men (CIM); the only women's institution, the California Institution for Women (CIW) and the California Youth Authority's Youth Training School (YTS). The Chino prison institutions are highly advanced in modern rehabilitation techniques and have served as models for other institutions across the nation.

A variety of sports is offered

Year around, this area offers many different types of sporting events, not only to valley residents, but also to sports fan throughout the state.

On the east side of Ontario stands one of the most beautiful and modern auto racing facilities in the world. Ontario Motor Speedway is the site of the famous California 500, which features the top Indianapolis-type cars and drivers.

The Cal 500 festivities begin the last week of August and carry on through Sept. 5, when the actual race is run.

But the Cal 500 isn't the only event at the OMS track. There is also the National Hot Rod Association World Finals in October and a stock car race in November.

If you specifically like drag racing, then a hop over to the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona in early February will be very entertaining. That's when the NHRA hosts the winternationals.

The Winternationals, the West Coast's biggest drag racing event and first event of the National Hot Rod Association's annual calendar brings virtually every superstar in drag racing together for four days of competition to determine championships in eight separate Eliminator categories. The Winternationals have been held in Pomona every year since their beginning in 1961.

You say you like racing, but auto racing doesn't do anything for you? Well, how about foot racing?

The Mt. San Antonio Relays, held every year in late April at Mt. San Antonio College, features some of the nation's top track and field athletes in a three-day meet.

Countless high school teams compete against each other on a Friday night, with the top names and teams in the nation taking the spotlight all day Saturday, Sunday, the girls' track teams vie.

If that doesn't appeal to

Three major shopping centers in valley

Valley consumers can satisfy their shopping needs at such centers as the Indian Hill Village, Montclair Plaza and Pomona Mall.

Indian Hill Village — formerly the Pomona Valley Center — is located on Holt Avenue at Indian Hill Boulevard and Mills Avenue in Pomona. It is the oldest of the regional business enterprises, opening the first of its specialty shops at the 50-acre site in the fall and winter of 1955 and 1956. The November 1954 opening of the Sears and Roebuck store marked the establishment of the first major department store in the valley.

The gigantic Christmas tree that has become a familiar sight to holiday shoppers was first erected a year after the center opened. It has since become a traditional holiday affair. The first tree loomed 105 feet from the ground and was topped by a 12-foot star.

Early in 1973, the center was purchased by Spence Clark, a young entrepreneur who owns 13 other shopping centers throughout the country. Following a naming contest in 1974, the center was officially dubbed Indian Hill Village in November with the erection of a new sign.

Among the shops in the village are Morning Star, the Jewel Bug, the Growing Concern, Longs Drugs, Roberts, Zody's, Harris and Frank, Ewart's, Larry Wellins Jewelers, Walden Book Store, Newberry's, House of Fabrics, Poor Richard's Pipe and Tobacco Shop and the Village Cobbler.

Hours vary according to the shop, but most are open until 9 p.m. on Mondays and Fridays, until 6 p.m. other weekdays and Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

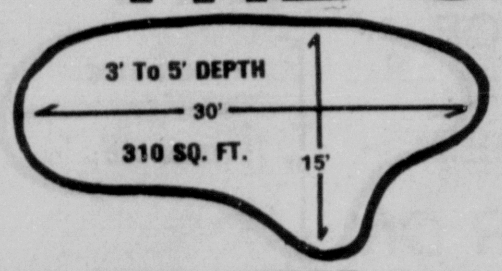

The Pomona Mall was the first pedestrian mall in the state, with its opening in 1962.

The $620,718 expense was financed by 91 property owners who owned 66 parcels of property which fronted the mall. The shopping avenue, nine blocks extending along Second Street from Park Avenue to Linden Street, was dedicated in September, 1962.

Buffums' which opened a large new store on the east end soon after the Mall was completed, began its Young Careerists program in 1963 "to offer business education and experience through vacation and summer work, and marketing and manufacturing field trips."

Ontario, Upland, Montclair, Chino and other areas, performs its concerts in Spring Auditorium, Ontario.

George Denes, founder-director of the Claremont Symphony Orchestra, leads that group's concerts. Fred Graffe of Pomona conducts the Montclair Starlite Symphonette, sponsored by the Montclair Recreation Department.

Numerous choral groups perform during the year in various valley communities. Classicial, religious and secular music is presented by the Louis Ronfeldt Chorale. Ray Wood directs the Pomona Community Chorus in concerts ranging from religious to contemporary music. On the nostalgia side are the Pomona Valley chapters of the Sweet Adelines and the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Outstanding in providing valley residents with professional cultural fare is the Pomona Valley Community Concert Association, which each year brings to the area leading concert artist and performing groups of international stature. These include piano and violin soloists, chamber ensembles, ballet troupes and other attractions. PVCCA presents four or five programs each year in Spring Auditorium, Ontario.

Three organizations are unique in the valley area: the West End Opera Company, the Valley Concert Dance Theater and the Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz.

The opera company, formed several years ago by Stefan Petroff, son of a famous European opera star, presents two full-scale operas each year in Spring Auditorium.

Valley Concert Dance Theater is active throughout the year under artistic director and choreographer, JoAnn Warner, former soloist with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. That group offers training and performance in classical and modern ballet.

The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz was formed in Pomona in 1961, and now meets on the fourth Sunday of each month at the Elks Lodge in Arcadia, often drawing Dixieland jazz greats to join in. SPDJ performs at baseball games and barbecues, at parades, civic functions and the Los Angeles County Fair.

SPDJ has given rise to a second jazz club, SPDJ-East, which meets on the second Sunday of each month at the Moose Lodge in Riverside.

Also unique in the valley are the summer Starlite Patio Theater series and the winter Starlite Theater series offered by the Montclair Recreation Department. These two seasons, directed by Harve Edwards, present a wide variety of band, chorale and orchestral concerts, plays, dance companies and variety shows, all admission free.

Art in the Pomona Valley is also an active force in the cultural life of the area, with several art organizations offering exhibitions, demonstrations, sales and art classes throughout the year. Largest and oldest of these is the Pomona Valley Art LAZY DAYS DUE TO END — Students catch up on last minute cat-napping before schools and colleges open in September. Thousands of elementary, secondary and college students will flock to the numerous campuses.

The "Loyall Nine", an offshoot of the Caucus Club and leaders of the Sons of Liberty, were nine men and Sam Adams (not a member) who operated behind the scenes to keep agitation alive in Boston. The World Almanac recalls the nine men were: John Avery, John Smith, Thomas Crafts, Benjamin Edes (printer of the Boston Gazette), Stephen Cleverly, Thomas Chase, Joseph Field, George Trott, and Henry Bass, cousin of Adams.

Students also act as the store's representatives on their respective high school campuses throughout the valley. Fashion shows, community and store projects and scholarships are other features of the program.

Ernest Hahan Enterprises was the developer of the $40 million Montclair Plaza. The center, now owned by Connecticut General Life, Mortgage Trust Division of Hartford, Conn., takes in approximately 100 acres on Central Avenue immediately north of the San Bernardino Freeway to Olive Street and westward to Monte Vista Avenue.

Upon its opening in August 1968, the Montclair city administrator called it "a happy marriage of good business principals and desirable aesthetic values."

The City Council and private citizens owning property in the vicinity of the plaza formed a special assessment district to provide monies for street, drainage, underground utility and lighting improvements around the center.

Crocker National Bank was the first tenant to open its doors with ceremonies on Oct. 20, 1967, 10 months before the plaza officially opened.

The regional complex takes in three main areas, north and south plaza shops and a main mall that is enclosed and has a constant temperature of 70 degrees. The fully landscaped paved parking lot accommodates more than 5,000 cars.

The parking lot is also the central turn-around point for the Omnitrans bus fleet of the West Valley Transit Service Authority and Southern California Rapid Transit Dsitrict. The mini-buses in the Omnitrans fleet bring residents from Ontario, Chino, Upland and Montclair to the plaza while the RTD line goes on to Ontario International Airport and Riverside.

A bus shelter and waiting area will be established within the year in the north plaza parking lot off Moreno Avenue.

Broadway on the east, Penney's on the south and, May Co. on the west of the main mall, plus Montgomery Ward to the north on the other side of Moreno Street, are the big department stores in the complex. Besides these, the plaza features clothing, beauty, instrumental and music, lighting, toy, shoe, candle, party, jewelry, pet, travel, book and candy shops, restaurants, a market, theaters, an ice cream parlor, service stations and automotive sales and service centers.

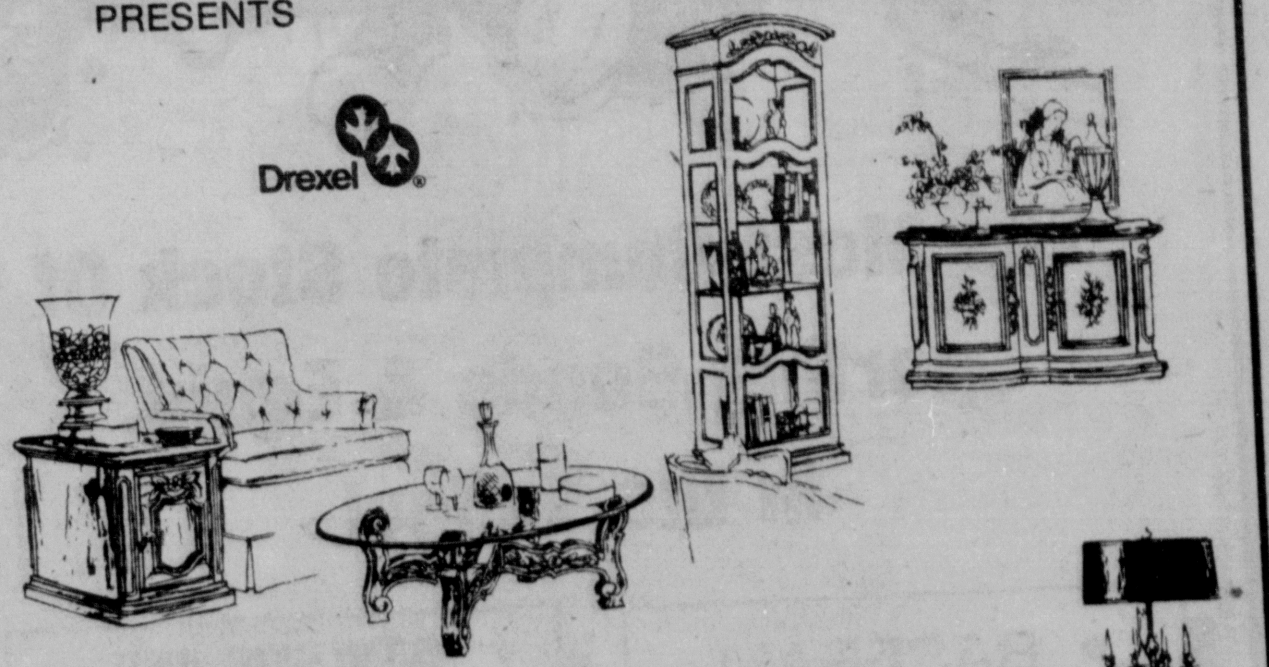

The main mall has often been the setting for antique, boat, dragster and luxury foreign cars, and arts and crafts shows, exhibits by valley school children, puppeteers, Christmas decorating contests and fashion shows.

The plaza hours are 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday-Fridays: 10 to 6 p.m. Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Barbara De Voss is general manager of the Montclair Plaza.

Fair features train exhibits

Railroad buffs visiting the Los Angeles County Fair next month will have an excellent opportunity to see three different displays.

Located within the Schools Exhibit is the Citrus Belt Model Railroad, which operates daily and provides an almost bird's-eye view of a realistic railroad operation.

That exhibit first opened in 1954 with just one locomotive.

It has grown to include seven engines, rolling stock, and railroad memorabilia.

An authentic railroad station, the former Santa Fe station from Arcadia, stands at the front of the exhibit area and houses the museum.

A fair queen will be crowned on opening day.

There will be hundreds of exhibitions, displays and attractions.

For those who love horse racing, there will be eight thoroughbred races, two quarter horse races, one Appaloosa race, plus a pari-mutuel and three extas every day of the fair except Sunday. Post time will be 1 p.m.

Last year's fair drew 1,135,852 visitors. During 1975, 780,208 people attended interim events at the fairgrounds.

When the fair is not on, numerous and varied activities attract people to the fairgrounds. It is the home of the Winternationals car races, dog races, horse auctions, animal and hobby shows and trailer club rallies.

It is the regular meeting place for numerous youth and school groups.

Federal, state, county and city agencies use sections of the fairgrounds for training sessions.

Boxing matches and swap meets also have been

12 colleges and a university in valley

The valley area is a haven for students in high education with a total of 12 colleges and a university within a 12-mile radius of downtown Pomona.

One of the oldest in the valley is La Verne College, a coeducational, privately supported liberal arts college that is located on 23 acres in downtown La Verne. The college was founded in 1891.

Cal Poly, west of Pomona, is part of California's State Universities and Colleges system and is located on the former W. K. Kellogg Arabian Horse Ranch, deeded as a gift to the state in 1949.

The valley has three junior colleges. Citrus College, founded in 1915 in Azusa, is the oldest community college in Los Angeles County. Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut was founded in 1946 and met in temporary quarters until the campus was moved to its present location four months later. The first class had an enrollment of 600 and 197 of these were World War II veterans. Chaffey College was founded in 1883 at a site on N. Euclid Ave., in Ontario, but moved to a 200-acre campus north of Foothill Boulevard in Alta Loma in 1960.

Azusa Pacific College is a privately funded college on 84 acres in Azusa. The college was founded in 1899 and has a Christian emphasis.

The Claremont School of Theology in 1956 moved to its present site in Claremont from the USC campus. The school was originally the official seminary for the Methodist Church, but is now affiliated with many denominations is considered multi-denominational. It is also coeducational.

The Claremont Colleges is a cluster of six associated colleges which include Pomona College, Scripps College, Claremont Men's College, Harvey Mudd College, Pitzer College and Claremont Graduate School. Each of the undergraduate colleges has a four-year academic program leading to a bachelor degree. Each has its own campus, students and faculty and educational emphasis, but the colleges share both facilities and faculty members in a system patterned after England's "Oxford plan."

Scripps College, the only all-women college in the Claremont Colleges cluster, was founded in 1926. Pomona College, founded in 1887, is a coeducational college of arts and sciences. Claremont Men's College was founded in 1946.

About half of the CMC students major in political science or economics. Harvey Mudd College was founded in 1955 and is coeducational school for science and engineering. Pitzer College was founded in 1963 and places curricular emphasis on the behavioral and social sciences. It is also coeducational. The Claremont Graduate School was founded in 1925 and is devoted to study beyond the bachelor's degree.

In 1975, the 1,088-acre Cal Poly campus in Pomona enlarged its facilities with a $2.6 million student union building to serve its growing student body.

When the college opens its doors for the fall quarter on Sept. 23, an all-time record number of students, 14,200, will attend classes. This is an increase of 1,500 over last year.

A $7.2 million science building on the campus near the administration building will be open for classes this fall. The dedication ceremony is planned in late October. This four-story building houses laboratories, classrooms and offices.

Citrus College in Azusa expects an enrollment of 10,000 day and evening students when the fall term opens on Sept. 13. A $984,550 vocational-technical building was completed last year. The structure replaces the original technical building that was constructed in 1924 and did not meet the states' earthquake safety requirements.

The two-story building will provide modern facilities and needed additional space for instruction in cosmetology, vocational nursing, photography and space for two new courses that will be offered for the first time this fall in radio and television repair and air conditioning and refrigeration repair.

When Mt. San Antonio College begins the fall term, more than 22,000 day and evening students will be registered in the 2,000 classes offered in the 26 academic and vocational departments at the college.

New and expanded classes and courses are scheduled for almost every department of this junior college for the fall session. A day division program in computer electronics technology is offered. The two-year program is designed to prepare students for work as service engineers, manufacturing test technicians and computer reserach and development technicians.

An evening class in the computer science department is designed for business management personnel who deal with computer output, but have no specific data processing background.

Instruction begins on Sept. 13. In 1975, the fall enrollment was 10,141. This fall, the enrollment is expected to be 11,414.

Chaffey has slated classes for the late afternoon allowing students broader latitude in planning study programs.

Among the innovations at Chaffey College last year was the establishment of the Ontario-Montclair Center to cluster a scattering of 57 off-campus classes in this community and the scheduling of 11 evening classes in Corona High School and seven day classes in Norco Community Center.

Chaffey College has broadened its human services certificate program to provide for specialization in either psychology or sociology in preparation for careers in social work.

The college has also expanded its communication arts program with greater emphasis on photography, film-making and broadcasting.

As of July 1, the college district includes the annexed area of Corona-Norco. Some 1,200 students will be from this area.

Chaffey College has scheduled a $2 million building program which includes a new auto shop building and a new vocational education center.

La Verne College, which chose Armen Sarafian, the son of a former faculty member, as its new president last year, will begin its 85th year with the largest freshman class in its history.

The total enrollment is expected to be 1,500 students.

Evening classes will begin at 4 p.m. on Sept. 20 and day classes will start

The first Armenian College in the United States will open at La Verne College this fall.

The college also has planned ground breaking for its new Law Center Building, just six years after the center's founding, in October.

The college has expanded its programs with weekend classes for adults seeking a degree who are unable to attend classes during the regular day and evening sessions. Other new programs include an enlarged journalism department, extended paralegal training courses and an accredited doctoral program in school management.

The college will have an on-campus enrollment of 700 undergraduate students and 350 graduate students this fall. There will also be 150 adults enrolled in the LVCapa program. Two hundred fifty students are enrolled in the Law Center which has recently obtained full accreditation from the California Bar Association.

The Claremont School of Theology will open this fall with an enrollment of 330, all graduate students.

A program at the school is a "project Burning Bush" funded by an endowment from Lilly Foundation in Indianapolis. The two-year program of alternative education uses local churches and the seminary as educational partners.

During the summer, the school launched an in-service doctor of ministry program designed to help the practicing minister acquire the doctor of ministry degree without leaving his parish post. The program requires 24 units of work beyond the minister's previous three year seminary degree.

The Theology School is enlarging its doctoral program.

Fall classes at Azusa Pacific College in Azusa begin Sept. 13. An enrollment of 1,100 campus students is expected.

Azusa Pacific recently introduced a new, unique Associate of Arts degree program via video casette for those whose life circumstances do not permit them to attend scheduled classes.

Azusa Pacific is again offering the graduate program leading to the M.A. degree in education on social science at Indio, Orange County, San Diego, Saugus and Victorville.

Paul E. Sago, formerly a vice president at Anderson College in Indiana, has been chosen to head Azusa Pacific College. He is assuming his new duties this month.

As part of its "Decade of Challenge" program of expansion started three years ago, the college has recently completed its Carl E. Wynn Science Center. Several other new facilities are planned in the next three to five years.

Pomona College in Claremont will open its 89th year of instruction on Sept. 23 with an enrollment of 1,340 students.

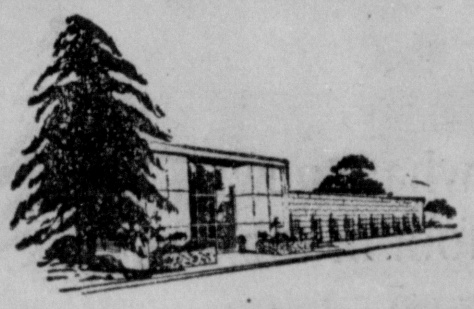

Placing an increased emphasis on the orientation of the freshman students, the college has established a new position, a dean of freshmen. Maxine Bates has been named to fill the post.

One of the older campus buildings, Crookshank Hall, has been renovated and will house the English and Classics departments.

Another facility, Oldenborg Center, has a new stage and has been redecorated.

Brackett Observatory, also an older campus landmark, has been fitted with a new dome and has undergone other modernization.

FOR 51 YEARS THE POMONA MAUSOLEUM HAS BEEN DEDICATED TO POMONA FAMILIES

Constructed in 1925 with space for only three hundred and eighty crypts, the Pomona Mausoleum built a second unit at the north entrance to the Pomona Cemetery with a total of seven hundred and forty four crypts. Since World War II, five additions have been made, making it one of the largest of any community this size in the country.

For information regarding the Mausoleum's pre-payment plan, you are invited to our office. Small monthly payments with no interest or carrying charges.

People who buy locally enhance their own and everyone's opportunity to live better in Pomona. The amount of business done in Pomona is definitely relative to community success. As local businesses pay taxes to help the community.

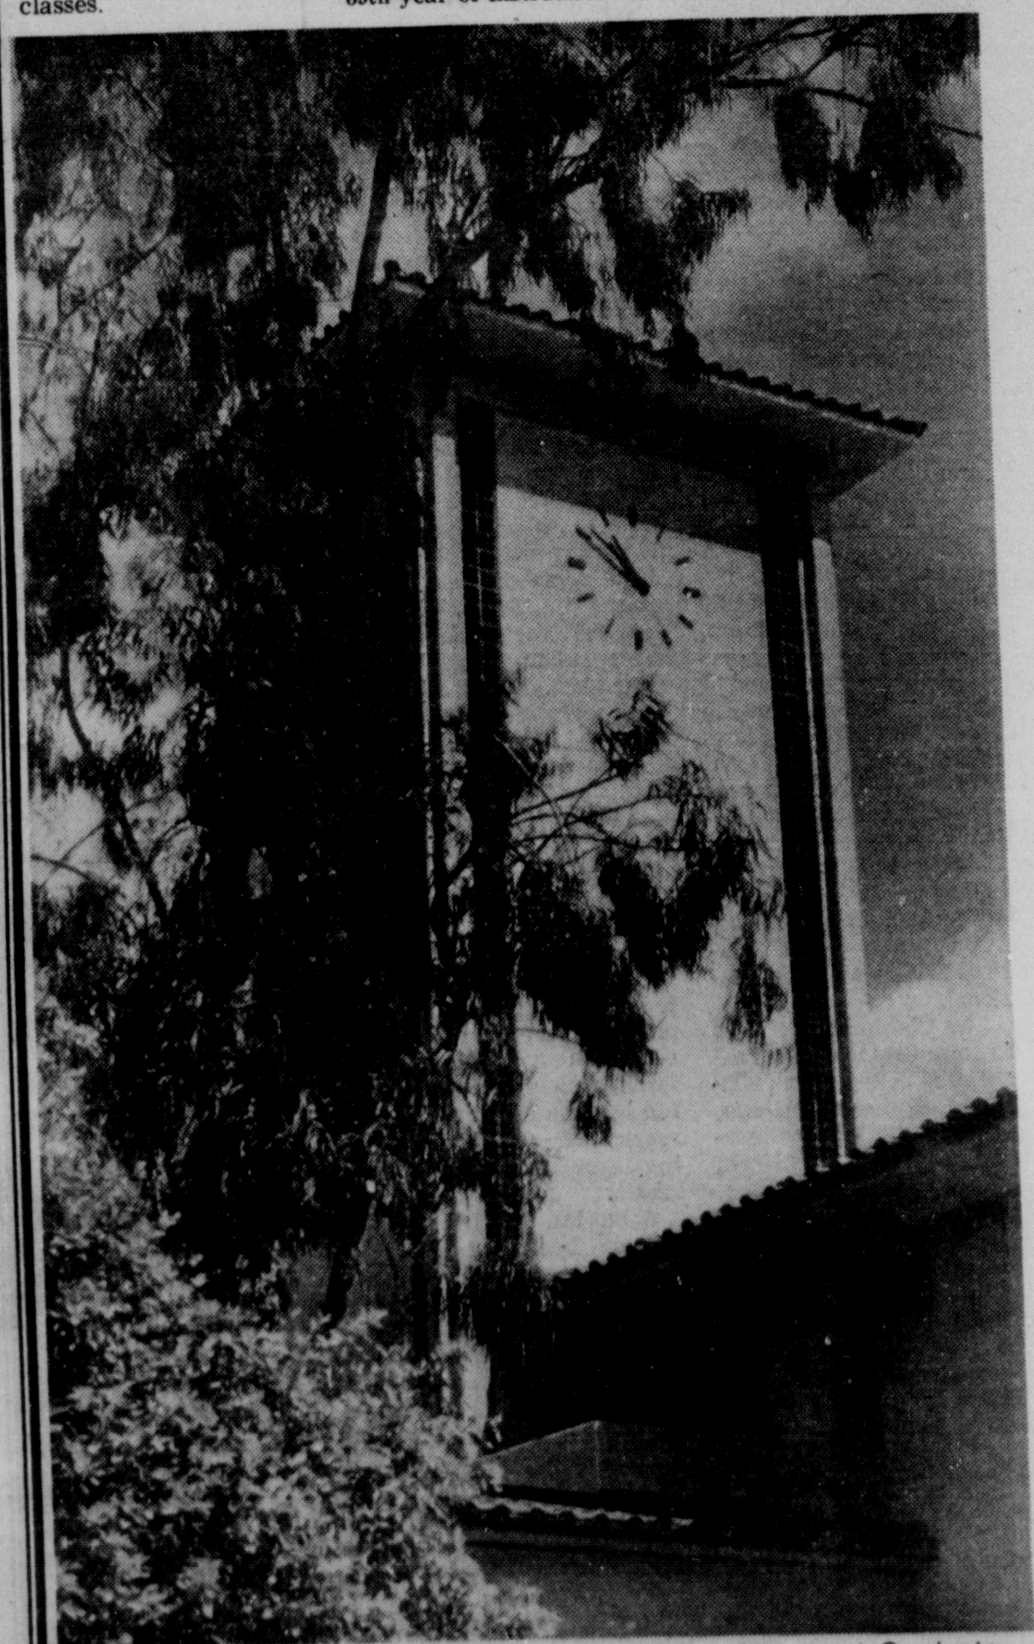

Why You Should Choose Memorial Space At Your Own Pomona Mausoleum

1. Pomona Mausoleum is a local institution.
2. Accessability within a few minutes of your home.
3. Convenience of visitations.
4. Heavy traffic and distance to out-of-town cemeteries place a burden on family's visitations.

Valley colleges . . .

Under a university center reorganization program, the Claremont Graduate School, which operated five years under its own president, and the Claremont University Center, have been recombined.

The graduate school expects an enrollment of 1,500, a slight increase, when classes resume on Sept. 23.

The trend at CGS toward more applied programs began at the start of the '70s when student interest shifted to some extent away from classical studies, the humanities, toward studies that would prepare them for jobs other than college teaching.

Over 840 students will be enrolled when Claremont Men's College opens for the fall semester of Sept. 23.

For the first time, CMC will admit women. Fifty five are enrolled in the college this fall.

About 50 students of the expected enrollment will spend the first semester in the offices of elected officials in Washington, D.C., and in Sacramento. Others in the political internship program will work as campaign aides.

The college also has a number of corporate internships designed for students who desire first-hand experience in the business community.

Scripps, College, starting its 51st year, has a new president.

He is John H. Chandler, former president of Salem College of Winston-Salem, N.C. An ordained Episcopalian minister, he has been an instructor at Ohio State University, UCLA and Dartmouth College.

Scripps will have an enrollment of 585, about the same as last year, when classes start on Sept. 23.

Selected qualified students may speed up their educations by combining B.A. and M.A. degree studies. Five options are being offered: four with Claremont Graduate School and one with the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago.

Several new internship programs will enable Scripps liberal arts students to see how their interests can be used most effectively in professions and how their humanities background can enrich those jobs.

As in the past, Scripps will provide a variety of services to the community as well as to its students.

Lang Art Galleries, the Clark Humanities Museum and Denison Library will offer interesting free exhibits. Foreign language and other films will be shown free of charge; interesting lecturers will give public speeches on varied topics. The Four Colleges Players of CMC, HMC, Pitzer and Scripps will present everything from drama to comedy in Strut and Fret Theatre or Balch Auditorium.

Free chamber music concerts by distinguished nationally know artists and several performances by the Concert Choir of CMC, HMC, Pitzer and Scripps will be held during the year, as well as dance concerts.

The college also has welcomed a new president.

D. Kenneth Baker, former vice president and dean at St. Lawrence University in upstate New York, will assume the presidency on Sept. 1. He replaces the college's founding president, Joseph Platt.

Pitzer College in Claremont will have an enrollment of 730 students when classes start in September.

There is a significant number of additional students in the New Resources program for men and women past the usual college age who are beginning or continuing their college education.

Pitzer College continues to emphasize the social and behavorial sciences with an increased effort to move students out into the community to test their theoretical knowledge with reality, as part of their total college experience.

As a part of a new major in organizational studies Pitzer students, faculty and administrators will be working with management of corporations in solving pressing organizational problems. This year, the focus will be on Affirmative Action.

The first "stars and stripes", according to some flag experts, was probably the version unfurled at Easton, Pennsylvania, on July 8, 1776. It was a blue flag with 12 eight-pointed white stars in the middle circling a 13th, and, in an upper corner, a block of seven horizontal red and six white stripes. The World Almanac reveals.

College programs

Traditionally, the college classroom and the working environment have been two worlds separated by graduation, but more and more students are interested in combining the two worlds; discovering how ell they can apply college studies to off-campus jobs, and getting academic credit for the practical learning experience.

Cooperative education, internships, or field experience, as the programs commonly are called, are growing in popularity.

In 1960, there were approximately 45 colleges and universities with programs; today, an estimated 1,000 institutions provide more than 160,000 students with a constructive work program as part of their learning process.

"I think today's college students are highly motivated to achieve satisfactory professional goals," says Allan W. Ostar, executive director of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

"They want to make rational personal and career choices based upon what they are learning and the professional competencies required."

WINTERNATIONALS — The National Hot Rod Association's Winternationals, held every February at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona, is one of the nation's major drag racing events. The event was inaugurated in 1961.

At the fairgrounds during the Los Angeles County Fair, which is conducted from mid-September into October, thoroughbred, quarter horse and harness racing are all featured at the race track.

If you're looking for more action, during the school year there are 16 high schools and eight colleges in the valley competing almost every week in football, basketball, baseball or track.

In December, there are several high school basketball tournaments in the valley including the Upland-Montclair Tourney. Chino Tourney and the San Dimas Tournament of Champions.

Pomona is the host every Easter for the annual Elks Baseball Tournament at Ralph Welch Park. It is the largest high school tournament and can claim such alumni as Ted Williams, Jackie Robinson, Ed Mathews and others.

If golf is your game, the area is blessed with no less than 14 public and private courses, of both the nine and 18-hole variety. The recently refurbished Mountain Meadows course in Pomona is one of the top public links in the area, while surrounding cities Chino, San Dimas, Diamond Bar, La Verne and Ontario all boost of private country clubs.

The tennis scene is a busy one. Three pribate clubs in the valley have complete playing facilities of their own, plus such extras as clubhouses and swimming pools, and various city recreation departments also schedule tournaments and classes.

The private clubs are Claremont Tennis Club, 2225 Padua Ave.; the Valley Racquet Club, 840 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont; and the Upland Racquet Club, 1525 W. 15th St.

In addition, the San Jose Hills Racquet Club, which uses the Mt. San Antonio College courts, draws much of its membership from the local area.

The Claremont club was the site last June of the first annual Pomona Valley Closed Championships and the San Jose Hills group sponsors the local area's major annual tournament, bringing top Southern California players to the MSAC courts in late November.

Association in Pomona, which in addition to shows and classes, gives prizes and scholarships to student artists from the local junior and senior high schools.

Other art clubs carrying on thriving programs are the Associated Artists, Chaffey Community Art Association, Fontana Art Association, and the Heights Art Association in Hacienda Heights.

With all the theater choruses and art organizations, presenting cultural entertainment in a wide variety of the arts, Pomona Valley residents never need to look far for a program to suit their esthetic tastes.

Community Hospital includes added facilities for the x-ray lab, surgery and out-patient waiting areas, as well as a new emergency room. Also dedicated in August is a new $2.5 million 18-bed mental health unit, which provides day care and hospitalization.

San Antonio Community opened in August, 1924 and covers an area of 210,126 square feet. The staff is composed of 750 employes and the hospital has 309 beds.

A radiation treatment for patients with breast cancer, Xeromammography, has been utilized at Park Avenue Hospital. The process cuts radiation to the patient in half and improves the quality of the x-rays.

The hospital also has an active maternity wing.

The 1,000-square-foot hospital opened in August, 1940 and now has 18 beds and is staffed by 70 employes.

Chino General Hospital, a 118-bed facility with 75,297 square feet, was opened in October, 1972.

Also adding to its services, Casa Colina Hospital dedicated a new rehabilitation service building and teaching center

Casa Colina Hospital is the only accredited nonprofit community hospital in the Southwest devoted to comprehensive rehabilitation for severely disabled children and adults.

The facility first began in Chino in 1938 and moved to Pomona in 1959. The present facility covers an area of 46,200 square feet. A staff of 200 care for patients in 58 beds at the hospital, as well as 80 to 100 out-patients each day.

Among its many specialized departments, the hospital has large physical and occupational therapy departments; vocational development and children's development departments and a pre-school.

Newer departments include those for speech and audiology, chronic low back pain treatment, stroke and spinal chord injury rehabilitation.

NEW BUILDING — Casa Colina Hospital doubled its area for vocational and therapeutic services this summer with the dedication of its new building at 255 E. Bonita Ave., Pomona.

Pacific State Hospital is one of 11 hospitals of its kind in the state. It has a 1,800-bed capacity and a staff of more than 1,500 for the 41-unit facility.

Resident and day care services are provided at the hospital, which opened in 1927 to care for the mentally retarded.

December-January snows launch the skiing season at Mt. Baldy, opened by the first ski lift 23 years ago.

Nestled in a cup-shaped bowl on a forested saddle between 10,080-foot Mt. San Antonio on the north and 8,645-foot Thunder Mountain on the south, the Baldy Notch Ski Resort welcomes Easter, as snow levels permit.

At the 7,500-foot top there are a lodge, snack bar, bar, ski shop and ski school.

Three other chair lifts and a poma, or T-bar, lift take skiers to any of the 27 runs that offer a total of 2,300 feet of verticle drop. The lifts have been operated sincd 1969 by Western Resorts, Inc.

During the season, the lifts operate from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily.

Most of the runs at Baldy are suited for the advanced skier, being steeper and more difficult than those at Sun Valley. But there are slopes for intermediate and beginning skiers, too.
